Events Draw Throng To Mark Centennial Of Sacramento High

By Thor Severson

Sacramentans leafed back through the 100 years of history Saturday of Sacramento High School in observing the centennial anniversary of the school—one of the oldest public high schools in the west.

Old grads, to use the campus expression, walked the familiar old grounds, renewed old friendships and exchanged greetings with classmates—many of whom had been forgotten through the long years.

But for others, the walk down Memory Lane was a strange rendezvous—for the school has had nine addresses since it was founded in 1856. In succession, it had been located:

On M Streets between 8th and 9th Streets, on the northeast corner of 5th and K Streets, on the southwest corner of 6th and L Streets, at 7th and G Streets, on 7th between J and K Streets, in the Old Pioneer Hall, at 9th and M Streets, at 19th and K, and, finally, at 2315 34th Streets, its location since 1924.

Varied Observances

The weekend observance began with a parade Friday night through downtown Sacramento, featured a reunion picnic on the school campus Saturday, and was climaxed with a formal commemoration program on the campus Saturday afternoon.

F. Melvyn Lawson, deputy superintendent of Sacramento public schools, characterized the high school as a great human laboratory. It is an institution in which students not only learn to find answers to subject matter, he said—they also learn to find themselves.

"Few indeed have been the business firms, the industrial concerns, the political institutions or the social organizations in this community for the last 100 years that have not felt the impact and the influence of Sacramento High School," he said. "For a century, the school has effectively helped to train Sacramentans to live and to make a living.

Great Welding Link

"Our public schools are one of the most important instruments we have for welding our people together, and they do it by taking people of all situations in life and giving them an understanding of our language, our traditions and our institutions, and by teaching them to work together for the good of all."

Then Herman Phleger, a 1908 graduate and a key adviser to the state department in Washington, DC, reminisced over the century of history associated with Sacramento High.

And he hinted he thought the old standards were probably more productive of men who matched the mountains than the standards set today by a more restless, complex conscious society.

He referred to the school of 50 years ago, the Sacramento High School he knew intimately.

Quaint Structure

"It was a frame three story building, a faded brown in color," he recalled. "Huge timber beams had been put through from side to side to keep its tired frame from collapsing.

"It had no playground, no athletic field, and no gymnasium. It was heated with wood stoves. There was no auditorium. We held our graduation exercises in the assembly chamber in the Capitol.

"But before you begin to feel sorry for us, let me tell you what we did have.

"We had a wonderful group of teachers. We had a selection of courses that included Latin, Greek, German, French, English, mathematics and history. I can assure you that when you took a subject you passed it credibly—or else. Although Sigmund Freud was born the very year in which Sacramento High was founded, we had not yet heard of inferiority complexes so if we didn't make the grade we took the course over again."

Classic Is Required

He recalled he once was required by Miss May Green, his English teacher, to remain after school for an hour and one half each night for two weeks to learn Bryant's Thanatopsis.

"Well, strange as it may seem," Phleger recalled, "I learned that poem, and so well that I can still recite it. And it was years before I came to realize that in order to keep me one hour and a half after schools, Miss Green had to stay too."

Phleger said there is "no short cut to learning." It still takes sweat, tears, sheer determination and ambition, he insisted. Easy come, easy go education is just as worthless, he stated, as the easy come, easy go dollars.

Part Of Heritage

He asserted freedom to think, to learn, to challenge, to go just as far as one's own capacity and ambition will carry him is part of the American heritage.

"When I speak of free education," he declared, "I mean freedom to seek and to learn the truth. In Communist countries, the student must take the courses prescribed, think the thoughts he is told to think and accept as truth what is served out as the truth."

Phleger was introduced by Assemblyman Thomas J. MacBride, general chairman of the centennial observance, who described Phleger as one of Sacramento High School's most distinguished graduates.

Two of Sacramento High's earlier graduates, Mrs. Martha Wiesel Franz, a member of the class of 1888, and Mrs. T. C. Feeney Kelly, class of 1889, were introduced by MacBride.

Plaques Are Given

Centennial plaques were presented by Marie Stebbins, deputy grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and Philip C. Wilkins, past grand president of the Native Sons of the Golden West. They were accepted by Dr. Albert J. Sessarego, principal.

Here and there, today's generation of high school students gathered in small groups. They found it hard to think in terms of a full century. The year 1856, to them, is just a year in history, a year of history that even antedates Lincoln as president.

But they could see the evidence on all sides that, one day, they will be adults, and will have children, and will grow older, then grow old.

And that while they will pass from the scene, too, just as the generation before them, Sacramento High will still be Sacramento High—wiser a teacher for its century of experience, more mellow, more patient for its 100 years.

'OLD GRADS' Here is a portion of the graduates of Sacramento High School who gathered at the school Saturday to reminisce and celebrate the school's centennial anniversary.

MacBride Heads Committee For High School Anniversary

Assemblyman Thomas MacBride is chairman of the Sacramento High School Centennial Committee making plans for the school's 100th birthday celebration June 2. The eight-member committee of SHS graduates includes Robert D. Livingston, finance; Mrs. M. M. Millward, class arrangements; Dr. Albert J. Sessarago, student and faculty committees; Carolyn Johnson, program; Mrs. Frances Genteman, history; Mrs. Lawrence Blucher, publicity; Mrs. Walter Miles, activities; and Lewis Kassis, picnic.

The June 2 festivities, to which thousands of alumni are invited, will include class reunions in the morning, a picnic lunch, an afternoon program, and individual class parties in the evening.

HEADING CLASS arrangements are Mrs. Forbes T. Brown '19 (classes prior to 1900); Henrietta Horton '01 (1900-1905); Mildred Lothhammer '10 (1906-1910); V. J. McCambridge '14 (1911-1915); Mrs. Jack Kennedy '18 (1916-1920); Mrs. George F. Winslow '21 (1921-1925); Mrs. J. Carl Jennings '30 (1926-1930); D. Jackson Faustman '33 (1931-1935); R. J. Bullock '36 (1936-1940); Richard L. Lindstrom, Jr., '43 (1941-1945); Mrs. Jack Finch '50 (1946-1950); and M. Eugene Mabry and Rae Kauffman '53 (1951-1956).

Among honored guests at the celebration will be the oldest living graduate, if he or she can be located, and past principals.

THE SCHOOL held its first classes September 1, 1856, in a schoolhouse on M between Eighth and Ninth Streets. There were 39 boys and girls attending, with J. M. Howe the teacher. Classes were locted later in various elementary school buildings, at Fifth and K, Sixth and L, and 7th and G Streets.

The first high school building was put up at Ninth and M Streets in 1877. The school moved to 18th and K Streets, the present site of Sutter Junior High Schcool, in 1909, and to the present location at 34th and Y Streets in 1924.

As the city's only high school, it was referred to as the "Main High" until McClatchy High Schcool was opened in 1937.

The next few pages show the names of the Centennial Steering Committee; also the minutes of the meetings held during the year - all on yellow paper.

Second Meeting

Centennial Steering Committee
Minutes of Meeting
May 18, 1955

A meeting of the Centennial Steering Committee was held in the office of the principal of Sacramento Senior High School during the evening of Wednesday, May 18.

Present: Mr. Thos. J. MacBride, Chairman
Mr. Albert J. Sessarego
Mr. Robert D. Livingston
Miss Carolyn Johnson
Mrs. Rose Millward
Mrs. Frances Genteman

Absent: Mr. Lewis Kassis
Mr. Phillip C. Wilkins
Mr. Paul E. Hunter

The meeting was called to order at 7:40 P.M. by Chairman MacBride after the members of the committee toured the buildings and grounds.

The main concern during this second meeting was to discuss the aims and duties of the members of the Steering Committee.

The first topic was that of funds to defray expenses of the centennial celebration. Mr. Livingston, chairman of the financial committee, brought up the question about how would the funds be raised. Money would be needed for writing letters, and circularizing information relative to the centennial. It was felt that no effort should be made to raise money by newspaper contact. The best plan would be for members of the committee to carry on a campaign through contact with friends and in that way accept donations from any one who would like to contribute to the fund.

Mr. Sessarego brought up the matter of having a brochure or booklet prepared that could be sold as a souvenir on the day of the centennial - cost to be as low as possible (perhaps 5 or 10 cents per copy). He mentioned that our printer, Mr. Jayes, would be in a position to do the printing and would do an excellent job. The question of paper to be used was discussed - Mr. Sessarego will find out from the administration just what the school would be in a position to furnish by way of paper, supplies, etc. He will also contact Mr. Jayes, Mr. Osenbaugh, and Mr. Moore - between the three of them will work out a booklet that can be sold at cost on the day of the celebration. Mr. Jayes, our printer; Mr. Osenbaugh, coordinator of publications of City Schools; Mr. Moore, our art teacher.

CENTENNIAL STEERING COMMITTEE
Minutes of Meeting
May 18, 1955

Mrs. Millward brought up the question about name plates. Perhaps students (art) could print names for people coming in. How about different color for different years. Year of graduation written below name. The committee felt that a name plate was a good idea - different colors for different years seem to be too complicated a plan. Mr. Sessarego suggested a sign to read: pick up your name plate at the table according to the class of graduation. He will contact the art department about the possibility of supplying a number of students with ball point pens for that purpose of lettering the name cards of those persons who want their names put on cards. Mr. Sessarego: shall we adopt whatever Mr. Moore indicates will be the official banner for the centennial? Mr. Sessarego suggested that up in one corner of the name plate it might be well to have some sort of sketch so the card would not be so plain.

It was suggested that the card carry the maiden name first followed by the married name - the year of graduation to be written directly under in very large size.

It was a unanimous feeling that graduates should have a card which will contain the name and the year of graduation.

Mrs. Millward had many questions regarding her responsibilities. She felt she would like to call herself - Chairman, GENERAL CLASS COMMITTEE. She brought up the question: will the centennial include the 1956 classes - if the centennial is held in June before school closes (1956) the celebration will only include up to and including the January class of 1956. When will the centennial take place? That will be decided at another meeting - Saturday would be the day for it. How could classes meet? Perhaps over a period of five years graduates could go to certain rooms and register. She also felt there should be a separate committee to make plans for "all teachers of the period". A suggestion was made to appoint Mr. Morley, vice-principal at present, to head up this committee and take care of all teachers - present and past. An effort should be made to locate the oldest man and oldest woman graduate living. Mr. Wilkins to work with Mrs. Millward to find the oldest and arrange for them to be present or at least honored on the program. Also suggested that the oldest man and the oldest woman in this area be located for this same purpose.

Mr. MacBride said there are found points in mind regarding the oldest graduates:

1. Find the oldest living graduate of Sacramento Senior High School - here or elsewhere.
2. Know and recognize the oldest graduate who is attending this centennial celebration.
3. Who is a graduate of the most ancient class of Sacramento Senior High School.
4. Person who is present at the centennial of our oldest class.

Mrs. Millward - should we have a form letter to be used in making contact regarding the centennial (if need arises)?

Mr. Hunter had indicated at first meeting that it may be that he will be in Japan during the centennial celebration. If that is the case, it was felt that he should have a vice-chairman of his committee so that he would assume responsibility for the functioning of the committee.

Mrs. Millward - shall we leave it up to the general class committee to include the building at 18th and K Street in the celebration. It was felt that [illegible] the building at 18th and K could be open after the celebration here at S.H.S. However, no double program for the day should be held.

A suggestion was made to get visitors to come to S.H.S.; get them interested and then send them down to the old building at 18th and K. That was considered to be feasible. It was felt the best plan would be to have the picnic from 10 A.M. to 12 noon - program from 2 P.M. to 4 P.M. Miss Johnson raised the question: "how will visitors look at the building"? Mr. MacBride indicated he felt former students would attend to see their friends - that was his idea of the celebration - to see your "old friends" and "classmates" and to have a get-to-gether.

Mrs. Millward - graduates to go to rooms and register names and addresses. These sheets used in different rooms (by designated years) should be uniform.

CENTENNIAL STEERING COMMITTEE
Minutes of Meeting
May 18, 1955

Mr. Sessarego said Mr. Jayes could bind all this material. Mrs. Millward also felt that we should have stickers prepared so they could be put on Christmas cards sent to friends or on letters sent out. The stick could read: SEE YOU AT THE CENTENNIAL - or some remark like that. In fact the stickers could be used on all types of correspondence to properly advertise the centennial. She suggested perhaps we could have rooms marked "what you did in school" - R.O.T.C. drama, extra curricular activity, music, athletics. Or you could mark the room "What you did when".

Mr. MacBride said he would like to see a bunch of the fellows he associated with in school.

Mrs. Millward - how is the news going to be spread to near out-of-town people?

Mr. MacBride - by newspapers - TV programs, and radio. We can get time on TV programs. Call the attention of Mr. Osenbaugh that we should get as much radio time and TV time as possible. In the fall of 1955 get on prlgrams and get people thinking about the centennial.

Mrs. Millward - should we make a definite effort (deliberate effort) to include Chinese, Japanese and Negro - select someone who was active regardless of race. Mr. Sessarego's comment - get participation of all races.

Mr. Livingston felt stickets is a good idea - best idea of the evening. Have a contest in the art classes to get the best idea for a sticker. Mr. Sessarego indicated that perhaps we could have a poster contest - from which we could get an idea for a sticker, or from which a sticker could be made. The posters submitted in this contest could be put on display the day of the centennial program.

Mr. Sessarego informed the committee that we have had an invitation from the Native Daughters regarding the centennial. Miss Johnson is to draft a letter to them indicating that they may participate but not be in charge. She will answer their letter.

CENTENNIAL STEERING COMMITTEE
Minutes of Meeting
May 18, 1955

Mr. MacBride said to have one more meeting this school year - by June 17, and then start again next Fall.

This meeting to be Wednesday, June 1, at 7 P.M. This will be the last meeting of the school year.

The meeting was called to order at 7:15PM. Two samples of a letter head, to be used in correspondence for the centennial, were submitted(these were prepared by Mr. John Moore, art teacher at Sacramento High School). The committee selected the one which seemed to be the appropriate one for our use for the following year in preparation for the celebration.

At this meeting it had been planned that a date would be selected for the celebration; after a discussion by those present it was decided that Saturday, June 2, 1956, would be the date - 10 AM to 2 PM.

A discussion took place regarding the proper type of sticker which may be used during the year. Mr. Livingston submitted a sketch of one which was later passed on to Mr. Moore to be drawn and submitted later for approval of the committee. Stickers could be used during the year in many different ways. Posters to be made in art department which can be displayed about the city.

It was felt that as a person comes in the door he should be given a sheet on which is the floor plan and ground plan; this sheet also to contain the program of the day. The floor plan and ground plan would show "marked spots" of importance. The brochure, containing important facts, can be sold at different places in the building as a souvenir.

The faculty committee will take care of parking; planning and supervising for the day.

Mrs. Millward stresses the fact that people bring lunches. "Bring a picnic lunch and spouse" - this statement could be used to discourage people bringing their children.

Mr. Livingston brought up the matter of securing financial help. He suggested that a list of 100 prominent citizens could be made up and these persons solicited for financial help. They could be given some recognition by publication of names indicating they contributed toward putting on this celebration - their names could be placed on the program of the day or perhaps in the brochure. They would be considered patrons of the celebration.

At the next meeting of this committee we should decide about the brochure; should we have a wide distribution; are we going to send them away; how many do we need, etc.

Absent: Mr. Lewis Kassis
Mr. Philip C. Wilkins (his name has been removed from Committee because of lack of time to devote to the preparation of the celebration)
Mrs. Lawrence Blucher (Jewel) - new member - added as Chairman of Publicity

The meeting was called to order at 7:15 PM by Chairman Tom MacBride. The minutes of the Third Meeting, held on June 1, were read and accepted as read.

Dr. Sessarego reported on the progress of a letter head - John Moore, our teacher, had made the necessary drawings and Wm. Jayes, our printer, is in the process of prearing one. At the next meeting samples will be submitted to the committee and very soon the printing will take place in our print shop.

The matter of stickers was discussed again. It was felt that stickers would be of real value - people would see them. They could be used on the outside of envelopes being sent out. Tom MacBride asked to have our art department make a type of sticker design that could be used and submit the sample to Dr. Sessarego. Mrs. Millward pointed out that the main job would be to send the sticker out of town to people we know as S.H.S. alumni. We will get a great deal of publicity locally by other means although stickers could be used locally also.

Tom MacBride asked Bob Livingston about the list of peominent citizens 100 in number. Tom suggested that the members of the committee help in building up a list of 100 names of persons to solicit for financing the celebration. Mrs. Millward raised the question as to whose name should be on the list - Bob Livingston indicated that anyone who could afford to contribute regardless of their position or vocation. At the next meeting each of the members of this steering committee is to bring to Bob Livingston names of persons who could be contacted.

The matter of prearing a brochure was discussed. Dr. Sessarego indicated that to prepare a brochure would require a great deal of work if it is to be a good one. A centennial edition of the X-Ray would be better. You do not have to be as orderly as in a brochure. You could fill up the pages of the X-Ray by preparing write-ups at any time up to the time of printing. Tom MacBride suggested that it might be a good idea to go thru some of the yearbooks and pick out a picture to print in the paper and ask "do you recognize anybody in this picture - one is a prominent business man, an attorney, etc. Select a group picture that may have Stanley Noonan's picture in it or Herb Caen. Dr. Sessarego pointed out that you can do more in preparing a paper than in a brochure. We have students working on the history of Sacramento High School; it is a good job for them. Miss Johnson felt it would be the contribution of the present group toward the celebration. Dr. Sessarego was not in favor of "giving the paper away" - anything free, people throw it away. We sell the X-Ray for 5¢ or free with a student body card. The X-Ray should be sold as a souvenir of the centennial - this can be discussed at a future meeting.

Dr. Sessarego told the group he invited Mrs. Evelyn Miles to attend this meeting tonight. He has talked to Phil Wilkins who was going out of town - Phil is very much interested in the centennial but does not have time for it; perhaps he could be asked to do something else. Dr. Sessarego asked Mrs. Miles to be chairman of Activities on this committee. This was approved by the group.

Mrs. Miles raised the question: what activities do you have in mind?

Centennial Steering Committee
Minutes of Meeting
Sept. 21, 1955

At this point of the meeting Tom MacBride indicated that it was necessary for him to leave on account of other commitments for this evening; he did want to set a definite date for the next meeting. He set Tuesday, Oct. 18, 7 P.M. as the time for the next meeting. He left the group at 7:45 P.M.

Bob Livingston took over the chairmanship for the remainder of the evening. A discussion followed concerning the program for the day. The original idea was to have the program of the day on a piece of paper which would be handed to a person coming in the door. The program could also be re-printed in the X-Ray as a matter of record if desired.

Mr. Livingston reviewed the following: that the faculty will have charge of the parking and planning and supervising for the day; that the journalism class will take on the job of putting out the X-Ray. Dr. Sessarego said the present students are pressin him as to what they can do. We should determine what the students can do and then the faculty members will know what they can do. Mrs. Miles would figure out if the students can help, and what they can do. It was felt the students could help sell the X-Ray, direct people thru the halls and buildings, and parking of cars. A parade was suggested; that sounded good for the morning of the celebration - to have a parade in the Oak Park area. Have the band march, the drill team, different classes enter loats; the Oak Park Merchants are interested in a parade. In the parade there could be old-fashioned dresses, etc. Dr. Sessarego says the students are ready to go. Mr. Livingston raised the question - why just in Oak Park? It was felt that a Friday night parade down town might be good to interest people in the celebration. Dr. Sessarego felt that the student body would have a big hand in this.

It was also suggested that the stores put in some type of window displays.

Someone should be appointed to act as chairman of the parade - this was to be considered an activity. Who should line up the window displays? Check with Retail Merchants Committee? Dr. Sessarego indicated he felt the activity

Centennial Steering Committee
Minutes of Meeting

committee should have about five sub-chairmen - one for the parade, one for window displays, etc.

Mrs. Millward said people will come to see their class mates and friends - have teachers along the halls. Many classes will have reunions; perhaps many may have dinners that night. The chairmen and sub-chairmen of the classes will arrange for dinners and other parties if there is an interest in that direction.

Miss Johnson raised the question about the parade - is this going to be big enough to be effective? Mr. Livingston said we considered this to give the present student body something to do. In regard to activities he said: what can the present student body do for the celebration? Dr. Sessarego indicated that when the list of activities is prepared we can decide what the faculty and students can do.

Mr. Livingston asked for a report from Mrs. Genteman regarding the history being written. She indicated that she would start very soon getting together all data regarding this; her plan is to make an outline of the high lights of the 100 years and from that material the history could be written. The social studies class is also working on the history and has been at work for two years.

If people do not bring lunch, will lunch be sold? Faculty can decorate field and other decorations, working with students.

It was suggested that Dorothy Hulin might be in charge of parade. Mrs. Miles is to work out activities suggested.

Mrs. Millward indicated we are going to have identical sheets in each room to sign as former students visit the rooms. Give information to Dr. Sessarego to get signs made. Dr. Sessarego asked what can we do to replace Paul Hunter as Ways and Means. Perhaps it is not necessary to replace him.

Next time we meet to have reports and/plans for celebration. Miss Johnson will be working on the program for the day - present oldest living graduate in Sacramento.

Dr. Sessarego suggested an old-fashioned band platform - have band play.

Tom MacBride to be the master of ceremonies for the afternoon program.

Dr. Sessarego suggested that Harry Day be hired for the loud speaking equipment for the day's program if we want to have our program run smoothly and with good service.

It was felt we should have a Chairman of Publicity. Mr. Osenbaugh is so busy with school business. Find someone who can handle publicity. Give that person the facts of the celebration. After some discussion it was suggested that Mrs. Lawrence Blucher would be an excellent cnoice for this committee in handling the publicity. Dr. Sessarego phoned her immediately and she accepted.

Have present students suggest something by way of displays for cases - perhaps yesterday and today type of exhibit.

At the next meeting the steering committee should make final decisions regarding our celebration.

Mrs. Miles to meet with students and get ideas for the celebration - pertaining to activities. She will meet with the group before our meeting on Oct. 18, and report back to us regarding the activities for final approval. She planned to ask Dick Rogers, teacher at Sutter Junior High School, to help her with activities.

Mr. Robert D. Livingston (arrived late)
Mrs. Jewel Blucher
Mrs. Evelyn Miles
Dr. A. J. Sessarego
Mrs. Frances Genteman
Miss Carolyn Johnson (arrived late)

Absent: Mr. Lewis Kassis

The members present felt it might be well to start the meeting by discussing certain matters regarding activities; this discussion began at 7:15 with Dr. Sessarego taking over the chairmanship in the absence of the chairman. A short time after 8 o'clock four of the members, who had not been present, arrived.

A discussion took place regarding a dance after the day's program to be held in the evening. Mrs. Miles indicated that students were very much interested in having a dance in a large place such as the auditorium or Governor's Hall. Having a dance that evening would require a great deal of thought and planning; the idea was shelved for the present.

Dr. Sessarego asked Miss Johnson if she had any report to make regarding the program of the day. A discussion followed regarding a band stand for the band to be placed on the grounds by the girls' gym. It was feltit would be better to have a small platform on which special guests and maaster of cermonies of the program could sit and have the band on the ground below the stand - to play while people were having lunch. on the picnic grounds. Use purple and white bunting for decorations on the stand. It was felt the program on the stand could start at 2 P.M.

Dr. Sessarego brought up the matter of eats. Perhaps we could get someone to sell eats instead of bringing lunch; perhaps students would volunteer to sell food. It was suggested that the food might be prepared in the pavilion and brought out on the grounds - sandwiches could be sold. Indicate to the public that food will be available. Money could be made by selling food and used toward the Sacramento High School Memorial Scholarship Fund. The P.T.A. would be asked to helpserve the food. Dr. Sessarego felt he would like to talk to Lewis Kassis to find out if he is too busy to take over the responsibility of the chairmanship in the steering committee. If he answers "yes" than Dr. Sessarego suggested asking Dewey Baker to assume responsibility of the foods.

Centennial Steering Committee
Minutes of Meeting

Miss Johnson plans to write the Native Daughters of the Golden West and ask them if they are willing to give a plaque. Also the Native Sons may want to make a presentation. Where will the plaque be placed.

Mr. MacBride came in at this time and the notes of what had taken place before he arrived were read and discussion followed. Dr. Sessarego will contact Lewis Kassis about the whole situation. Perhaps Mr. Kassis need not be present at all meetings but Mr. MacBride felt that although his responsibility might not need attention at this time all members should be present so as to contribute toward the success of the entire working of the whole committee.

Mrs. Millward arrived at this point. The item to consider was "do we eat lunch before or after the program. What time do we want to have the the program. Mr. MacBride asked what will people do with lunches while program is going on. We discussed this earlier and felt it might be better to sell food as most people would not bring lunches.

Mr. Livingston came in at this time. We still talked about the time of the program.

Again the question of food came up - will Dewey Baker be of greater help to us than Mr. Kassis. Will Mr. Baker get to more meetings than Mr. Kassis. Dr. Sessarego will phone Mr. Kassis and ask if he can get to the next meeting.

Centennial Steering Committee
Minutes of Meeting

Mrs. Blucher suggested we have a birthday cake - a large one;at the program.

Mrs. Millward indicated that registration will be from 10 AM to noon; then have lunch and the program to follow that. It is felt that two hours will be needed to register and visit in the respective rooms. An announcement could be made to the effect that people bring lunch but food will be sold on the grounds.Dewey baker would be a good person to handle the food situation.

Have the band play on the field during lunch time and then following lunch a short program will finish the celebration. The band to play songs of different years. It was felt that it would be difficult to serve the cake on the field because of its size. Dr. Sessarego suggested that the cake might be cut and served in the cafeteria on the day before the celebration. Perhaps Phillip's bakery would donate the cake - good publicity. Mr. MacBride suggested we have a symbolic cutting for picture taking. Have the cake in the cafeteria on Friday and serve it to students on Friday after taking pictures. Pictures could be in the Sacramento Bee Friday night.

Mrs. Millward brought a sample of a sticker that could be printed - a type of sticker that will fasten itself to clothes when pressed on. These could be given to persons as they come in the building. This might be very expensive - in fact more expensive than the funds can stand. A suggestion was made that the large stores, SMUD could stamp on outgoing bills a sentence that would advertise the celebration - that would be good publicity.

Question of a cake was discussed again - Mrs. Blucher s uggested to have the symbolic cutting of the cake on Thursday so the Sacramento Bee and Sacramento Union could take proper pictures; then on Saturday the real cake could be in the building for cutting.

Mr. MacBride indicated the next item of business - what is the decision about lunches. Dr. Sessarego will phone Mr. Kassis asking him if he was too busy to serve - also ask him if we could ask someone to take over the responsibility of his part of the committee.

Minutes of Meeting

Mrs. Millward thought it might be a good idea if they brought their Reviews. As publicity goes out to add the fact that former students bring copies of Reviews. Mrs. Millward said a Mrs. Painter phoned her and suggested that the following be brought to the attention of the committee for consideration: There should be a small charge for registration so that it would keep away the people who should not be there. The committee did not feel that this was a good idea.

Mrs. Millward also reported that her committee met this last week and plans are well under way - sshe has chairman of different groups and they are enthusiastic about their part of the program for that day. Mr. MacBride asked her if there was something the Steering Committee could do to help her? She did not feel that this committee could do anything special for her.

Mr. MacBride felt that since people will have to sit down perhaps they should be encouraged to wear older clothes. Could have some benches around for those who wish to sit down. He was thinking mostly of the old folks who will come. Perhaps we could have a certain section set aside and reserved for those members from 1864 to 1910. Rope off the chairs for the older people - both sides of the field - no chairs in the middle of the field; bleachers at opposite ends of the field.

Miss Johnson wanted to bring up the matter that at the fourth meeting of the committee it was a unanimous decision that Mr. MacBride would be the master of ceremonies during the program in the afternoon - Mr. MacBride accepted.

Dr. Sessarego presented expenses to date to Mr. Livingston; printing of Centennial Edition of X-Ray. Stickers would cost about $500; this is too much to be considered. The stickers were the type that could be placed on letters that are sent out. Mr. MacBride will check elsewhere as to the cost involved in getting stickers.

Centennial Steering Committee

It was decided that the Centennial X-Ray edition would consist of 8 pages for senior edition and 8 pages for centennial in the one issue at a cost of $500 for 5000 copies. Suppose the finance committee put up the money and then we will sell the X-Ray for 10¢ or some other price. What will happen to the money that is left after all bills are paid for the centennial celebration? It was felt that all money left over after the bills are taken care of could be credited to the Sacramento Senior High School Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Dr. Sessarego brought up the matter of the time involved by the person printing the X-Ray; it was felt that an appropriate gift could be presented to that person for his efforts. (Mr. Jayes) This whole job involves hours and hours of his time and a great part of it will be after working hours. Also, John Moore, the art teacher, is responsible for a great deal of the art work - done on his own time. Perhaps he should be presented with a gift in appreciation for his efforts. Miss Johnson brought up the matter: does the public need to have the eight pages of the senior edition as a part of the souvenir copy. After some discussion of the printing of the centennial edition of the X-Ray it was felt that the 8 pages of the senior edition would not necessarily need to be a part of the souvenir edition. It was the opinion of our group that it would be better to have 2500 copies (8 pages) printed of the senior edition that could be sold to students during the school day and 5000 (8 pages) for the centennial to be sold as a souvenir copy. In this way we would have more copies available for the public.

Mrs. Millward thought the celebration should have the proper publicity so that the public understand that graduates and friends and members of the community are invited to the centennial observance on June 2.

Mrs. Blucher raised the question about getting properties for the program. This should be a sub-committee of Miss Johnson - to get someone on arrangements for the day's program.

Mr. Livingston is to contact a group of 100 to take care of expenses. It should be decided as to what amount would be asked from the 100 persons. All members of this steering committee should come to the next meeting with a tentative budget so an amount can be decided upon.

Mrs. Miles asked the question: what activities do you want? Do you want a parade, do you want it down town? We do want a parade on Friday, June 1; 6:30 PM. Mr. MacBride will write the proper letter to the city to reserve that date and time so we can put on the parade.

Mrs. Miles indicated that students talk about having a dance to finish the program. Mrs. Millward said that many classes are planning affairs, dances, etc. for that night. Perhaps it would be a better idea for classes to plan their own affairs for that evening.

Mrs. Miles asked what other activities do you want? Mr. MacBride said: the parade Friday night, class reunions, breakfast Saturday morning; centennial celebration at S.H.S. that afternoon, dinners, etc. that night.

Advise the Chamber of Commerce of the fact that we are going to have a parade and celebration on Friday and Saturday. Also the same letter to the society editor of Sacramento Bee, Sacramento Union, and convention bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Millward told this committee that her group would like to have the building at 18th and K Streets open from 2PM to 4PM for any persons interested in walking thru the building.

Dr. Sessarego felt it would be good to have store window displays the week before the observance - have Sacramento High furnish materials for the displays. Mr. MacBride is to write the Retail Merchants Association about window displays.

Since our chairman was not present the group started the meeting at 7:25 PM in the office of the principal at Sacramento Senior High School. Mr. Livingston acted as chairman of the group.

Mr. Livingston wanted to take up "old business" first. The group talked about the problem of food. Would we bring lunches - how did the committee feel about this question. The question was directed to Mr. Kassis, chairman of the food for the day. Mr. Kassis felt we need not worry about the problem of food - that there was little to be concerned about in this regard. Mr. Kassis asked if our cafeteria could be used - it was felt that we would not use the cafeteria building; it was too far from the activities. Mr. Kassis suggested a box lunch. The committee felt that was the best idea so far regarding food for the day in the event the visitors did not bring a lunch. We could have box lunches, hot dogs, soft drinks - a truck or trucks could be used in serving. Mr. Kassis will talk to two different persons regarding the food and its dale. There was no further question about food.

How about a cake? Mrs. Blucher had pictures of different types of cakes - one was large enough to serve 5000 persons - baked by Phillipp's bakery. They would, no doubt, give us a price at any time. The cake could be placed in the assembly hall. If it was left in the assembly hall, however, it would not seem a good idea to ask people to come back into the building for a piece of cake. Instead, could the cake be cut and passed out to them on the grounds? Mr. Kassis felt that people would be coming here to see their friends and not to eat. We could get a cake and have pictures taken and give the cake to students. The cake could be placed in the lobby so people could see it as they come in. The cake idea is a good one but the size is limited to our finances. The final decision of the committee was to get a cake from Phillipp's Bakery.

Minutes of Meeting

At this point of the meeting Mr. Kassis invited members of this committee to come to the pre-opening of the new Stop-N-Shop Market on Stockton Boulevard near Janssen Drive on the evening of December 6.

Mrs. Miles is writing to an outstanding student who teaches at Lowell High School - this student had been a student at Sacramento High School. She is getting information regarding what Lowell High School is doing for their centennial. Mrs. Miles met with our Sacramento High School group of students earlier in the month. They had the idea of an open house and have the older people come to see what we are doing now. She also brought up the matter of the parade in which we could have horseless carriages, old automobiles, flats, etc. All stored would be invited to have exhibits in windows for a week. No further report from Mrs. Miles.

Miss Johnson spoke about a plaque. She wrote to the Native Daughters of the Golden West and would see a certain person at a later date. In regard to a program of the day - she wanted to know what our recommendation would be regarding a program for the day. Mr. Livingston brought up the question about the time of the program - 2 PM or what time?; music before the program; Mr. MacBride to be master of ceremonies. Present plaque and later have it placed in sidewalk at 9th and M Streets. Do not want to have too long a program. Have present students participate. Develop a program so the present students can take part. Miss Johnson is working on the program; find the oldest graduate who lives in Sacramento; a few people from different years.

Sixth Meeting

Centennial Steering Committee
November 29, 1955
Minutes of Meeting

Have person who comes from greatest number of miles to attend the observance sit on platform. Tom will be master of ceremonies and introduce the speaker. It was felt that there should be a prominent member of the community, the student body president, and someone to represent the administration on the program. A prominent member of the community could be a person such as John Quincy Brown; Mr. Burkhard, City Superintendent, to represent the administration or someone delegated by him; also Mr. Burkhard to accept the plaque. Program is to be at least one hour. Also as a suggestion - Bob Mallett, former student body president, who wrote "Fight, Dragons, Fight" might be on the platform.

Mrs. Miles will work on participation of students in activities and will report in a later meeting.

Mrs. Millward said she wanted to take up certain matters with Dr. Sessarego. She explained that classes were divided into five year periods except 1900 and prior. She has appointed as chairman of each period people who are interested in the program. The death of Miss Cooledge, chairman of the 1900 to 1905 group, is a great loss to this celebration. Mrs. Millward has not yet replaced her. She plans to meet again next week for further plans. Each chairman of five year period is to have two co-chairmen for each year. There will be sub-chairmen, also, to help with program. They will be on hand in the proper room to meet people. Mrs. Millward will have another report at a later date. Signs are to be made - what is the theme? - Centennial? There will be registration sheets for use in the rooms where students meet. Name plates would be effective; they must be done uniformly by students in the room doing the job as people come in. Different colors to be used for different years.

Mr. Livingston - what would you think of copies of minutes being sent to chairmen of classes - a summary of the main points of all the minutes could be prepared to send to each chairman so he will have a better picture of the whole program. Mrs. Millward said she would prepare this summary and have copies made and then distribute them.

Mr. Livingston - What ideas do you have regarding publicity? We will have to wait for information regarding plaque, and laying of the corner-stone before we can get any publicity. Mrs. Blucher wants names of class chairmen; also she is trying to get an over-all picture and bring it before the public. She is working toward a special section in both local papers.

Mr. Livingston brought up the matter of finances for the celebration. He estimated certain amounts will probably be necessary for carrying on the work of the centennial steering committee. If 100 persons donated $10 each - a total of $1000 will be realized. The committee was in agreement with this plan.

Making a movie of the celebration was felt to be of importance for future historical fact. Perhaps McCurry could make this movie of the day.

In the absence of Mr. MacBride, chairman of steering committee, Mr. Sessarego took over the chairmanship, and called the meeting to order at 7:30 PM. He expressed a welcome to all present for attending the meeting.

He asked for reports from the members of the steering committee. Mr. Kassis, chairman of the picnic, was the c first to give a report. He said he wasn't surprised that he had been put on the committee in charge of the picnic - he should know something about foods after having spent 26 years dealing with food. We have two purposes in mind: (1) To have some food on hand for those who want it; (2) How do we go about it? Another phase of the operation is to raise money to take care of the expenses that will come about. We will need enough money to pay the bills. What is the easiest way and the best way to handle this. Perhaps we could get hamburgers to sell at 10¢; also, get extra people to serve the food. There may be many ways to go about this question but after studying the whole problem, Mr. Kassis felt it would be more efficient and satisfactory to all concerned to suggest that the Industrial Lunch Service handle our problem of feeding. They are experienced in serving food to large groups; they have 30 trucks that will be available for a Saturday - we can use all their facilities on that day. We must not overlook the health standpoint of serving food - potato salad spoils very quickly - bacteria works fast. We must have food with proper refrigeration. For all reasons concerned I believe the Industrial Lunch Service would be the best possible plan. We have on file a quotation as to what we may secure for that day:

Joint Meeting
Centennial Steering Committee

Hamburgers, hot dogs, triangle sandwiches at 25¢ each

Cold drinks and coffee at 10¢

Box lunch (2 sandwiches and salad) at 60¢ each

They will refund 10% of gross sales on food and drinks to the alumni committee.

At this time Mr. MacBride, our chairman, arrived - 7:40PM. At this time Mr. MacBride took over the meeting. He spoke about being turned down in regard to have a parade. He went to see the city manager, Bart Cavanaugh, and finally secured the approval with the information that the city would go all out for us in this regard.

Bob Livingston, chairman of finances, was called upon to give his report. He stated that originally the committee set up a budget of $1000. for the cost of printing the X-Ray, administrative expenses, class expenses, publicity, and other miscellaneous expenses for this celebration. In order to raise the $1000, individuals (100 of them) are being contacted for $10 each. Some money has already come in and we are well on the way to raise the money. We must, however, go light on the funds since they have been allocated for different segments of our plans to put on this celebration.

Mrs. Millward, chairman of classes, was next to give her report. Since she is chairman of the classes she called on different sub-chairmen to come forth and get instructions. Prior to this, however, she introduced her members of her committees. She was delighted that so many members of her committees had come to the joint meeting.

Miss Johnson, chairman of centennial observance program, gave the next report. She said the program would follow the picnic. We plan in the program to honor past principals, the oldest graduates; the Native Daughters and Native Sons will be represented. We will have student activities on the program and we will have some seriousness during the program. She asked for any questions or suggestions. Since there were no questions or suggestions we passed on to the next part of our meeting.

Mr. Sessarego, chairman of student and faculty committee, spoke about what we are going to do here at S.H.S. The current student body wants to take an active part in this program. We have certain things assigned to them and they want to do certain things. The print shop is working on the 8 page souvenir edition of the X-Ray. Signs will have to be made for classes and 4000 name plates to be made. Students will help with the registration. The choir, band or orchestra are ready to help; students want to be hosts for the day. Art students are designing posters for window displays.

Mrs. Genteman, chairman of history and secretary, was called on to give a report. It had been her plan to tell about the progress that is being made by the print shop in preparing the X-Ray - Mr. Sessarego had already spoken about this so she added that half the job was finished to this date and the other half of the job would be completed soon. She told the committee about having checked thru all the Reviews on hand (from 1905 to present day), making notes. These notes were passed on to Mr. Gothberg, teacher of journalism, as a lead for students to write about different topics for the centennial edition of the X-Ray. She also supplied the journalism class pictures that will appear in the paper. She appealed to all who were present for help in locating the oldest graduate and securing old pictures or pamphlets, or programs for use on June 2.

Mrs. Blucher, chairman of publicity, gave a report that her committee is getting organized. Information has been given to the local papers, The Sacramento Bee and The Sacramento Union - they had write-ups last week. We have good connections with these local papers. The Sacramento Bee will give a special section in June - we will have plenty of material. The Bee is coming out with their own centennial edition soon. She has written the television station here and they are very cooperative. Bill Rase will take care of radio; Mabel Pendergast KCCC, Howard Smiley Channel 3 - KCRA, Bill Comstock and Jane Hall will come out with plans for radio and publicity. She wants first hand material from committees. In addition we will have a parade.

Mrs. Miles, chairman of activities, was ready to give a report. She was happy to see some of her former students present at the meeting. In regard to the parade - Richard C. Rogers, Sutter Jr. High School faculty member, will have charge of parade. It was suggested that the older graduates of S.H.S. appear in the parade and wear the present day attire; the present students to wear the attire of the ancestors. In the parade we expect to have music, floats, S.H.S. alumni, automobiles of early days. In the actual program of the day the A'Cappella choir could appear, probably Stanley Noonan can be here; also Bob Mallett could lead a yell. The majorettes have already said they will perform. The stores will have window displays a week before the celebration. We are willing to loan materials for window displays. The Shrine, Musician's Union, and Veterans have already been contacted; the Old Time Auto Club; please give suggestions.

February 7, 1956

At this time Mr. MacBride said he felt this would be a fine affair.

Vice-Principal S.H.S.
Mr. Morley/was called on at this time - he said he felt he had a simple job to perform. His job was to try to locare former teachers. A list of former teachers has been made and about 82 of them cannot be located. For a while the list was placed in the main office with the hope that addresses could be furnished. He had the list with him and asked people present to look it over in case any of them might know an address.

At this time of the evening we stopped a short while for coffee and cake.

After coffee and cake were enjoyed the meeting was resumed. Mrs. Millward spoke to each chairman of classes with the idea of trying to determine how many visitors we would have on June 2. She had all the figures as to how many graduated over a period according to the breakdown she made in her plans. She felt the older alumni, people from 1910 back would meet in the assembly hall so they will be close to the outside and would not have to walk too much and also be accessible so others could visit with them.

Mr. MacBride felt it would be a good idea if we know as closely as possible when these breakfasts take place, advise hotels in advance that probably we would be taking all their facilities, Wednesday thru Sunday.

Mrs. Miles spoke about the reunion of the Lowell High School in S.F. She has contacted them. They are doing very much the same type of program that we plan for our observance. They are trying to raise money for it.

Mr. Dwight Stephenson spoke about some of the fellows on the former athletic teams would like to get in touch with Clarence R. Parker, forner coach (now in L.A.) and give him a big time. Keep this in mind and see if this will be culminated.

Mr. MacBride asked if there was a group of people working on this? We must know as soon as this gets under way. MEETING ADJOURNED AT 9:15PM.

NEXT MEETING WILL BE TUESDAY, March 13; 7:15PM

Following the joint meeting, the Centennial Steering Committee continued their meeting.

Mr. MacBride, our chairman started the meeting by telling us that he had talked to a Mr. Peter V. Pohlenz, campaign director of the Sacramento County Youth Employment Organization - that organization has scheduled May as Youth Employment Month and had planned June 2 as Award Day. Mr. Pohlenz thought his organization might combine with the S.H.S. centennial group on that day. It was felt, by our committee, that the centennial observance of S.H.S. was for the purpose of getting together the graduates of Sacramento High. Mr. Pohlenz asked if our observance could be moved back a week. Our date/is June 2 definitely set for the observance - no change will be made regarding that date. Mr. MacBride said he would talk to Mr. Pohlenz again.

Miss Johnson said the Native Daughters asked why we picked June 2, for the celebration.

Mr. Sessarego told the group about the selection of the place for the plaque - half way up the sidewalk on 34th Street coming into the building. We want something here at this school to indicate the 100 years, where we have had our centennial celebration. If we want a plaque at 9th and M, we should get another one. It was agreed by the committee to place the plaque as suggested above.

Miss Johnson also indicated that another group - The Historical Landmark Association was interested. Mr. MacBride said: don't try to do too much. If we need sub-committees in connection with displays, etc. appoint them. The main problem is what do we want? It was suggested that Bud Stewart could head the show case committee.

Mrs. Miles said she had some problems: (1) She needed someone from S.H.S. to work on the parade committee who can work with students to organize after the entry blanks come in, etc.; (2) Who is to contact Bob Mallett to lead yells. Mr. MacBride will do this. (3) Stanley Noonan to sing; (4) Dick Jurgens, Ronnie Kemper to some skit; (5) Should the band of C.K. McClatchy participate? - the answer was "no" - students here do not want it; (6) Do we want a parade marshall or what is your desire?; (7) Do we want the oldest graduate and the youngest graduate? Also, the youngest teacher and the oldest teacher in old time automobiles, if we find more than one.

Mr. MacBride said perhaps the auto companies could put out their fancy cars - the Ford to furnish their best; Lundstrom Motors their best; Ellsworth Haroold - trucks. Put the old folks in the new cards and the young students in the old cars. If you feel you should need more help get someone to help. Have a deadline for parade applications - May 15. Talk to the Chamber of Commerce Convention Bureau about the program of the day. May 15, will be deadline for program for the day.

Mr. MacBride to be master of ceremonies of the day

Dr. Lawson - to represent the present student body

Mr. Sessarego to accept the plaque for S.H.S.

Suggest Wm. Phleger to be guest speaker if he can be obtained

The above is part of the suggested program of the day - June 2.

Mr. Livingston will prepare a letter of acknowledgment to go out to those who have contributed toward the day's observance - Mr. MacBride will sign the letter.

Mr. Sessarego wanted to know the actual size of the stage that will be needed. Miss Johnson would contact Reg Renfree about platforms to be used as a stage. Mr. Sessarego asked how many members of the A'Cappella do you want in the concert. Do you want the orchestra in the halls - let me know how many posters for downtown windows, etc. Also, how many ushers, guides - Mr. Sessarego would like this information two weeks before the day of the program.

Bruce King, Bob Crowell, and Ledbetter could make signs. Mr. Livingston to see about outdoor signs.

Before we bring the meeting to a close Mr. MacBride said he would like a blow-by-blow report at the next meeting so we will have a good idea just what is going to take place - we want suggestions.

Mr. Richard C. Rogers (special guest - in charge of the parade)
(came to the meeting to give us information about the parade to be held on June 1)

The meeting was called to order at 7:35 PM by Chairman MacBride.

Our special guest, Mr. Rogers, was introduced. The first order of business was to hear something from him regarding the parade on June 1. It was felt that the parade should have a marshal, some police officers, councilmen, etc. It seemed appropriate to have the oldest graduate act as c marshal for the parade. Chairman MacBride suggested that the parade should be set up on the basis that we are looking for the oldest graduate and the graduate of the oldest class to be the marshal of our parade. Anyone who has graduated from any class prior to the class of 1886. The first graduate who has been found is Dr. Andrew Henderson, Sr., graduate of 1886. Have those on the city council, other officials and dignitaries, members of the city council who are graduates of S.H.S.; supervisors who are graduates of S.H.S.; past principals of S.H.S.; old timers or any other old graduates. Sheriff's Posse (Dr. Roger Daniels could be reached for this group); retired teachers who are living in Sacramento be in the parade; ancient auto club; music groups, Mather Field and McClellan Field music groups; bands from McClatchy, Grant, El Camino, and San Juan. Mr. Penman to act at S.H.S. in helping with application blanks. We have entry blanks to go out to everyone. Ellsworth Harrold to act as chairman to provide transportation and help line up for trucks. Should there be prizes or awards for floats. Yes, but we cannot have commercial floats. We could limit the type of float to be used. We want to have enough in the parade to make it a good one. How many clubs would enter or take part in the parade. Mr. Sessarego or Mr. Morley could find out about the clubs - such as Scholarship Federation, Sigma Mu - perhaps a group of clubs could arrange to enter one float; in connection with clubs perhaps 6 floats could be entered. Have a fire engine in the parade - carrying the theme "THEN AND NOW". Do we want prizes or what? Appoint Les Harger to get prizes. We do not need a reviewing stand. We could spot people along the line of march who would vote on participants in the parade for awarding prizes; these persons could meet at a certain place later and turn in votes. We should have insurance for participants in parade - in case someone is hurt. Get in touch with Bill Sim about the possibility of holding an insurance policy. This finished the parade discussion. Mr. Rogers left the meeting at this time.

Mr. Livingston reported on finances - said he would like to report that we are solvent but we are not - to date #390 had come in; our bills are more than that amount to date. However, the money continues to come in.

Mr. Sessarego brought up the question about the use of our cafeteria and taking over the feeding of that day. The supervisor of nutrition education and director of lunchrooms of the city schools had spoken to him about the possibility that it could be done by us. The unanimous feeling of the steering committee was to leave it is the capable hands of Lewis Kassis; it will be well taken care of by him as chairman of foods.

Mrs. Millward feels the years prior to 1900 and 1900 to 1905 are very important in our celebration; we hope as many as possible of that group can come. She talked about name badges - we would like the sticker type but they are too expensive. After discussion, a sample was submitted which will be songs. Dr. Lawson could speak for former principals.

For publicity Mrs. Blucher could run an item in the social column of the papers so that people can plan functions for Friday night and Saturday night. Encourage classes to have reunions.

Miss Johnson thought between the two speakers to have a group of yell leaders from three different periods; perhaps all would participate - have present student body yell leader do this. Might be a good idea to have some yells lead by Helen Mering, then the presentation of plaques, then Mr. Phleger, at the end of program - "Fight, Dragons, Fight" lead by Bob Mallett.

Mrs. Blucher gave a report on publicity to date - have had several pictures in the Bee and two stories in the papers. To have a note in social column about Dr. Henderson and Mr. Phleger.

Mr. Livingston to have a sign made to put on the grounds prior to the celebration. He will contact Bob Crowell of Foster and Kleiser. The sign will be placed out in front of S.H.S. We can do this ourselves. Mrs. Blucher will give information to Mr. Livingston as to what should go on the sign. Sign to be ready by April 20.

Mr. Sessarego stressed the fact that he must have lists of sighs needed, number of students needed at an early date.

Mr. Sessarego, Mrs. Millward, Mrs.Blucher would decide what is to be on plaques.

Meeting adjourned at 10:30 PM. Next meeting to be Tuesday, April 10; 7:15 PM.

NEXT MEETING - Thursday, April 26

Mr. Albert J. Sessarego
Mr. Robt. D. Livingston
Mrs. Rose Millward
Mrs. Jewel Blucher
Mrs. Evelyn Miles
Miss Carolyn Johnson
Mrs. Frances Genteman

Absent: Mr. Lewis Kassis

Meeting was called to order at 7:30 by Chairman MacBride. Instead of having the minutes of the eighth meeting read, Chairman MacBride said we would start with the minutes and go over each point as it comes in the minutes. This will be old business.

The first was about the parade. Mrs. Miles said she did not think that Dr. Henderson would be able to be in the parade. We could still consider him as marshal of the parade. We could have a co-marshal - one or more. When a story comes out in the local paper that we want to find graduates of years prior to 1895 to be a marshal in the parade, many people may respond. From that group someone can be picked to sit on the stage the next day during our program. Mrs. Blucher will put an add in the paper in connection with this plan.

The City Council has accepted to participate in the parade and the County Supervisors also; the Mayor has accepted. Letters have been sent out to past presidents, old timers, old graduates - answers are forthcoming.

Block "S" Society to have a float. Retired teachers who are living in Sacramento will participate.

Teachers with 35 to 40 years of service to be in cars; teachers with 30 to 35 years of service (retired or not retired) to be in cars.

The final thought on this is that all teachers with over thirty years of service, regardless of whether or not they are retired, should ride together in cars. Have someone (students) carry a banner ahead of the teachers'

th Meeting cars indicating "The Teachers are Here".

We need plenty of music in the parade; the police, firemen and trucks will be in the parade.

Les Harger did not want to take the responsibility of getting prizes. He did not feel that he wanted to ask someone for a prize because of the fact that he is in business.

Mr. MacBride to ask three firms for trophies:

Harry Heath

Les Harger

Ed. Grebitus

someone else

Trophies will be as follows: (for entries in parade)

one as a sweepstakes

one for second best

one for third best

Mr. MacBride indicated that we should have insurance for our celebration - one that will cover the whole affair. Perhaps a rider could be put on the insurance policy that the school now holds. We must have insurance - we cannot afford to sponsor this type of celebration and parade without coverage.

Mr. Sessarego asked when could we have the trucks to be used as floats? Can they be delivered on Deocration Day, May 30, so they can be decorated?

Judges for the parade (we will not have a stand - the judges will be in different areas and meet later to confer). The proposed judges can be:

Hack Applequist, Will C. Wright, H. H. Hendren, Henry Sleeper, Frank MacBride, Helen Mering, Bob Breuner.

Also, we plan to give certificates of award to all who participate in

CENTENNIAL STEERING COMMITTEE
Minutes of Meeting

the parade by entering floats, etc. The certificates will be signed by chairman of centennial committee and the chairman of the parade.

Mr. Livingston reported that we have money on hand. 72 former students have responded and we now have $770. We sent out 116 letters - 72 answered.

It was indicated that we need expenses for the parade - for signs. We need signs for stores. Mr. MacBride said Bud Stewart is the right man for window displays; Howard Smiley for radio. Silk screening of signs is expensive but is a good method. We need $150 for signs for parade; $100 for signs for windows. Print arm bands for all workers to be worn on June 2. They can be printed in our print shop using inexpensive material. Mrs. Millward needs $150 for butcher paper for signs to be placed over the doors of the rooms; $100 for arrangements with classes.

Miss Johnson talked about the program. Mr. Sessarego indicated that the platform will not cost anything; the school department will build the platform. We will have to pay for bunting. Miss Johnson will check with Les Harger (who was to check on loud speaking equipment for the day) to find out if he had done anything about it yet. We felt that Joe Semoni (former graduate) could be contacted in regard to this service if Les Harger has not already made arrangements elsewhere. $50 is needed for this service - an estimate.

Mrs. Didion is going to get a boulder for our p laque to be placed on our grounds. Teichert to bring it down and place it where we want it.

Fred Carnie to be contacted about a top for the covering of the platform.

Mrs. Genteman said she would need about $10 for stamps, etc.

Mr. Sessarego - money needed in connection with his responsibilities - $100.

Mrs. Blucher - $200 for a cake.

CENTENNIAL STEERING COMMITTEE
Minutes of Meeting

April 10, 1956

Cost of X-Ray souvenir edition the day of the celebration - different prices were talked about - we will decide about that at another meeting; the charge to be made for the purchase of a copy the day of the celebration.

Name plates for teachers, old timers - these have been made in our print shop and have been put away for safekeeping. We also have the pencils to be used in writing names, etc. on name plates. Mrs. Millward spoke about the rooms the classes plan to use that day. All meeting to be held on the main floor - includes assembly hall and pavilion.

Miss Johnson asked Mr. MacBride if he had heard from anyone who is to be on the program; he had not.

The topic to give Dr. Lawson to speak on: "Century of Achievement" - for Mr. Phleger: "The Role of Education in the World Today" - "Secondary Education in the World Today" - "World Affairs" - "What does the World Offer to Graduates of Today".

After discussion it was decided to have Dr. Lawson speak on: "Century of Achievement" and Mr. Phleger to speak on: "Building a Better World Thru Education".

For a TV program should we have a group appear - some of our members appearing for five minutes for general discussion; Mr. MacBride and Mr. Kassis could appear. We can get a TV program but must say what we want. Bill Comstock is working on a story about people who are prominent citizens.

Meeting adjourned at 10:15 - next meeting on Thursday, April 26, at 7:15 PM.

Mrs. Frances Genteman

The meeting was called to order by Chairman MacBride at 7:40 PM. Rather than reading the minutes of the ninth meeting let us look over the minutes and see what has been undone.

The first matter was in regard to the parade. Mrs. Miles said there had been some difficulty with the musician's union. All would be o.k. if we don't have any commercial group in the parade. Mr. MacBride has information about a cable car. It was learned from Helen Mering that Breuner's have purchased a cable car that could be used in the parade and the next day on the grounds - We would be authorized by Breuner's to use. There will be no advertisment on the outside or cards inside except the small add type cards that would normally be inside a car of this kind. The final thought on this was that the cable car is being donated by the Breuner sons, (Wallace, Louis, Richard, Clarence, Robert) who are graduated of Sacramento High School.

Mr. MacBride asked if we had anything further on Dr. Henderson. He is ill - we cannot, under the circumstances, build anything around him. Get publicity on TV in connection with getting older persons for the parade. Get Mrs. Lucy Stickey Duncan, 1893 graduate, on the program and bring up the fact that we are trying to reach someone prior to that date. Mrs. Blucher said Mrs. Mabel Pendergast will arrange for as much as a half hour program. Perhaps we could appear on Mr. Osenbaugh's half-hour program(school program); hes a program each week. Mrs. Blcher will contact Mrs. Duncan about appearing on a program.

Tenth Meeting

CENTENNIAL STEERING COMMITTEE
Minutes of Meeting
April 26, 1956

Mrs. Millward said she had lists of people 1895 and back to be used in selecting a marshal. The marshal and co-marshals are to be graduates of 1895 or earlier.

Teachers from 35 to 40 years and 30 to 35 to ride in parade. Mrs. Miles felt we should limit those in the parade to persons who had most of their years at S.H.S. Mrs. Blucher has had a news item in the local paper about marshals for the parade. From the group in the parade someone can be selected to sit on the stage the day of the program.

In the last week before the celebration have a story in the paper about someone being selected to sit on the stage during the day. Mrs. Miles gave a report about the entries in the parade; 20 floats will be in the parade. We must have drivers for the floats - Mr. Sessarego will ask for volunteers from the faculty members. The parade will go west on K from 13th to 6th street - over to J and out J to 13th and disband. The parade will be at 6:30 PM; participants are being asked to assemble at 5:30 PM. Perhaps we should have two banners for parade - one: "Sacramento Senior High School Centennial"; the other - - - -

Mr. Livingston gave us information about insurance. He talked to Bill Sim; after much consideration it was felt that it would not be the best plan to attempt to have a policy that would be a rider on the policy held by the school department; there is too much involved in this plan. The insurance Co. would like to know how many people will participate, how many chairs on our platform, how many floats in parade, and many other questions. Mr. Kassis at this point phoned Norman Quillinan who writes the school policy. Mr. Quillinan pointed out that it is possible that we might be covered in some respects in the school policy and not in other ways. We couldn't count on this but we should have an insurance policy in any event. Mr. MacBride pointed out that if anything happened the ones putting on the program would be liable - we would not be able to meet this problem. It was decided that Mr. Livingston would again contact Bill Sim and have him continue checking with companies. We must, however, give him certain information regarding the two affairs.

Mr. Livingston indicated 82 persons had responded to letters sent out - we now have $870 - $479 paid out to date.

Dick Mier has been selected for window displays downtown. We should have a sign in Hales' window right now. Howard Smiley is working on plans for us on TV.

Signs for Mrs. Miles are being taken care of by Mr. Sessarego. Miss Johnson said Les Harger has contacted Harry Day about loud speaking equipment for the day - it would cost $25.00. If the Association Oil Company could have a sign on the outside of the truck it would not cost us anything. We were all in favor of this plan. We are to have no acknowledgments on the program - too many would be involved. Do we want cushions to sit on - we voted pro and con; voted con on this. How do you plan to control the 700 seats for persons prior to 1910? Mr. Sessarego indicated the school carpenter will build the platform - a 10 x 18 foot size; to take care of 13 chairs; stairs on one corner, wide aisle in front, iron posts to hold canvas top; 3 feet off the ground. There will be a railing, aisle down the middle and aisle on each side.

Mr. Kassis gave a report on foods (the man from the Industrial Lunch Service was supposed to come to meeting but did not appear). Mr. Kassis felt the cafeteria should also be opened up.

Sale price of X-Ray to be decided at a later date.

Mrs. Millward talked about her plans of classes.

If we get the cable car for the parade, the centennial steering committee is to ride in it at the beginning of the parade.

Mrs. Blucher gave a report about publicity - seven items have appeared in the local paper. Mrs. Blucher and Mr. Sessarego are to appear on KFRC on the breakfast hour (7:15 to 7:30) on May 9, in San Francisco with

Mr. MacBride selected some of the members of the steering committee (Mrs. Miles, Miss Johnson, Mrs. Blucher, Mrs. Millward, Mr. Sessarego) to meet with him for luncheon in the Capitol Building, room 6011 on Monday, May 7, for the purpose of drawing up a definite plan of action for June 2 - what will take place and when.

CENTENNIAL STEERING COMMITTEE
Minutes of Meeting

The meeting was called to order by Chairman MacBride at 7:40 p.m. Called on Mr. Livingston to report on finances. To date 96 persons had responded in regard to money received.

Mrs. Blucher then reported that we have two spots on TV - May 15, and May 27. On May 15, Mr. MacBride will appear; the May 27, program to be planned later. Mr. MacBride said he had seen Murle Schreck and thought he had suggested a fine idea. Get a picture of the City Council in a meeting and have the Mayor declare that this is Sacramento High School's birthday. Have the council members wearing rooters caps and sweaters when picture is taken.

Mr. MacBride then brought up the matter of the main speaker of the day - Herman Phleger. He wondered if we were under any obligation to do anything socially for Mr. Phleger while he was here; should we invite the Governor. Miss Johnson reported that plans to entertain him by other persons were being made - in that event we would not have opportunity to do that since he plans to be here for just the one day and, of course, will be with his sister.

The program is to start at 1:15 p.m. and will end at 2:30 p.m. Have the special guests meet in room 1 and take them to the cafeteria for lunch in the dining room for teachers. This was discussed at length. Mr. MacBride said he planned to appoint Archie Mull as a committee of one to take charge of Herman Phleger and see that he was taken care of in all respects. It was felt that we should have one person in charge of taking care of all persons who are to sit on platform that day during the program. Dorothy Hullin was chosen as that person (she may appoint her own committee if she wishes). She will meet the people in the foyer; she will work with Miss Johnson regarding her plans.

Mr. Sessarego said he would reserve the whole circle at the south end of the building for those who are to be on the program. We discussed further about the lunch; some felt the invited guests would rather mingle among their own classmates. The final decision was to give them each a lunch ticket and then they can do as they wish regarding lunch; be on their own.

Fred Carnie was contacted about the awning for the top of stage. He will work with our carpenter regarding this matter.

Miss Johnson gave the list of names of those who are to sit on the platform; it was decided that only two of the members from the oldest graduating class would be the ones to sit on the stage. The plaque for our grounds should be in the rock out front so people can see it and mentioning it will be part of the program; the second plaque will be presented on the stage and will be placed in the sidewalk at 9th and M at a later date.

Miss Johnson asked how can we take care of the calls coming in asking what classes are having reunions. This was discussed at length. We are all getting calls about this. Mr. MacBride thought we could perhaps have a special phone and hire someone to give the answers. No direction action was taken - this would expensive and no doubt we would all still gets calls directed to us about reunions - there are not many classes having any type of special parties, etc. at this time.

Mr. Kassis came in about this time. He talked more about having someone or many taking pictures on the grounds. They could be sold at a very ~~small profit~~ (perhaps 50¢ could be charged). The McCurry son, Robert, might be willing to do this; line up many to do this (polaroid pictures).

eventh Meeting

CENTENNIAL STEERING COMMITTEE
Minutes of Meeting
May 10, 1956

All members of the committee favored the picture taking; it would be nice to have your picture taken with old friends. Mr. Sessarego mentioned that S.H.S. has a photography class. Perhaps 10 or 12 of the boys could do this; having someone in charge; one of the McCurry boys could work with the students on this project; we could rent equipment and buy the necessary supplies.

Mr. Livingston reported again about insurance. He said Bill Sim had contacted the insurance company and sent to them information they wanted in order to make some bid on this. He will call Bill on this.

We are to get a permit from the superintendent's office to have a custodian on duty for two hours on May 30, so the committee in charge of classes can look at the rooms assigned. Mrs. Genteman will request such a permit.

A study is being made (Bill Comstock has put in a great deal of time) about people who have made good since graduation. It was felt that on June 2, this list could be posted - it should have a great deal of interest. Mr. Morley has s ent out more than 100 letters to former teachers. They may be found in the inner court or the library.

Mr. Sessarego went to art room and got a sample of the silk screen signs being made - they are to be placed in windows about town.

Elmer Harrold is having difficulty lining up trucks for our use; many firms don't want to get along without them for that many days and the firms say we can have them if they are not being used. Perhaps trucks can be secured from construction companies. Ask present students to find out if they can get trucks - perhaps some of their parents have trucks.

Mr. Sessarego asked how we wanted to distribute the signs that are being made - tentatively the plan is this:

Miss Johnson - North Sacramento Area, L to J Sts (9th to 12th) downtown - 50
Mr. MacBride, Country Club Center and downtown - 50
Mr. Kassis - grocery stores - 50
Mrs. Miles - restaurants - 50

Present: Mr. Thos. J. MacBride, Chairman
Mr. Robt. D. Livingston
Mr. Lewis Kassis
Mrs. Rose Millward
Miss Carolyn Johnson
Mrs. Jewel Blucher
Mrs. Evelyn Miles
Mrs. Frances Genteman Absent: Mr. Albert J. Sessarego

Meeting called to order by Mr. MacBride at 7:35 p.m. Mr. Kassis was called upon to give a report regarding the picnic lunch program as planned. He brought Mr. Johnson, Industrial Lunch Service, to the meeting to tell us about the plan of serving lunch that day. Mr. Johnson has added ice cream and candy to the contract. He plans to have 5 trucks on the grounds; earlier in the evening Mr. Kassis, Mr. Johnson, and Carolyn Johnson went out on the grounds to check on the ground space, etc. Mr. Johnson indicated that if the truck did not seem to be in the right place all they had to do was move it to another location. He assured us that with the five trucks and the cafeteria open he could handle the crowd for the day. He mentioned the fact that he is to be at the McClellan Field for open house and may have to take care of 60,000 people.

Mr. Johnson left the meeting and Miss Johnson brought up the question of "should we furnish corsages to our honored ladies who will sit on the stage. After discussion it was decided that we would furnish a corsage for: the two oldest lady graduates and the member of the Native Daughters who will present the plaque - total of three corsages. The cable car was the next point of discussion - who should ride in the car - 32 can be accommodated and there are only 9 members of our committee. It was decided that the steering committee members, the members of the 5 year periods, committee members of Miss Johnson and Mrs. Blucher should ride - the cable car can take care of these persons. Miss Johnson notified the committee that Rev. VanZee has sent his acceptance that he will give the invocation during our program on June 2.

Mr. MacBride said John Q. Brown will act as escort for Mr. Phleger that day.

Mr. Livingston reported we had 100 members and our quota of finances had been reached. He reported that Bill Sim, who was contacted about insurance, had sent him an estimate on insurance for our celebration. After the original premium had been quoted it was cut in half by Bernard Gallagher, former graduate of S.H.S. Perhaps the amounts for insurance will be increased if we get such a good rate - we should have a general comprehensive type of insurance as we want to be fully covered.

Mrs. Blucher reported that Dick Mier is contacting the stores for window space to be decorated. We have two more spots on TV - one for May 18 on KCCC. She also has radio spots.

Mr. Kassis reported he secured a fire truck for the parade - from Leroy Deise.

Mrs. Millward reported that everything was going along nicely in regard to classes. She said the PTA had agreed to serve coffee in the assembly hall that day to honor the older graduates.

Mrs. Miles made a report on the parade and handed out the first draft of the line-up. She wanted suggestions, etc. She informed us that a Chinese group from Sacramento was going to S.F. and that they may secure for S.H.S. a dragon (it depends upon the condition of the dragon whether or not it would be of any use to us to keep). This is not for publication, however. Mrs. Miles also asked if she could plan to give the honored teachers, riding in the parade, a corsage; this had the committee's approval; about 30 of them would be needed. Also she needs crepe paper to decorate the cars of teachers and marshals.

Meeting adjourned at 9:15 p.m.

SUBJECT: Meeting to make final plans for Centennial Observance

FROM: Dr. Gerald Smith, Chairman of S.H.S. Committee

Plans for student participation in the Centennial Parade on June 1, and the Observance at the school on June 2, must now be put into detailed form since there are but two weeks remaining until June 1, and 2.

A meeting of the following personnel is therefore being called for Tuesday evening, May 22, in room 83, at 7:30. If you cannot come, please be sure to have a representative (or substitute) there, for it is probable that we will not meet again, and the job of this group is most vital to the success of the Celebration. Coffee and refreshments will be served - fee 10¢.

Dr. Albert J. Sessarego - Centennial Steering Committee
Mr. Aubrey Penman - Parade Chairman, S.H.S.

Mr. Dick Rogers - Parade Chairman, General

Dr. Gerald Smith - S.H.S. Chairman, General

Mrs. Peggy Keller - S.H.S. Committee

Mr. Richard Clark - S.H.S. Committee

NEXT MEETING (final meeting) - Wednesday, June 6

Present: Mr. Thos. J. MacBride, Chairman
Mr. Robt. D. Livingston
Mr. Lewis Kassis
Mrs. Rose Millward
Miss Carolyn Johnson
Mrs. Jewel Blucher
Mrs. Evelyn Miles
Mrs. Frances Genteman
Dr. Albert J. Sessarego

Guest: Miss Dorothy Hullin

Meeting called to order by Mr. MacBride at 7:35.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Blucher telling us about a planned TV program for Sunday, May 27 - Channel 3; 12:30 p.m. Miss Carolyn Wenzel will be on the program with Bill Comstock and Mr. Jensen. She also indicated the cake would be here this next week.

Mr. Livingston gave a report of finances - the Committee of One Hundred has been completed and names have appeared in the local paper (The Sacramento Union). He also indicated that proper insurance for our protection has been decided upon. He will check with Dr. Sessarego about the control of selling the X-Ray that day.

Mrs. Miles reported 77 entries in the parade and plans are now in completion for the parade. Committee voted to compensate the Portland Group for appearing in the parade - the vote carried. They will receive an appropriate trophy - engraved.

Dr. Sessarego brought up the matter of having officers on the grounds that day - Mr. MacBride is to phone the Chief of Police about this matter. Dr. Sessarego also reported that pictures will be taken along the line of march; they will be colored pictures until it gets too dark to take them.

Miss Johnson felt we should compensate the Minister for coming from Nevada to give the invocation - we voted to give him a check for $25.00.

We talked at great length about the entire centennial celebration. It was suggested that all members of this committee ride in the cable car in costume.

Meeting adjourned 10:35 p.m.

That will serve as a memory to all of us of a year that was filled with happiness and anticipation to bring about reunions and renewing of friendships of "school days" - we feel it was a huge success; a happy day was had by all.

The Centennial Steering Committee honored me during the evening by presenting me with jewelry and a leather purse.

I was happy and proud to be remembered in such a nice way by such a grand group of friends.

The memory of having associated with this group will be with me forever.

CENTENNIAL OBSERVANCE OF SACRAMENTO
SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

Nov. 8, 1955
By: F. Genteman
Secy. S.H.S.

I will continue to search thru Reviews, etc. to obtain information which will be of value in writing articles for the Centennial copy of the X-Ray to be printed for use next June.

Up to this date (and I shall continue) I have found the following which may be used by students. I am writing this in an outline form. I indicate where I located the information so that if students are assigned certain phases of this list they may go deeper into the source of information.

LOCATIONS OF SACRAMENTO
SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

1st - In a school house on M Street between 8th and 9th Streets with J. M. Howe, as principal, (39 students enrolled) - Sept. 1, 1856.

2d - Moved to 5th and K Street - early in 1858.

3d - Moved to 6th and L Street - Oct. 1860 (the high school used part of the Franklin Grammar School Building).

4th - Moved to 7th and G Streets - July 1865 ×

5th - A high school building was built on the northeast corner of 9th and M Streets - moved into building on Jan. 1, 1877.

6th - Moved to 18th and K Streets (now the Sutter Jr. High School Building) in 1909 - in this building until 1924.

7th - Moved to present location, 34th and Y Streets in the Fall of 1924.

First graduating class was in the year 1864 - 2 women

Largest classes to graduate from Sacramento Senior High School

June 1933 Class - 691 students

Good picture of Sacramento Senior High School building at 18th and K Streets is in June 1916 Review; also one in Review of 1909; also one in 1940 copy of Sacramento Union.

Good picture of Sacramento High School (first high school building at 9th and M) is in 1940 copy of Sacramento Union.

See Frances Genteman about these pictures when ready.

Present plant of Sacramento Senior High School:

cost of building originally built $1,225,000.00

32 acres in the tract of land of S.H.S.

occupied by S.H.S. beginning the summer of 1924

The Sacramento Junior College occupied the west part of the building during the year 1923-1924, and was also in the building (another part of the building for 1924-1925 when they moved to their own building).

New Auditorium - finished for occupancy - May 29, 1940 (seats 1464 - at cost of $160,700

New Girls' Gym. Annex - finished and moved into, the Fall of 1939

New Pavilion (Boys gymnasium) - cost $564,724.00
Moved into - Jan. 28, 1952

New Cafeteria - cost $162,700.00 - ready to use: Jan. 3, 1951

Student control put into practice first time in S.H.S. in 1913 - Review of 1918 indicates the plan failed.
Write up about student control in 1915 Review - page 52 (January).

At one time Sacramento High had a Hiking Club - indicated in 1915 Review (January).

Sacramento High in CAUSEWAY PARADE - write up in 1916 Review (June copy, page 76.
We have some pictures also.

Plans are progressing favorably for the Centennial Observance on June 2, of the founding of Sacramento Senior High School. A Steering Committee, with Thomas J. MacBride as Chairman and Dr. Albert J. Sessarego as Advisor, has been working for the past ten months to develop a program which will commemorate in an appropriate manner the establishment of the second high school in California.

Recently one of our oldest living graduates, Mr. C. M. Goethe, forwarded a contribution to assist in defraying expenses since school funds are not available for this purpose. It was decided that this gesture would form the nucleus of a Committee of One Hundred with each member contributing ten dollars toward the estimated cost of the event.

You have been recommended to become a participant in this sponsoring group. If you desire to be a member of the Committee of One Hundred whose efforts will be recognized, we will appreciate your making the remittance payable to "Sacramento Senior High School Centennial Fund" and mailing it in the enclosed envelope. In addition to your financial support we solicit your suggestions to assist the Steering Committee and your cooperation in publicizing the Centennial Observance.

Yours very truly,

To the Officers and Members of the Native Daughters of the Golden West:

The Sacramento Senior High School is celebrating its One-Hundredth Anniversary this year, the school having been founded in 1856. Our State was still very young in that year, and our secondary facilities were in their very beginnings. This community was conscious of the need for advanced studies for its children even in the busy days of the early West. Our research indicates that the Sacramento Senior High School is the second oldest high school in California, it being two weeks younger than Lowell High School of San Francisco. Actually, we cannot find a record of the date our school was founded. The minutes of our Board of Education indicate the "addition to the curriculum" of several subjects in September 1856, so we have taken this as our founding date.

We have observed our Centennial in many ways this year, including using the Centennial theme in our Commencements, our newspapers, yearbook, and music concerts. We are having an extensive parade in downtown Sacramento on the evening of Friday, June 1, and a big reunion of all alumni and friends at the school on Saturday, June 2, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In the ceremonies on June 2, your organization is taking a leading part, including the presentation of a commemorative bronze plaque set in a granite block, to be located on the front lawn of our school.

We cordially invite all members of your organization to share with us our observances. We are very appreciative for the interest your organization has shown in our Centennial, and we are deeply grateful for the commemorative plaque and for your participation in the ceremonies on June 2.

Sincerely yours,

Albert J. Sessarego

The year 1956 marks the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Sacramento Senior High School. Plans for the observance of this significant event have been virtually completed, the work having been undertaken by a Centennial Steering Committee (of alumni) one year ago this month.

The anniversary will be commemorated by several events, the most important of which are a parade of student body and alumni groups downtown on the evening of June 1, 1956 (6:30 p.m.), and reunions, presentation to the school district of a suitable plaque by the Native Sons of the Golden West and the Native Daughters of the Golden West, a picnic, band concert, and speeches, at the school on June 2.

The Parade Chairman of the Centennial Steering Committee has indicated that the parade is now organized. There will be several bands, drill teams, alumni groups, student and alumni floats, marching units, caravans of cars which will be occupied by members of the City Council, Board of Supervisors, retired teachers, and others. We should like to have members of the Board of Education, the Superintendent, the Deputy Superintendent, and the Assistant Superintendents, and the Business Manager of the Sacramento City Unified School District ride in the parade and thus enable the community to pay honor to them for their service. We are inviting all - members of the Board and the Superintendent's immediate staff of five, by separate letter. Transportation will be furnished and all other necessary arrangements will be made by the Parade Chairman. May we have the pleasure of your company on this occasion?

Sincerely yours,

Thomas J. MacBride
Chairman, Centennial Steering Committee

Trucks should be available for decorating by 3:00 p.m. Thursday May 31. Decorating should be completed by 5:00 p.m. Friday so that the trucks may be moved to the downtown area.

Following the parade the floats are to be brought back to the school and parked in the area between the auto shops and the pavillion. They will be on display Saturday, June 2. Each class or club sponsor will be responsible for the dismantling of their float by 3:00 p.m. Saturday.

Each will be given a number when it arrives Thursday. Each club will have a corresponding number. This will be your line up number in the parade. Please decorate only the truck which corresponds to your parade placement number.

Parade Tonight Will Kick Off Sacramento High Anniversary

SACRAMENTO HIGH SCHOOL'S two-day 100th birthday celebration will be kicked off today with a downtown parade at 6:30 P. M., and climaxed tomorrow by an open house-picnic starting at 10 A. M. on the campus at 34th and Y Streets.

The parade, which numbers 77 entries and 23 floats, will include students and hundreds of alumni. The theme will contrast Sacramento High "then and now."

Topping the bands will be the Portland Chapter Drum and Bugle Corps of the International Footprinters Association, a crack marching unit of six-footers which is undefeated in 17 years of competition.

THE ROUTE of march will start at 13th and K Streets, go down K to Sixth Street, then return along J to 13th Street, according to Mrs. Evelyn Miles, Centennial Activities Chairman and Richard Rogers, parade chairman.

The Centennial Steering Committee will ride on a motorized San Francisco cable car loaned by Clarence and Robert Breuner, both SHS alumni.

Parade marshals will be graduates of the years 1885 through 1895. They will be followed in the parade by former SHS teachers who served a total of more than 600 years teaching at the school.

Highlights of the parade will include an Alumni Band directed by Sam Lunetta, horseless carriages, Sheriff's Posse, and a pom pom drill team of women graduates. Also performing will be the Sixth Army Bagpipe Band, a combined junior high school band, and the McClatchy High Band.

TOMORROW, class reunions will be held from 10 A. M. to noon in specially designated rooms and areas on the campus. A picnic lunch, with sandwiches and refreshments available, will be served on the playing field and in the cafeteria from 11 A. M. to 1:30 P. M.

Herman Phleger, class of 1908, legal adviser to the U. S. State Department, will be the chief speaker at a convention starting at 1:30 P. M. on the Girls Athletic Field.

Other speakers will include Thomas J. MacBride, master of ceremonies; F. Melvyn Lawson, deputy superintendent of city schools; and Albert J. Sessarego, principal.

THE SHS A Cappella Choir, directed by Marie Stebbins, and band, directed by Aubrey Penman, will present selections. Centennial plaques will be presented by Miss Stebbins and Philip C. Wilkins, representing the Native Daughters and Native Sons.

William Comstock, class of 1933, and a group of students will demonstrate school cheers through the years.

The entire celebration, in the planning stages for months, is expected to attract between 5,000 and 10,000 alumni and friends to the school grounds. There have been nearly 25,000 graduates since classes opened September 1, 1856.

THE STEERING Committee includes MacBride, chairman; Mrs. Lawrence Blucher, Mrs. Frances Genteman, Carolyn Johnson, Lewis Kassis, Robert D. Livingston, Mrs. Walter Miles, Mrs. Meredith M. Millward, and Sessarego.

Duncan Invites Public To Centennial

LOUNGING COMFORTABLY against the bill board donated by Foster and Kleiser are senior class presidents Frank Ramirez and Frank Morgan.

Dressed in a purple and white turtle-neck sweater and a Sac High beanie, Duncan, the traditional Dragon, snarls an invitation for everyone to attend Sacramento High's Centennial get-together, which is to be Saturday, June 2.

The billboard, donated by Foster and Kleiser, was set up on May 1 with the help of Dr. Sessarego. It will decorate the lawn in front of Room 1 until the Centennial celebration comes to a close.

Shown holding the sign up are senior class presidents Frank Ramirez and Frank Morgan. "We expect everyone to attend the anniversary reunion and have a great time," they expresed. "The festivities will begin on June 1 and close with the Centennial Ball on June 2," they added.

This large sign donated by Foster and Kleiser of Sacramento to advertise our centennial observance - as it appeared in our weekly newspaper - the X-Ray.

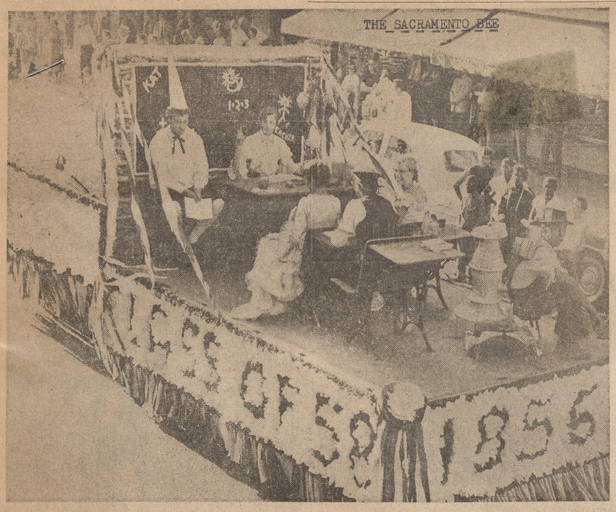
THE SACRAMENTO BEE



SHS Centennial Fete Moves Into High Gear

By Ed Dolan

The Sacramento High School centennial celebration took on official dignity on the school grounds today, following last night's riot of color and fun as the 100th anniversary party started off with a downtown parade. And of course, the predominant colors were purple and white—the colors of the school whose birthday is being observed.

Sacramento High could well be proud of the showing made by her sons and daughters. There were people both old and young, but they all had one thing in common — they were graduates of Sacramento High School or students who will one day become alumni of the 100 year old institution.

70 Units

More than 70 separate units were in the hour long parade and thousands of spectators lined K and J Streets in the early evening sunshine to wish the school and its former students a happy anniversary.

There were bands, floats, marching units, color guards, dignitaries, teachers, students and all the rest that go to make up a parade.

The theme was Then And Now and the floats depicted scenes from yesteryear as well as the most modern. Judges studied the colorful entries and trophies were to be awarded at today's observance at the school.

There were old cars and old families. The names of many of the graduates read like a who's who of prominent citizens of the community.

Escort Of Graduates

The Sacramento Police Department escorts were graduates of Sacramento High. So, too, were the firemen who drove both an old time fire truck and one of the city's most modern.

The grand marshals for the parade were graduated from the high school before 1895. They rode in cars at the head of the line of march.

Also riding near the head of the parade were county and

Many Bands

The bands were many. There were both the senior and junior bands from Sacramento High School and those from the C. K. McClatchy High School which turned out to wish their older cross town rivals a happy anniversary.

There also were the 6th Army Bagpipe Band from San Francisco and the noted drum and bugle corps of the Portland Chapter of the International Footprinters Association.

Not the least was a band of only recent origin. It was composed entirely of former graduates of Sacramento High.

The uniformed marching units included the reserve officer training corps units from both the Sacramento and the C. K. McClatchy High Schools and the Sacramento Signal Corps Drill Team. In addition there were high stepping majorets, pom pom girls and high school drill teams.

Today's Program

The program on the school grounds today started this morning with the raising of a Flag which has flown over the nation's capitol in Washington, DC. It was sent to the school as an anniversary gift by United States Senator Thomas H. Kuchel.

At 10 o'clock this morning the alumni began gathering at the school to register in special rooms set aside for each class.

The school was decorated with displays of old pictures and reviews. In the main hallway was a huge birthday cake baked by Julius Phillip, a graduate of the school.

At noon a picnic lunch was served on the school athletic grounds and a luncheon in the school cafeteria.

Phleger To Speak

The afternoon program was highlighted by an address by Herman Phleger, who was graduated from the high school in 1908 and is now a legal adviser in the state department in Washington, DC.

Also on the program were Assemblyman Thomas J. MacBride, the general chairman for the centennial; F. Melvyn Lawson, deputy superintendent of city schools, and Albert J. Sessarego, principal of the high school.

Many of the individual classes held reunions at breakfasts this morning and others have dinners planned for tonight.

Miss Belle Cooledge

A Tribute

1900"

June 1, 1947

Miss Belle Cooledge, Vice-President
Sacramento College
Sacramento, California

Dear Miss Cooledge:

At a regular meeting of the Board of Education held Monday night, April 21, 1947, your resignation as Vice-President of the Sacramento College was accepted, effective as of June 30, 1947.

The Board of Education directed me to express their appreciation for the many years of excellent and faithful service to the Department and accepted your resignation with sincere regret.

Your career in Sacramento stands as an enduring monument to the highest and best in women's educational leadership.

Sincerely, Dr. James F. Bursch
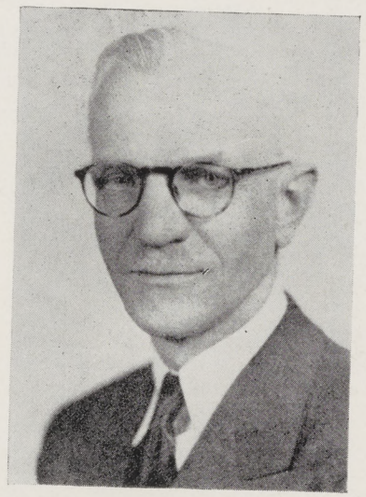
Superintendent

Tribute to

George C. Jensen



I have never met a person with a quicker and more penetrating mind than George Jensen. This type of mind is sometimes intolerant and impatient with others to the point of disruption of conferences. Not so in this case. Careful consideration is given to details that weave themselves into the whole. Mr. Jensen is an outstanding conference leader and recorder of facts developed in conferences.

He is a splendid administrator and has the ability to stimulate others to action, due to his force and logic of presentation. Comparisons are never good, but suffice it to say that probably there has never been a member of the Sacramento School Staff with greater powers of public address of the forensic and even of the elocution type than Mr. Jensen. His influence has been widespread in the community as it has been in the Schools.

We all wish you health and happiness, Mr. Jensen, upon your retirement from your strenuous duties in the Schools. We know your philosophy of life is sound, and adjustment will be natural.

Phleger Appointed To World Court

Herman Phleger, San Francisco attorney and a native of Sacramento, yesterday received confirmation by President Eisenhower of his appointment as United States representative on the Permanent Court of International Arbitration.

The court assists in the settlement of disputes between nations. It was set up under the Hague Convention. Phleger is a graduate of Sacramento schools and is a member of the San Francisco law firm of Brobeck, Phleger and Harrison.

Steam whistles for locomotives were invented in 1833 because few farmers could hear the tin whistles then used in time to get their cows off the track.

Jackson, Patterson or Moore happens to become the No. 1 contender.

The executive committee said that the next NBA ratings would be issued June 1. The committee voted that hereafter ratings will be issued monthly, instead of quarterly, and contenders will be ranked by number. In the past, the NBA has listed a champion, then followed with logical contenders and outstanding boxers.

EARLY IN the 1900s a little girl in pig-tails and wearing a dress long enough to sweep the sidewalks as she rustled down the street, hiding beneath the folds ankle-length button shoes, left her home in Sutter Creek to enrol as a beginning student at Sacramento High School at Ninth and M Streets.

That same little girl went on to University of California to major in chemistry and return to Sacramento High School in 1912 as a teacher. After 35 years of service in the local schools, she retires from the department next June as vice-president of Sacramento College. She is Miss Belle Cooledge.

Those were the days, she says, when ostrich feathers adorned hats, watches were pinned on suit lapels, women wouldn't think of going places unless they wore gloves. Stockings were of the cotton variety, but silk hose were essential on dressy occasions even if they couldn't be seen by oogling beau brummels in stiff straw hats or stern bowlers with narrow, curled up brims.

Human nature is the same the nation over and hasn't changed much over the years, Miss Cooledge believes, pointing out that boys and girls today fundamentally are just about the same as when she was a little girl.

"Life, however, was much simpler in those days," she reminisced. "There were no movies, no radio and automobiles were a distinct novelty. Consequently the youth of this generation doesn't have to create its own play and fun like we did. In those days we had to have the force and power for enjoyment within ourselves.

"It doesn't seem to have made much difference as far as I can see. In the early days of the century if a boy or girl had 'it' to begin with and came from homes that looked out for them, they made their way in the world and became useful citizens. That holds good today, too. So no matter what the environment—today or yesterday—the results in adulthood are the same and always will be no matter what the new marvels of science or invention will be in the generations that lie ahead."

Students she has known during her long career as a teacher and an administrator still remember her and it's always old home week when she walks down K Street. Doctors, lawyers, merchants, housewives—literally thousands of them in Sacramento—have come under her benign influence.

A typical student—typical, she says—is one Carleton E. Morse, author and producer of radio's "One Man's Family" and other serials.

"Carleton was just like any other average student. He more or less minded his own business, had his own friends, played a bit of basketball, got average grades, but floundered badly in all English composition subjects! He has done all right for himself, and so have most of the others too."

No problems with Miss Cooledge are the exception, she avers; they all are average and fall more or less in the same patterns. For instance: Some few years ago a Sacramento College girl who had been doing excellent work and was happy in her school life, suddenly became morose and her grades began to border on failure. Conference between the girl and Miss Cooledge revealed that her mother and father were about to separate. In her quiet, soft-spoken way, Miss Cooledge talked with the couple. They never separated, are still living together happily.

Another case: This was a long time ago. A College girl seemed unhappy, all of a sudden was all smiles, until one day Miss Cooledge had occasion to chat with her about taking money that didn't belong to her. She had been unhappy because she didn't have a corset like the other girls and her parents didn't think a tall, very slender, bean-pole girl needed a corset. That's why she had been taking money. To buy a corset. She kept the undergarment in her locker at College. When she came to school in the morning, she donned the "Nemo" and shed it again before she went home. When the parents were appraised of what had been going on, their daughter was provided with a corset that came from the family budget and life was smooth sailing again.

All her life—ever since she can remember—Miss Cooledge wanted to be a teacher, and even in her last year on the College staff as an administrator and dean of women, she teaches one algebra class of 42 boys and two girls, just to have the personal classroom contact.

Her first teaching position was in Ione and she was hired for the fourth year of that school's existence so there would be sufficient teachers on the staff to qualify the graduating students for entrance to University of California. Miss Cooledge was frightened the first few days she went to work because many of her students either were her own age or almost.

The nearest she ever came to getting into trouble was when she was a student at Sacramento High School. One class in which she was enroled was given the privilege of going to the State Library periodically. One day the elevator stuck and was impounded for an hour. When she and several other students returned to school, Principal James Pond was a bit rigid until the story was verified.

Miss Cooledge remembers quite vividly what she terms her first and really only terrific surprise in life. She was elected in May 1912 to teach mathematics, physics and chemistry. When she went to the court house to collect her first month's salary she learned for the first time that nearly three months of summer pay had piled up which she did not know about. Since then, teachers who are employed on contract for a school year, have their salary divided into 12 equal installments with the summer money

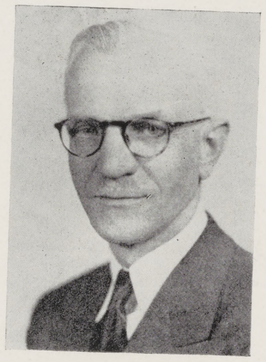
George C. Jensen



I have never met a person with a quicker and more penetrating mind than George Jensen. This type of mind is sometimes intolerant and impatient with others to the point of disruption of conferences. Not so in this case. Careful consideration is given to details that weave themselves into the whole. Mr. Jensen is an outstanding conference leader and recorder of facts developed in conferences.

He is a splendid administrator and has the ability to stimulate others to action, due to his force and logic of presentation. Comparisons are never good, but suffice it to say that probably there has never been a member of the Sacramento School Staff with greater powers of public address of the forensic and even of the elocution type than Mr. Jensen. His influence has been widespread in the community as it has been in the Schools.

We all wish you health and happiness, Mr. Jensen, upon your retirement from your strenuous duties in the Schools. We know your philosophy of life is sound, and adjustment will be natural.

classes before 1895. They are Mrs. Franz and Mrs. Kelly; Mrs. Kate Herrick Maddox, 1891; Mrs. Alden Campbell, Sophie Price, Mrs. E. A. Adams, and E. A. Stickney, all of 1892; Lottie Neuborg, George Bassett, and Mrs. Alma Dufour Harris, all of 1993; and Rachel C. Chappell and George Slawson, both of 1894.

Other early graduates who contact the committee this week will also ride in these special cars, which will follow a police honor escort made up entirely of SHS graduates.

ADDITIONAL CARS will accommodate city, county, and school officials. There will also be cars cotaining 23 teachers who have devoted a conglomerate 590 years of effort to the training of SHS students.

The teachers are Mrs. Ida North, Alfred H. Burd, Katherine Cunningham, Agnes Arnot, Mrs. Clara Hargis, Mrs. Bessie K. Burch, Altha Crowley, Mrs. Anna R. Cook, Abby R. Tracy, William Fishback, George McGrew, Edwin Pook, Mrs. Grace D. Heath, Margaret Moore, Mrs. Nellie G. Chilcote, Elsie Meeks, Mrs. Anna B. Hermitage, L. C. Whitaker, George Linn, Mildred Lothhammer, W. J. McClarrinon, Adolph K. Rigast, and Francis Goff.

OLDTIMER highlights of the parade will include an Alumni Band directed by Sam Lunetta; a Pom-Pom Drill team of women graduates; an ancient fire engine, and old automobiles.

Marching groups will include the Sixth Army Bagpipe Band, Sacramento Signal Corps Drill Team, SHS Majorettes and Band, SHS Drill Team (alumni and present students), a junior high band, four companies each of ROTC units from SHS and McClatchy High, McClatchy Majorettes, Band, and Drill Team.

SACRAMENTO HIGH began in a room set aside for high school students in a private school started by James Stratton. Through diligent research, Caroline Wenzel, former librarian in the State Library, pinpointed the exact location as 809 M Street (now Capitol Avenue).

Classes moved in 1858 to a school at the northeast corner of Fifth and K Streets, and the same year to another school on the southwest corner of Sixth and L Streets. In 1865, the classes moved again, to a school at Seventh and G Streets, and then in 1876 to Pioneer Hall, still standing on the east side of Seventh between J and K Streets.

THE FIRST building solely for high school purposes was located at Ninth and M Streets and occupied in 1877. This served until 1908, when the school moved into what is now Sutter Junior High, on K between 18th and 19th Streets. The present structure on 34th Street has been used since November 12, 1924.

Perhaps all the early moves discouraged the students, because there wasn't a graduating class until 1864, when two girls, Mary J. Morgan and Mary E. Hurd, received diplomas.

There were 10 students in the second graduating class, in 1865, seven of them boys. In the vast school that is the Sacramento High of 1956, there are nearly 2800 boys and girls.

The earliest living graduate workers have been able to locate is Dr. Andrew M. Henderson, Sr., of the class of 1886.

HERMAN PHLEGER, class of 1908, will give the main talk at centennial festivities Saturday. He is legal adviser to the secretary of state.

Phleger Appointed To World Court

Herman Phleger, San Francisco attorney and a native of Sacramento, yesterday received confirmation by President Eisenhower of his appointment as United States representative on the Permanent Court of International Arbitration.

The court assists in the settlement of disputes between nations. It was set up under the Hague Convention. Phleger is a graduate of Sacramento schools and is a member of the San Francisco law firm of Brobeck, Phleger and Harrison.

Steam whistles for locomotives were invented in 1833 because few farmers could hear the tin whistles then used in time to get their cows off the track.

Herman Phleger Will Speak At Host Breakfast

Herman Phleger, a San Francisco attorney who is a native of Sacramento and a member of the Permanent Court of International Arbitration, will address the annual Sacramento Host Breakfast Saturday at 7:10 AM in the Hotel Senator.

This was announced today by A. R. Gallaway, Jr., chairman of the Sacramento Host Committee, the group which stages the breakfast each year in connection with the State Fair.

Former US Aide

Phleger, formerly legal adviser to the United States State Department, will talk to the group of some 500 business, industrial, financial, agricultural and government leaders on how the foreign affairs of the federal government are conducted.

He is a brother of Mrs. H. Jedd McClatchy of 1341 45th Street, a graduate of Sacramento schools and a member of the San Francisco law firm of Brobeck, Phleger and Harrison. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of California in 1912 and took his law degree from the Harvard University Law School.

Adviser To Ike

He was appointed legal adviser to the state department in 1952 and as such served as adviser to President Dwight D. Eisenhower during the Big Four talks in Geneva. He is an acknowledged expert on international law.

He resigned from the state department position in April of last year and shortly after was appointed to the court of arbitration which was set up under the Hague Convention.

Other speakers on the host breakfast program will be Governor Goodwin J. Knight; Alvin F. Carveth of Auburn, Placer County, president of the board of directors of the State Fair, and W. C. Mullendore of Los Angeles, president of the state chamber of commerce.

The annual breakfast honors the directors of the fair and the state chamber.

FOLKS who are sure of themselves and know just what they want, find it impossible to accept a substitute and will go to great lengths to find exactly what they are after. Such a man is George Charles Jensen, Sacramento's assistant city superintendent, who is retiring from our schools after a long and distinguished service dedicated to the young manhood and womanhood of Sacramento's two senior high schools and the College.

To him a thought is raw material in the business of every day life. The flow and process of ideas has to be routed efficiently through the mind in order to achieve peak productivity.

On the earliest cave walls, in classic ceramics, in print or paint or cinema, the story in the picture never stales, the picture with the story never palls. So it is with Mr. Jensen, he who has painted a fine mosaic of life, not only in his everyday existence with human beings, but also as an actual dabbler in oils who has a number of landscape scenes to his credit—"the purple hills of Nevada's sagebrush country and the rugged California coastline of Humboldt County."

Mr. Jensen has a dispassionate approach to problems. He likes to "cut right down the middle" and get to the heart of an issue, a remarkable and efficient characteristic in any individual. Problems to him always have been met in a professional way with no involvement in the petty tinges of personalities. When the solving of a problem is the focal objective and is elevated above and beyond personalities in the handling of controversial or important issues, it is indicative of the finest in the character of man.

Mr. Jensen is a militant crusader for democracy and all the implications it has for education. There could be no finer spokesman for the functions of democracy. This has given him a vision relative to the breadth and scope of public education down through the past quarter of a century or more. His educational philosophy never has been confined to a few, but in the interest of the masses. Education to him to be successful must meet the needs of the many. This kind of thinking leads to a broad base relative to preparatory education—a function not just for a few academically.

Mr. Jensen likes people. They like him, too. He never has spared himself. At times when he could have taken life a bit easier, he would assume the added responsibilities of chairman of this committee or serve with that group, and gladly accept the added request to speak, never saying "No." He always has given a great deal of himself and under these circumstances always has thought he could see opportunity for some good, a step that might aid in the solving of a problem. A vivid and illuminating example was his willingness during the war emergency to serve as principal at Sacramento Senior High School for a few months, while carrying on at the same time his manifold and exacting duties as assistant superintendent, and later temporarily taking over the responsibilities of our Superintendent during his recent illness last year.

Perhaps his tantamount contribution to teachers is his great vision, his ability to speak to them and to fire their imaginations to do a better job. Teachers who have served directly under him recognize his ability as an inspirational leader. Many, many teachers have glowed from the uplift they have received following one of his faculty talks. They would go out and do a better job because of what he had said. They were inculcated with an urge to do their teaching job more intelligently, more understandingly and efficiently because of his soft words of wisdom and perception. This has been a rare quality, and it has paid handsome dividends particularly for young teachers, those who needed his guidance, those who could be trained to do a job better as a result of profiting by his sage advice and inspiration.

Mr. Jensen was instrumental in the formation of faculty discussion groups, not only at school where pertinent educational issues were discussed, reported upon, but also in his home when as a principal he regularly invited groups of his faculty members to his home for serious talk-fests, which always were punctu-

He was called back without application to the town of his humble beginning many years before, where he had been absolutely nobody—to achieve success, become a respected and integral part of the life of the community. The oft-quoted expressions "Not without honor save in his own country" and "Never a prophet in his own home town," certainly do not apply to Mr. Jensen. No more beautiful and sanguine story of success could be exceeded in the annals of democracy, a way of life that makes it possible for a mere individual, a nonenity, to start life as a shoeshine boy and return to the same haunts as principal of a high school and junior college. It would be America that makes possible such possibilities, because nowhere else on earth are such opportunities afforded.

Of course, many have fallen by the wayside, those who had little or no opportunity and did nothing about it. It takes the combination of a country like America and a man of the pluck, tenacity and will of a George C. Jensen to reach the ultimate in respect and confidence of his fellow man—from lowly origin.

After putting in a stint of six years as principal in Eureka, he accepted a position as Director of Research for the California Teachers Association for a year, the end of which time he was offered two positions—principalships at Chico High School and Sacramento Senior High School, accepting the latter, of course, and has served here ever since, in more recent years as assistant superintendent. He has been a member of the College of Pacific Summer School faculty many years and will teach there during the coming Summer.

Arthur, the fourth offspring, was born shortly after the Jensens moved to Eureka. There are five grand-children. Mr. Jensen is proud as Punch of his third generation progeny—three girls and two boys—but has a slight tinge of regret (not too serious) that not one of the boys carries the name of Jensen.

Besides the Masonic Lodge which he joined in Eureka immediately after becoming 21—Mr. Jensen since demitted to Provident Lodge of Sacramento—he is a charter member of the U.C. Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa Educational Fraternity and is the oldest member in point of service in the Sacramento Valley. There are approximately 2000 in the Berkeley local organization and his dues card indicates he is 15th in the overall membership picture. He has served as a member of the Implementation Commission of the Department of Secondary Principals of the National Education Association, a member of the State Curriculum Commission, was the West's representative on the Armed Forces Institute and recently attended a gathering of hand-picked delegates from throughout the United States at Madison, Wis. This year he is president of the Society for the Study of Secondary Education in California, an honor to which he recently was elected.

Mr. Jensen also is a member of Sacramento War Dads and of the Rotary Club. He has the merited reputation of an excellent public speaker and has a taste for lampent humor. This trait—if you will—of being able to face an audience, large or small, and give vocal expression in an articulate, clear manner and command attention, has been Mr. Jensen's most valued talent through the years, by his own admission.

While in Eureka he set up the so-called Eureka plan, which had to do with training high school youngsters directly for jobs within the community. Hardly a progressive school department in the country exists today without at least some modified form of this self-same Eureka plan. This type of education is one of the most modern concepts in school departments today and is a compliment to the sagacity and foresignt of Mr. Jensen.

This was the sort of modus operandi that sent teachers back to their classrooms better teachers and fortified with information and understanding that would redound to the ultimate benefit of their students.

Not only has this keen educational humanitarian devoted himself to his first love, public school education, but he has not forgotten the community. He has served on many committees and with still more groups in problems of civic betterment, such as president of the Sacramento Safety Council for five years. He was a prime mover in this organization and while he was at the helm, Sacramento signally was honored by national safety awards, a monument to his unflagging energy in the interests of fellow man.

Rasmus Jensen and his wife, Emma, ranching immigrants from the lowlands of Denmark, "who had never seen a hill or rock," marched straight across government land worth $1,000 per acre and took up a ranch in Humboldt County on the side of a hill, "where they could raise only goats and kids"—among the latter being a daughter, Nellie, and three sons, one of whom was little tow-headed George, erstwhile professional educator.

He first saw the light of day—to use the hackneyed vernacular—in Bridgeville, Calif., in the backwoods of Humboldt County, October 25, 1882.

The maternal head of the family passed away when the children were real young and when George was 16 his father announced to him, his 18-year-old sister, and 20-year-old brother, that he was packing to go to Alaska and mine, taking along only the 14-year-old son and brother.

When father and brother had departed, the remaining children found themselves in temporary possession of a small cabin home, and little else. They got busy, moved onto a small chicken ranch, not large enough to support them, and got extra jobs, George finally drifting into the shoe-shining business as a stripling. He had quit school in the sixth grade and even prior to that time had never gone to school more than two or three days in any given week. There were no attendance officers in those days, the family didn't care and it made little difference to the school authorities. George was just one less student.

His sister went to live with someone else. While George was busy snapping red muslin cloth across merchant and lumberman brogans, his brother worked at sundry jobs, among them in a harness shop and a cigar store.

George polished shoes in front of a Eureka barber shop for a livelihood. When he "made good" he was invited inside some months later by the wielder of the mustacio cup to learn to polish faces and jumped from that job to a lifetime of polishing brains.

Between times he tried to learn to play the piano, starting modestly with the two finger exercise, "A Birdie With a Yellow Bill Hopped Upon a Window Sill," and graduated to the etherial tear-jerker, "The Flower Song," long an epic in musical literature at the turn of the century.

No "grass grew under his feet" on the linoleum floor of the barbershop where haircuts were 25 cents, shaves 15 cents and work hours for week days were from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturdays till 11 p.m. and Sundays till noon—all for $15 per week. Time was found for correspondence courses in arithmetic and grammar—he always was an inveterate reader—and during "spare" hours, George drilled as a member of the Eureka Naval Militia.

The barbershop owner permitted his apprentice to "work on" him and when in time the tonsorial proprietor was whittled right down to the jowls and his hair couldn't keep pace with the viciously flailing scissors, George graduated to paying customers. He went to work in the barbershop when he was 17 years of age and remained there for six years until he was 23.

Between shaving customers and drilling in the militia, he completed correspondence courses, finally moving to Berkeley, where he lived with friends during which time he enrolled in Boone's University Academy. In two years he completed the regulation four years of high school in order to qualify as a freshman at the University of California at the age of 25, majoring in economics.

No one would be better able or qualified to realize such a herculean brain task than a teacher, and in particular a high school teacher. Completing a regulation academic four year high school course in only two years, with only the educational background or premise of a spotty sixth grade education and a few correspondence courses is enough to stagger the imagination of most mortals. He had chosen the State University primarily because, a land grand institution, military training was taught. He was enrolled in military training four years and became a captain. Incidentally, he returned to the University of California during the Summer of 1917 during the first World War as a captain of one of the two Officer Training Companies. Mr. Jensen then organized a company in Nevada's crack Home Guard, serving as captain. His first lieutenant was Charles B. Henderson, who became United States Senator from Nevada and is now serving in Washington, D.C., as chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Commission. Another member of "Captain" Jensen's Home Guard Company was Corporal Ted Carville, who later became governor of Nevada and is now United States Senator from that State. Another corporal in the same company was Errol Taber, later elevated to the position of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Nevada.

While a student at the University of California, Mr. Jensen augmented his course in economics by intensive study of the Chinese language because he wanted to go into foreign service as a United States Consul, but the Chinese was forgotten when he decided to "go in" for teaching instead of the consulate field. In his senior year he received a State scholarship of $125 per semester, augmenting his personal income which had been derived from working in a Berkeley barbershop nights, Saturdays and Sundays for $10 to $15 per week.

He clipped many a noble head, by his own admission, including the educationally famous Thorndike, whom he has never seen since.

"I was closer to college presidents and professors than most undergraduate students," he says in retrospect, not to mention that he gave them a good "trimming" in the bargain.

Upon completing the prescribed four year course with the B.S. Degree, he received one of the two Flood Fellowships in Economics at the University of California. This netted him about $600 for the two semesters, affording an opportunity for a Master's degree. The scholarship was renewed for a second graduate year which he completed. Mr. Jensen was 31 years of age when his formal education of six university years culminated. He decided it was time to get married.

His girlhood sweetheart in Eureka had been Myrtle Hendee. She had been graduated from San Jose Normal School, now the State College, and had entered the University of California, where she "kept company" with George, at the same time majoring in physics, planning to be a teacher. The bridegroom applied for and got the job of teacher of English in the high school in Elko, Nev., for $1250 per year and took Mrs. Jensen with him. This was the only job in his entire life he ever applied for.

At the end of his first teaching year, he was named principal of the Elko High School at $2400 per annum, later raised to $3600, which position he held for the next six years. While in Elko, three of the four Jensen children were born—Alice, Roy and Florence. At the end of his seventh year in Nevada, Mr. Jensen was elected principal of the Eureka, California High School and Junior College. That was in 1919 and he returned to his home town as its educational leader from the modest beginning as a shoeshine boy, a saga that the late Horatio Alger could easily have capitalized on.

classes before 1895. They are Mrs. Franz and Mrs. Kelly; Mrs. Kate Herrick Maddox, 1891; Mrs. Alden Campbell, Sophie Price, Mrs. E. A. Adams, and E. A. Stickney, all of 1892; Lottie Neuborg, George Bassett, and Mrs. Alma Dufour Harris, all of 1993; and Rachel C. Chappell and George Slawson, both of 1894.

Other early graduates who contact the committee this week will also ride in these special cars, which will follow a police honor escort made up entirely of SHS graduates.

ADDITIONAL CARS will accommodate city, county, and school officials. There will also be cars cotaining 23 teachers who have devoted a conglomerate 590 years of effort to the training of SHS students.

The teachers are Mrs. Ida North, Alfred H. Burd, Katherine Cunningham, Agnes Arnot, Mrs. Clara Hargis, Mrs. Bessie K. Burch, Altha Crowley, Mrs. Anna R. Cook, Abby R. Tracy, William Fishback, George McGrew, Edwin Pook, Mrs. Grace D. Heath, Margaret Moore, Mrs. Nellie G. Chilcote, Elsie Meeks, Mrs. Anna B. Hermitage, L. C. Whitaker, George Linn, Mildred Lothhammer, W. J. McClarrinon, Adolph K. Rigast, and Francis Goff.

OLDTIMER highlights of the parade will include an Alumni Band directed by Sam Lunetta; a Pom-Pom Drill team of women graduates; an ancient fire engine, and old automobiles.

HERMAN PHLEGER, class of 1908, will give the main talk at centennial festivities Saturday. He is legal adviser to the secretary of state.

Marching groups will include the Sixth Army Bagpipe Band, Sacramento Signal Corps Drill Team, SHS Majorettes and Band, SHS Drill Team (alumni and present students), a junior high band, four companies each of ROTC units from SHS and McClatchy High, McClatchy Majorettes, Band, and Drill Team.

SACRAMENTO HIGH began in a room set aside for high school students in a private school started by James Stratton. Through diligent research, Caroline Wenzel, former librarian in the State Library, pinpointed the exact location as 809 M Street (now Capitol Avenue).

Classes moved in 1858 to a school at the northeast corner of Fifth and K Streets, and the same year to another school on the southwest corner of Sixth and L Streets. In 1865, the classes moved again, to a school at Seventh and G Streets, and then in 1876 to Pioneer Hall, still standing on the east side of Seventh between J and K Streets.

THE FIRST building solely for high school purposes was located at Ninth and M Streets and occupied in 1877. This served until 1908, when the school moved into what is now Sutter Junior High, on K between 18th and 19th Streets. The present structure on 34th Street has been used since November 12, 1924.

Perhaps all the early moves discouraged the students, because there wasn't a graduating class until 1864, when two girls, Mary J. Morgan and Mary E. Hurd, received diplomas.

There were 10 students in the second graduating class, in 1865, seven of them boys. In the vast school that is the Sacramento High of 1956, there are nearly 2800 boys and girls.

The earliest living graduate workers have been able to locate is Dr. Andrew M. Henderson, Sr., of the class of 1886.

EARLIEST graduate known to be still living, Dr. Andrew M. Henderson, class of 1886, will be at centennial celebration in spirit, but he'd rather be there in person. He lives at 1600 Capitol Avenue.

Phleger Appointed To World Court

Herman Phleger, San Francisco attorney and a native of Sacramento, yesterday received confirmation by President Eisenhower of his appointment as United States representative on the Permanent Court of International Arbitration.

The court assists in the settlement of disputes between nations. It was set up under the Hague Convention. Phleger is a graduate of Sacramento schools and is a member of the San Francisco law firm of Brobeck, Phleger and Harrison.

Steam whistles for locomotives were invented in 1833 because few farmers could hear the tin whistles then used in time to get their cows off the track.

Herman Phleger Will Speak At Host Breakfast

Herman Phleger, a San Francisco attorney who is a native of Sacramento and a member of the Permanent Court of International Arbitration, will address the annual Sacramento Host Breakfast Saturday at 7:10 AM in the Hotel Senator.

This was announced today by A. R. Gallaway, Jr., chairman of the Sacramento Host Committee, the group which stages the breakfast each year in connection with the State Fair.

Former US Aide

Phleger, formerly legal adviser to the United States State Department, will talk to the group of some 500 business, industrial, financial, agricultural and government leaders on how the foreign affairs of the federal government are conducted.

He is a brother of Mrs. H. Jedd McClatchy of 1341 45th Street, a graduate of Sacramento schools and a member of the San Francisco law firm of Brobeck, Phleger and Harrison. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of California in 1912 and took his law degree from the Harvard University Law School.

Adviser To Ike

He was appointed legal adviser to the state department in 1952 and as such served as adviser to President Dwight D. Eisenhower during the Big Four talks in Geneva. He is an acknowledged expert on international law.

He resigned from the state department position in April of last year and shortly after was appointed to the court of arbitration which was set up under the Hague Convention.

Other speakers on the host breakfast program will be Governor Goodwin J. Knight; Alvin F. Carveth of Auburn, Placer County, president of the board of directors of the State Fair, and W. C. Mullendore of Los Angeles, president of the state chamber of commerce.

The annual breakfast honors the directors of the fair and the state chamber.

RADIO AND TV HELPFUL FOR MUSIC FESTIVAL

Radio and television stations in Sacramento donated time for six appearances within the last week in the interest of the 13th annual Music Festival of the City Schools, which featured 1,800 student participants in two evening programs at Memorial Auditorium.

Radio Station KCRA offered two different broadcasts, with one at KFBK, two at TV-KCCC and one at TV-KBET, with four local radio stations providing a number of one minute spot announcements during six days preceding the festival programs.

Among school personnel who appeared on these various programs were Superintendent Burkhard, Deputy Superintendent Lawson, Assistant Superintendents Polster and O'Reilly, Music Supervisors George Barr and Floy Potter, Elementary Supervisor Elaine Stowe, in addition to Stewart Tulley, music instructor at the junior college, and Adrian Michaelis, composer of some of the music.

Evelyn Stroble, soprano soloist from C. K. McClatchy Senior High School, appeared on one of the TV programs. The programs were moderated by Merril Osenbaugh.

In addition to news coverage, between them, The Sacramento Bee and Sacramento Union ran six pictures, with added pictures and news stories the day following the opening program of the festival.

GERALD BIRKA HEADS CITY SCIENCE TEACHERS

The Sacramento City Science Teachers Association at its recent meeting elected new officers for the next school term. Named president is Gerald Birka, Theodore Judah School, with Nicholas Doudnik, Stanford Junior High School, vice president; Aunitta Crowley, Tahoe School, secretary; and Jack Radisich, Bret Harte School, treasurer.

VARIETY SHOW

Peter Lassen Junior High School last Thursday and Friday evenings held its annual Variety Show, "We Believe," before sell-out audiences.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS SACRAMENTO BEE GUESTS

C. K. McClatchy and Sacramento Senior High Schools have accepted an invitation of The Sacramento Bee to participate in an all-day newspaper clinic, Tuesday, May 31, starting at 9 AM and continuing until 4 PM, with a special luncheon provided by the newspaper. A total of 50 students and two teachers will be in attendance.

A tour of the plant will include composing room, stereotype department, news room, press room, mail room and advertising and circulation departments.

Speakers will be M. A. Tancock, advertising manager, "The Functions of the Advertising Department"; George Helmer, city editor, "The Editorial Department and City News Coverage"; Jack Wilson, editor, Superior California Department, "Superior California News Coverage"; Sports Department, Bill Collins, sports editor; Myron (Max) Depew, managing editor, "National and International News" and "Bee Editorial Policy and Style"; Charles Lacure, mechanical department superintendent, "Mechanical Departments of a Newspaper"; V. P. Willett, circulation manager, "The Delivery of the Paper," followed by the taking of pictures of the students.

PENTATHLON CONDUCTED AT STANFORD JR. HIGH

Many excellent achievement scale scores were made in the California Physical Fitness Pentathlon conducted at Stanford Junior High School and promoted by the State Department of Education. Events for personal achievement included 150-yard run, sit-up, barsnap for distance, standing broad jump and rope climb.

Winners in the various exponents were Troy Graves, AB, 355 points; Michael Martin, C, 343 points; Bob Syas, D, 304 points; John Bejarano, E, 318 points; and Michael Campos, F, 264 points.

The pentathlon was under direction of Jack Carpenter and Dexter Linck, physical education instructors at Stanford Junior High School.

TOPIC OF CONFERENCE IS "SPANISH SPEAKING"

A conference on the education of Spanish speaking children and other youth will be held at San Jose State College from June 27 to July 15. Elementary and secondary school teachers, supervisors, guidance workers and administrators will find the activities of the conference helpful. A well-qualified staff has been approved.

In addition, special resource persons will be available to discuss the background and culture of the Spanish speaking people of California, their economic and social status and their integration into community life. Emphasis will be given to language and speech problems. Successful techniques for improving language facility will be demonstrated and discussed.

Additional information is available by writing San Jose State College.

JUNIOR HIGH ANNUAL TRACK, FIELD MEET

The annual track and field meet of Sacramento's seven junior high schools will be held at Hughes Memorial Stadium Saturday, June 4, starting at 10 AM and concluding about noon.

The event is planned co-operatively between the various principals, physical education instructors, with H. A. (Hack) Applequist, supervisor of physical education, as clerk of the course.

P.E. TEACHERS LISTEN TO DR. GORDON MANNERSTEDT

Dr. Gordon Mannerstedt, School Physician and Supervisor of Health and Development, was guest speaker at a recent meeting of CAPHER, the California Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. His talk was interesting, informative and well worthwhile. Erle Johnson, physical education supervisor for Sacramento County, presided at the meeting.

SAFETY INSTRUCTION FOR BICYCLE RIDERS

Constant vigilance in bicycle safety is the rule, as indicated in a directive to all elementary, junior and senior high school principals and their respective safety chairmen.

Schools are asked to:

Give instruction in correct use and care of bicycles, make certain all bicycles ridden to school are licensed with the police department and registered at the school, give each new bicycle rider a skill and written test, inform each parent of the bicycle program and request co-operation, use appropriate action for all offenders, urge all students to lock their bicycles and to make certain that racks are used for their storage, develop a bicycle safety program through student organizations to insure student participation, call on the Superintendent of Traffic, GI 2-5041 for assistance with any special activities involving the training of bicycle riders and give adequate publicity to proper riding practices and events in school papers, on bulletin boards, showcase displays and assembly programs.

SCHOOL UNITS, ROTC IN ARMED FORCES PARADE

Capt. Clifford Sivil, army officer in charge of ROTC units at Sacramento and C. K. McClatchy Senior High Schools, announced information today relative to participation in the Armed Forces Day Parade next Sunday at 7:30 PM.

Participating for the schools will be the ROTC units from both senior high schools, in addition to the bands representing these schools.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS

The Post Office Department has extended city delivery service to Joseph Bonnheim School. The new mailing address is 7300 Marin Avenue.

SACRAMENTO HIGH PLANS CENTENNIAL OBSERVANCE

Next year marks the 100th anniversary of the founding of Sacramento Senior High School, the oldest public education institution of its kind west of the Rocky Mountains, with the exception of Lowell High School of San Francisco, which opened its doors only two weeks earlier.

A Centennial Steering Committee has been named by Principal Albert J. Sessarego. Although detailed plans are still in the offing at this early date, several planning sessions already have been held.

Members of the committee include Robert D. Livingston, manager Broadway branch, American Trust Company, class of 1933, financial chairman; Mrs. M. M. Millward (nee Rose Mellor), class of 1929, arrangements with classes; Carolyn Johnson, personnel manager of Weinstock-Lubin Co., class of 1945, centennial observance program; Thomas J. MacBride, attorney, class of 1932, steering committee; Albert J. Sessarego, principal, class of 1928, when he was student body president at Sacramento High, student and faculty committees.

Frances Genteman, secretary, Sacramento High, class of 1919, historical committee and general secretary; Paul E. Hunter, real estate broker, class of 1914, ways and means committee; Lewis Kassis, foods retailing stores, class of 1931, centennial picnic; and Phil C. Wilkins, attorney, class of June 1932, chairman of activities.

Plans are being made to carry out the centennial theme in all school functions next year, graduations, yearbook, etc.

Numerous sub-committees are now being formed within each of the general committees, with more than 100 graduates who have volunteered to participate on arrangements.

Student body president of the school will play a prominent part in the observance, with student chairmen to be selected by the student council next Fall.

PARENT STUDY GROUP SESSIONS SUCCESSFUL

The recently conducted parent study group sessions on the elementary school child under direction of Jeanadd Nolan, co-ordinator of parent education, were highly successful.

Sessions were held weekly at Phoebe Apperson Hearst School from April 21 through May 26.

Among the weekly topics were What Should We Expect of Our Children? Discipline—It's Always With Us, Now They Call It Sibling Rivalry.

RECORDS ON ADVANCEMENT POSSIBILITIES ON FILE

About a year and a half ago the entire certificated staff was canvassed and given an opportunity to indicate in some detail an interest in and a desire to be considered for possible advancement or transfer to administrative or supervisory positions. About 143 staff members completed the forms and specified their particular interests. These records are kept available in the Deputy Superintendent's Office for reference when new assignments are under consideration.

In co-operation with Stanford University School of Education about 100 persons took a series of examinations for the purpose of helping determine important characteristics — personal, educational, cultural, etc., which may be useful in prognosticating success in an administrative or supervisor assignment.

The Stanford School of Education is proceeding under a grant from the Kellogg Foundation with the primary goal of ascertaining the best means to select school administrators. The examinations were entirely voluntary and with no cost to the participants. It was explained that results of the examinations had no specific local implications because they were a part of a widespread research project. The tests did not imply that this school district is using the help of Stanford University or any other training institution to select its administrators or supervisors.

PTA COUNCIL LUNCHEON TO BE FRIDAY, JUNE 3

The annual Sacramento Council of Parents and Teachers luncheon will be held Friday, June 3 at Governor's Hall, State Fair Grounds.

Officers of the Sacramento Council include Mrs. George Ninnis, president; Mrs. George Eastman, first vice president; Mrs. Harry Crawford, vice president and director of organization; Mrs. C. C. LaRue, vice president and director of extension; Mrs. William E. Cook, vice president and director of public welfare; Mrs. William Fritzsche, vice president and director of education; Mrs. Chester Arthur, vice president and director of home service; Mrs. Anthony Azevedo, vice president and director of health; Mrs. W. J. Hunt, Jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. K. W. Blankenburg, recording secretary; Mrs. Anthony Vassallo, financial secretary; Mrs. Roy Strong, treasurer; Mrs. Herbert D. Gwinn, auditor; Mrs. Louis Gutenberger, historian; and Mrs. Ralph Hertel, parliamentarian.

THE ISSUE in this strike, which pivots on the union's demand for a 6-cents-an-hour increase and a union shop, is overshadowed by the Machinists' global tactics.

This technique of working unity on a world front is a significant sign of things to come on the labor scene.

The strike started in June when the company asked for a wage cut and the union asked for $2.40 a week more and a union shop such as the regular U. S. airlines agreed to. The company countered by offering to withdraw its demand for a pay cut if the IAM would drop its wage bid. The union refused—and the fight was on.

Naturally, with the strike rolling, the union called out its ticket squads. But the Flying Tigers, being non-scheduled, could simply move from airport to airport picking up cargo, fuel and service 1000 miles from the nearest picket—or even a con-

Sacramento High Will Mark 100th Anniversary June 2

Sacramento High School, the oldest secondary institution west of the Mississippi River, with the exception of Lowell High School, San Francisco, which was founded two weeks earlier, will observe its 100th anniversary with a special program of activities at the school June 2 from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M.

It was in March, 1856, that Sacramento Senior High School first opened its doors at a location in the lower end of town, with eight students, five of whom were girls by the name of Mary.

Within the next few weeks nearly 1000 graduates of the school now living in the Sacramento area, will have been contacted by Dr. Albert J. Sessarego, current principal of the school, to serve on various committees and provide historical background to be used in promoting the June affair.

"IT WILL TAKE a great deal of planning for such an important affair in the existence of our venerable school," Dr. Sessarego said.

"We would appreciate as much volunteer help as possible. Veteran graduates who would like to assist or provide us with any information about the school are urged to contact the school.

"The special day for the observance will be featured by a noon luncheon in the cafeteria. During the day there will be music by the school orchestra, band and vocal groups, with band serenades at various spots on the campus, in addition to athletic exhibitions in the school gymnasium which seats more than 4000 persons."

A special souvenir program will be printed for guests and a special edition of the school paper. The X-Ray, will be printed for the occasion.

THOMAS McBRIDE, attorney, has been named chairman of the general committee in charge of arrangements.

Other alumni serving on the committee are Robert D. Livston, manager Broadway Branch, American Trust Company; Mrs. M. M. Millward (Rose Mellor), housewife; Carolyn Johnson, personnel manager, Weinstock-Lubin and Company; Albert J. Sessargeo, principal, Sacramento Senior High School; Frances Genteman, class of 1919, head of the historical committee.

Mercy Hospital Unit Dedicated This Morning

The J. L. R. Marsh Memorial physical therapy unit will be dedicated at Mercy Hospital today at 10 A. M. in a Labor Day ceremony.

Marsh, who died in 1952, was secretary of the former Sacramento Federated Trades Council, now the Sacramento Labor Council, for more than 30 years.

Speakers will include Governor Knight, Mayor Hendren and Thomas L. Pitts of Los Angeles, president of the California State Federation of Labor.

Harry Finks, who succeeded Marsh as secretary of the Labor Council, and who is program chairman for tomorrow's ceremonies, said the therapy unit "is the gift from the men and women comprising the American Federation of Labor organizations in this area to pay honor to Mr. Marsh."

Monsignor Thomas A. Kirby, chancellor of the Catholic Diocese of Sacramento, will represent Bishop Robert J. Armstrong. City Councilman Albert A. Marty, president of the Sacramento Labor Council, will preside.

Marty and Victor LaChapelle, president of the Sacramento-Yolo Building Trades Council, were chairmen of the fund-raising drive among AFL members in the area.

The therapy unit, costing more than $60,000, includes a pool, several individual tanks, showers, restrooms and a large office. It will be used mainly for rehabilitation of crippled children.

Youth Seized in Thefts Of Bicycles at Pool

A 15-year-old boy has been booked in Juvenile Hall in connection with a series of bicycle thefts. He was arrested by officer Charles Leuthy of the bicycle detail, who had received a tip that he was involved.

The boy admitted that he and another boy had taken at least five bicycles from the Sacramento Junior College swimming pool, Leuthy said. The youth said that on one occasion he was caught by the custodian but escaped while his captor was calling police.

Sacramento High Plans Year Long Centennial Fete

Sacramento High School will celebrate the 100th anniversary of its founding in 1956; plans are under way to make the observance a year long event to be climaxed next June 2nd.

Dr. Albert J. Sessarego, principal of the high school, announced a centennial steering committee has been at work since May of this year preparing plans.

MacBride Is Planner

Heading the committee is Attorney Thomas J. MacBride, who said many sub committees are being organized. It is hoped more than 1,000 persons will participate in planning the celebration. These will include alumni of all classes and members of the present student body.

MacBride stated the centennial theme will be carried out in all school functions during the coming year, including the senior play, the annual variety show and the two commencements in February and June. In addition it will be featured in the masthead of the school paper and the school yearbook.

For Alumni

The activities are to culminate in an elaborate observance from 10 AM to 3 PM June 2, 1956. At that time there will be band concerts, dedication of a plaque and a picnic for alumni and their families.

Also scheduled for the big day are class reunions which it is hoped will be attended by as many graduates of the high school as possible.

The following persons were named as chairmen of various committees:

Robert D. Livingston, finance; Mrs. M. M. Millward, class arrangements; Carolyn Johnson, program; Sessarego, student and faculty committees and publicity; Mrs. Frances Genteman, historical committee; Lewis Kassis, centennial picnic, and Philip C. Wilkins, activities.

Peter V. Pohlenz, left, campaign director of the Sacramento County Youth Employment Organization, and Assemblyman Thomas J. MacBride, chairman of the Sacramento High School centennial committee, agree on a separation of celebration dates. The youth employment organization has scheduled May as Youth Employment Month and had planned June 2nd as Award Day, when winners of an employment competition would be honored. The high school centennial group also had arranged to have its celebration June 2nd. Since invitations already have been mailed throughout the nation for the centennial, the youth organization advanced its Award Day to May 31st. Bee Photo

THE DISDAINFUL defiance

Came the swift answer: "I refuse to answer that question."

"At the time you subscribed to that oath, Mr. Ullman, were you actively engaged in espionage and sabotage against the Government of the United States?"

Ullman's reply: "I refuse to answer that question."

THE SENATE probers then asked Ullman about his oath of office when he entered government service. They wanted to know:

"At the time you subscribed to that oath, Mr. Ullman, were you a member of the Communist Party?"

Ullman's reply: "I refuse to answer that question."

ON MONDAY, November 23, 1953 for example, Ullman was questioned by a sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee digging into subversion in the government agencies. One of the committee members asked him:

"Did you ever have any visitors there (at his home in Harvey Cedars, N. J.) from any foreign country call on you by marine surface vessel?"

Of course, Ullman snapped back: "I refuse to answer that question.

HE WAS ASKED: "Did you learn . . . the date of D-day?"

Answer: "I refuse to answer that question . . ."

"Did you transmit that information to any person you knew to be an agent of the Soviet military intelligence?"

Ullman's reply: "I refuse to answer that question."

THE SAME Senate record show that when Silvermaste was asked if he knew Wes Coast Longshoremen's Unio chief Harry Bridges, he also refused to answer. Springboard for much of the labor contact was Silvermaster's connections with the U. S. Labor Department and the vital wartime Maritime Labor Board.

Ex-Major Ullman, the quiet one, is supposed to be ready to talk now in order to avoid going to jail on a contempt rap. If he tells the truth and if he tells all he actually knows, there will be many a Red face over the Red records made in Washington.

Primary Election

Primary election on Tuesday, June 5, 1956, is of great importance to the continued welfare and prosperity of California. People will have an opportunity to approve or disapprove of the records of a number of elected public officials, at the county level, the state level and the national level. The Sacramento Union has made an exhaustive study of the candidates and issues involved, and will recommend to its readers the candidates who deserve support, and the issues which are in the public interest.

Chance to Support Ike Administration

We will recommend the re-election of Thomas H. Kuchel, United States Senator, who is a candidate on both major party tickets. Conceded the Republican nomination, he has a good chance to win the Democratic nomination, also. In that party primary he is opposed by two residents of Los Angeles County, State Senator Richard Richards, now in his first year in public office, and former Congressman Sam Yorty,

Sacramento High School Will Mark 100th Anniversary; Lowly Beginning Is Recalled

By Ed Dolan

The history of Sacramento High School goes back 100 years and on June 2nd thousands of former students of the school will gather in Sacramento to celebrate its long history.

This centennial celebration will be at the Sacramento High School building at 2315 34th Street—a building which is a far cry from the one room in a rented structure on M Street between 8th and 9th Streets where the school started its century of growth.

While it long has been generally accepted that Sacramento High School began at the M Street location, it remained for Caroline Wenzel, former librarian in the California section of the state library, to find more definite information concerning the building in which classes first were held.

Was Private School

Through a diligent search of records and old newspaper files she has determined the structure originally was built as a private school.

This was the building of the Sacramento Academy and Female Institute, a private school started by James Stratton in 1853. Although this school was described as flourishing in accounts of the day, it apparently failed in the next couple of years.

It was this building, which was rented as a grammar school, in which room was set aside for high school students. The high school class, composed of nine boys and 12 girls, started September 1, 1856—the beginning of the long history of Sacramento High.

Of the beginning of classes, one newspaper account of the time asserted:

"Today, this school will be opened for the reception of pupils, on which occasion, the exercises will commence. The school house is located on M Street, between 8th and 9th. It is to be hoped the parents will bear this in mind."

Moved In 1858

The first move of the high school came early in 1858 when classes were transferred to a school building on the northeast corner of 5th and K Streets. However, this was only a temporary location while a new public school building was being completed. Little is known about the 5th and K school and research has failed to turn up a picture of the structure.

It was in the same year that the new school, the Franklin Grammar School on the southwest corner of 6th and L Streets, was opened. It was dedicated March 18, 1858, and opened March 22nd with the high school occupying rooms on the upper floor.

A newspaper account of the dedication read in part:

"The upper story, which is reached by a broad flight of stairs leading up the west side of the building, is subdivided into one large room, 40 by 22 feet, for the high school, and smaller apartments—a recitation room and room for the professor of foreign languages and separate hat and cloak rooms for the male and female pupils."

Lasted Until 1865

The 6th and L location was good until 1865. In that year, on July 25th, the high school opened in the new Union School at 7th and G Streets. Again the upper story of the building, which later was known as the McKinley School, was finished off for the high school classes.

Of this a newspaper story stated:

"The main room for the high school is 44 by 50 feet, and is lighted from the rear by six windows, and from the front by four common windows besides the large triplet window—all of which are arranged with pulleys, that they may be opened from the top and bottom. The principal entrance is from the north side, through two ante rooms—one each for the boys and girls—which are fitted up for hats and bonnets. Near these are two other rooms for the principal and assistant, about 10 by 17 feet each. On the south side is a recitation room, 25 by 17 feet, and a library, 15 by 17 feet. Near the northeast corner a flight of stairs leads to the back yard, set apart for girls."

A building which remains became the next location for the high school. This is the Pioneer Hall on the east side of 7th Street between J and K Streets.

Temporary Location

However, this was only a temporary location when the high school class was moved out of the Union School in 1876 to make way for remodeling. It occupied the Pioneer Hall only from July 12, 1876, until January 3, 1877, when it was moved into a new high school building at 9th and M Streets.

This school, for which the cornerstone was laid August 31, 1876, is remembered by many graduates still living in the Sacramento area. However, it sometimes has been confused with a previous grammar school which was built on the same corner in 1866 but later moved to 10th and P Streets.

The 9th and M Streets school served until 1908 and for a number of years was so crowded the school board found it necessary to rent space in buildings in the neighborhood to house some of the classes.

In 1908 the building, which is now the Sutter Junior High School on K Street between 18th and 19th Streets, was opened for the Sacramento High School. This continued to serve the Sacramento High students until the present modern structure on 34th Street was dedicated on November 12, 1924.

Saturday will be the biggest day in 100 years for students and alumni of Sacramento High School, which has graduated more than 25,000 students since 21 boys and girls began attending classes in a rented grammar school September 1, 1856.

The official centennial observance is expected to attract up to 10,000 alumni, relatives, and friends to an all-day celebration that will include reunions, concert, picnic, and speechmaking.

Festivities will actually get under way the night before, with a downtown parade Friday at 6:30 P. M. Both students and alumni will participate in a "Then and Now" theme, with floats depicting scenes from 1856 through 1956.

Nearly 30 floats have been lined up so far for the parade, according to parade chairman Richard Rogers. There will also be at least six bands, including one of America's finest, the Portland Chapter Drum and Bugle Corps of the International Footprinters Association, a group undefeated in 17 years of competition.

The Saturday celebration will start at 10 A. M. with an open house at the high school campus, 34th and Y Streets. Specific classrooms will be set aside for separate reunions of each graduating class. Alumni are expected from all over the United States.

Teachers of both past and present will be on hand to do the greeting. In addition to these "official reunions," many classes are planning private parties during the week. These include the classes of 1916-19-21-22-24-25-26-27-31-41-42-50.

A picnic will be held on the athletic field most of the day, with the official starting time at noon. For those unencumbered by their own lunches, hot dogs, hamburgers, box lunches coffee, and soft drinks will be sold at the field. The school cafeteria will also serve food.

Herman Phleger, class of 1908 and now legal adviser to the U. S. State Department, will give the principal speech at the outdoor ceremonies which will begin at 1:30 P. M. with a concert by the SHS A Capella Choir directed by Marie Stebbins.

Rev. C. Harold Van Zee, First Presbyterian Church, Elko, Nev., a SHS alumnus, will give the invocation. Assemblyman Thomas J. MacBride, chairman of the Centennial Steering Committee, will be master of ceremonies.

Those on the speaker's platform, which will be located on the girls' athletic field, will include Albert J. Sessarego, current principal, and four past principals: George C. Jensen, William L. Burdick, F. Melvyn Lawson, and Malcolm P. Murphy.

Also on the platform will be William J. Burkhard, superintendent of city schools; Dr. John E. Kennedy, chairman of the Board of Education; and two of the school's earliest living graduates: Mrs. Martha Franz, class of 1888, and Mrs. T. F. Kelly, class of 1889.

Lawson, speaking for the principals, will talk on "Sacramento High — A Century of Progress." Phleger's subject will be: "Building a Better World Through Education."

William Comstock, formerly yell leader at the school, will lead a group of present-day students through a medley of school cheers, both past and present.

The Native Sons and Native Daughters, represented by Philip Wilkins, past grand president, and Mrs. Norma Hodson of Manteca, present grand president, will present the school with two plaques commemorating the school's 100-year history.

The first plaque will be cemented into a 500-pound granite rock and placed on the present campus. The second will be placed in the sidewalk in front of 809 Capitol Avenue, the site of the rented building in which the first SHS classes were held.

The Sacramento High band, directed by Aubrey Penman, will offer selections and the program will close with audience participation in the singing of appropriate songs.

A centennial ball, with "Golden Mood" as the theme, will wind up festivities Saturday night in the SHS Assembly Hall. Refreshments will be served in the specially decorated inner court. The dance will be open to the public.

A Centennial Queen, with court of four princesses, all elected by the student body, will reign over the two-day celebration.

Trophies will be awarded to prize-winning floats in the parade, which will be judged by Robert Breuner, Robert W. Coombs, H. H. Hendren, Mrs. Beth Grebitus, Dr. Henry Yee, Frank MacBride Jr., and Will C. Wright, Jr. The prizes will be awarded at the Saturday convocation.

The line of march will be west on K Street from 13th to Sixth, north to J and then east on J to 13th Street.

Grand marshals will be a select group of graduates of (Continued on page 28, col. 5)

Many Famous Names Grace Rolls of Alumni

Sacramento High School, which celebrates its 100th birthday Saturday, has had its share of famous students and alumni.

Probably the most noted of all was Hiram W. Johnson, governor of California, U. S. Senator, and one-time contender for the nomination of president of the United States.

Among those, both living and dead, who achieved a fame outside the immediate Sacramento area are:

I. J. Harvey, Jr., president of Pioneer Flintlake Company, New York, and a director of 10 other firms; Dr. Frederick C. Cordes, San Francisco, member of the Executive Committee International Congress of Ophthalmology and chief examiner, National Board of Medical Examiners from 1948 to 1954; Charles M. Goethe, author naturalist, banker, city planner, real estate developer, and philanthropist.

Edward A. Dickson, publisher of the Los Angeles Evening Express and "godfather of UCLA"; Carleton E. Morse, writer and producer of "One Man's Family," "I Love a Mystery," and "Women in My House"; Herman Phleger, a director of six corporations and legal adviser to the Secretary of State since 1953; Herb Caen, author and columnist for the San Francisco Examiner.

FIRST GRADUATE Mary J. Morgan (1864) started a long line of over 25,000 SHS alumni and alumnae. The first class had only one other graduate, Mary E. Hurd, of whom no picture is available.

Harry Bonath, cartoonist; Clarence Breuner, president, John Breuner Company; John Quincy Brown, superior judge; Estelle Caen, pianist; John C. Ernst, president of Lucky Stores, Inc.; Gordon A. Fleury, superior judge; Mabel R. Gillis, retired State Librarian; Malcolm Glenn, superior judge; Lawrence Hahn, concert pianist.

Martin Hilby, partner, Longstreet-Abbot Commodity Consultants, St. Louis; Lois Hodgson, opera soprano; Robert E. Jones, publisher, Western Dairy Foods Review; Dick Jurgens, band leader; Richard G. Lillard, author and scholar; Robert M. Mallett, lecturer and traveler (under pseudonym of Kent Roberts); Thomas J. MacBride, assemblyman; Joyce McCluskey, actress.

Harry McKnight, singer and composer; Agnes Miyakawa, opera soprano; U.S. Representative John E. Moss, Jr.; Roy J. Nielsen, assemblyman; Stanley Noonan, opera baritone; and Mel Venter, radio broadcaster.

Athletes who have attended Sacramento High include Stan Hack, manager of the Chicago Cubs; major league baseball players Tom Glaviano, Bruce Edwards, Gordon Jones; rookies Woody Held, Harry Dunlop, and Bobby Williams; George Theodoratos, Washington State College track and baseball star; Olympic standouts Tommy Kono and George Stanich; Joe Ulm, professional football player.

Many in Sacramento High School Class of '73 Gained Prominence

Dear Miss Genteman:-

Regret very much that I have no copies of the Ninth & M High School publication,of which the late Clarence Hunt and I were owners.

This had to be commenced at private expense by us-2 kids. It was said in those days that it was the pioneer venture of that kind in all California. It gave Hunt the training for his later work as editor of the "Grizzly Bear". It also made possible the use of the photographs of us-2 at the ruins of Fort Ross after the San Francisco earthquake of 1906. Thus Hunt's paper with my data initiated the movement by which the NSGW and NDGW brought the Fort Ross unit into eventually the State Park System. Undersigned's photographs quite recently were made the basis of the current restoration of Fort Ross with all that means to California history.

Sincerely,

My dear Chairman MacBride:-

You asked for suggestions for the Centennial Steering Committee:-

(a) You may conclude,wherever you are holding your meetings,to stimulate interest by having an exhibit of those awful yesteryear class photographs. The change in styles alone would cause the gossip that is always desirable toward building up interest.

(b) It is possible,tho hardly probable,you might find a copy of the High School paper that the late Clarence Hunt and myself founded. It has been repeatedly mentioned as the first High School paper in California. It was a rare training ground for Clarence. He made editorship his life profession. He was Editor of "Grizzly Bear" until his death (incidently the acquisition of Fort Ross State Park financed by the NSGW came when I sent Clarence the photographs we-2 took of the ruins after the San Francisco earthquake.)

(c) It occurs to me that you might care to have a mimeograph sheet of oldtimers' recollections, preferably humorous, limited sternly to the old dayletter size of 25 words. My own experience with such public relations material is that it should never be more than 1-page, tho it might be stretched to the legal size of paper. As to my own class of 1891, I think there are only 3 survivors besides myself:- Nellie Mott, now Mrs.Doctor Jones of Nevada City...William Winn,who has become rather noted as a student of California history...and Admiral Cyrus Miller.The last I heard from Cy he was living in retirement in Florida.

Sorry I cannot think of anything better.As I not only want to see this a success,but feel that it should spotlight your own ability as a leader. Because I am deeply tho unostentatiously in politics I am profoundly interested in the future of a Brother Mason. Who knows what it may lead to.

Sincerely, C M G

P.S. You may have some expenses in connection with this. May I send you herewith the widow's mite toward the same?

Gentlemen:-

In case I am not able to register June 2nd, you may care for the following bit of testimony from the class of 1891:-

The High School had a debating club. It was christened "Fremontia" from the plant Fremont discovered at the summit of Mt.Fremont, then visible from Sacramento---this before buildings obstructed the view. I was the first president of the Club. As I reflect upon its work, I grasp that it was in that School club I really, (tho painfully sensitive as a teenager,) gained practically everything that started me on my 65 years of public speaking. This grew to be worldwide, even Down Under in my father's native Australia in discussions of their immigration control, also in my lectures given in German in Germany. This would probably not have been possible had dear old Professor Lipowitz not ruled us sternly. He used to say:- "You can forget your names,but you will never forget your German conjugations".

Also the 9th & M Street school was one base of my own life devotion to nature study. Our Latin professor,Dr.Dahl was a Copenhagen native. He made Latin so interesting that I not only read the first required book of Caesar,but all the other books. Then I took my Latin texts with me on the trips to France so as to read them on the battle fields as the one near Claremont-Ferand.

Dr.Dahl had been in charge of the Royal Botanical Garden in the Danish West Indies. The botany class used to meet at 9th & M Saturday mornings. We would hike to the spots he selected. One of these was across the Y Street levee east of 21st Street---another was across the R Street levee about 6th Street. On that expedition I recall his enthusiasm at finding Datisca Glamorata. It is an inconspicuous plant with green flowers. It is,however, the type of a small and rather rare family Datiscaceae. This incident I had forgetten for over 65 years, yet so marked was his ability to teach that the lesson comes to my mind as clearly as if it were yesterday.

Sincerely, C M Goethe

PRESENTED TO THE SACRAMENTO HIGH SCHOOL BY WENT T. CROWELL

Sacramento ----- Oct 19th 1926

The first building built in Sacramento for school purposes was located on I Street between 3rd and 4th - built by Professor Shepard. The first school was opened by C. H. Palmer in July 1849. He had about nine pupils, and he only ran the school for a short time. Then Rev. J. A. Benton opened a school for poor children and kept it open as long as the weather and the streets would let the children come.

- - - - -

The first public school in Sacramento was at the corner of 5th & K Streets. It opened in 1853. The County Board of Education consisted of the following members:-

H. W. Harkness, H. J. Biderman, George Wiggins, J. G. Phelan.

At that time there were about 250 school children in Sacramento, out of a population of close to 20,000.

The first organization of the High School was in 1863 and was located in the third story of the Franklin School Building, 6th & L Streets; - The first brick school house built by the City. At that time there were about 50 pupils in the School. A three years term for graduation. The first graduating class (1864) consisted of two young ladies - Mary J. Morgan and Mary E. Hurd. The second class consisted of ten members, seven young men and three young ladies.

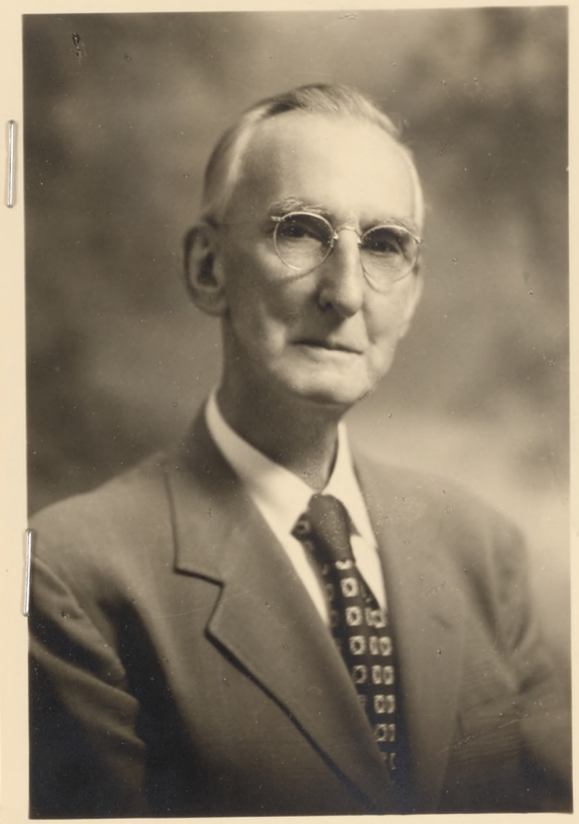
The Third Class consisted of twenty-one pupils - mostly girls.

I was a Student in the School from 1863 to 1866.



Presented to
S.H.S. by Edgar A. Stickney,
graduate of 1892.

THE DATE OF THE FOUNDING OF

THE FIRST HIGH SCHOOL

IN CALIFORNIA

BY

JERRY SMITH, CHAIRMAN
MAXINE McCARTHY, SECRETARY
DANNY BUHLER

Year 1937

The problem before this committee, that of finding the date of the oldest high school in California, is a difficult one. In the first place, we were hindered by not having enough interested pioneers who recorded such dates. Perhaps it wasn't their fault, because communication in such a large state as California at that time was not easy. In the second place, we were hindered by persons not answering our letters, or not answering the questions asked. At any rate, as loyal sons and daughters of Sacramento High School, we naturally wanted our school to be the oldest. But, we regret to report that the findings of our research can be summarized in one short sentence:

> "The oldest high school in California is Lowell, and the second oldest is Sacramento, there being only sixteen days difference between the two dates, (August 16, 1856--Lowell; September 1, 1856--Sacramento)."

Our first communication was with Mr. Jensen who hoped to prove that our school was founded in 1854. To date we have been unable to prove this. (The only connection this committee can find with the date 1854 is that it was in that year plans were made, etc. This is also true of San Francisco.)

Next, we proceeded to run down other leads. Mrs. Wanzer supplied us with the information ~~that the information~~ that the ~~forunding~~ founding of the Sacramento institution was in September 1855, the date appearing in an old copy of the ~~Thesis~~ Themis Weekly, an old newspaper edited by a member of the Board of Education and a Legislator. We then wrote to the Sacramento Union, and upon receiving their answer, went to the State Library and found the date to be September 1856. We also found an account in the school library, giving the date of the founding as 1864. The account, written by a pioneer of this area, also included a picture of the first graduating class in 1864. This would appear to make the date of the founding 1860, but this is inaccurate, because, as Mr. Jensen explained, many years passed before anyone graduated. After that we came upon a story in the Lowell Handbook which told of the date of the founding of their institution as being in September 1856. Our next step was to write to ~~Dowell~~ Lowell High, and the Supervisor of Education at San Francisco. The latter turned our letter over to the W.P.A. Writer's Project in that city. The information from ~~Dowell~~ Lowell High School was useless, having merely referred us back to the handbook. After a few weeks we received an answer from the W.P.A., fixing the date of the founding of the first high school in California as August 16, 1856, the name being Union Grammar School, an ancestor or the present Lowell.

Then we communicated with Mr. Peterson of Sutter's Fort. He was very sorry that he was unable to help us. We then visited Mr. Hughes' office, where we received the same information as that given by the W.P.A. in San Francisco. Following this we wrote to Miss Gillis, the State Librarian, who referred us to the Quarterly of January 1933, which contained a series of articles on the "Origin and Development of the Public High School in California", by Dr. John. N. Napier, Jr. The findings of this article will be discussed later.

Our next move was to appear before Mr. Jensen, who suggested that we write to Professor Owen C. Coy, University of Southern California, Los Angeles. We have not as yet received an answer from him.

Then Mr. Jensen decided to take a much needed hand in the matter and communicated with Mr. Edward Crandall, of the W.P.A. WRiter's Project in Sacramento. Mr. Crandall was exceptionally helpful. He almost definitely proved that Lowell High was founded first.

The following authorities all agree that the date of the founding of the San Francisco High School was August 16, 1856, and that of the Sacramento institution either sixteen days later or in 1859. (The committee believes the latter date to be incorrect):

State Department of Education Files
Sacramento Union Files
Dr. John N. Napier, Jr.
Dr. L. H. Peterson (University of California).
G. Walter Reed's "History of Sacramento County."
W. L. Willis' "History of Sacramento County."
Hon. W. L. Davis' "An Illustrated History of Sacramento County."
Research of Mr. Edw. Crandall of the Sacramento W.P.A.
Sacramento Bee
W.P.A. of San Francisco
San Francisco Chronicle
Mr. Hughes' information
Mrs. Wanzer's information

It is not probable that Professor Owen C. Coy's research will throw any light on the subject. So, until further information is secured we will have to satisfied with being the second oldest high school in California. Perhaps we can do as Mr. Jensen suggested and have the Legislature pass a bill, naming Sacramento High School as the first founded in the state.

NOTES ON THE HISTORY OF SACRAMENTO HIGH SCHOOL

I. How to keep notes in order.

A. File all material under one year headings and use subtopics.

B. Put source of information on material and file it under corredt heading. List the author, the title, the date of publication, the actual pages on which you found your information, and, for your own information, put in parentheses where you got the information.

C. Begin at the beginning and don't jump all around; file all notes concerning future dates at home or in your notebook.

II. Make sure that we are the oldest school in California by writing a let er to Lowell High School in San Francisco, which might be older than us; also get information from Mr. Smith and Dr. Murphey. Both know a lot about Lowell, as well as our own school.

III. Sources of information.

A. X-Ray and Review
B. City and State Librarys
C. Elderly people who have lived in Sacramento allong time.
D. Native Sons and Daughters
E. Notes from meetings of the school board.
F. Old newspapers
G. Notes kept by the historian of each class.

IV. Suggested meetings for discussion of findings.

A. Meet in class every Friday for discussion of history of Sacramento High School only.
B. Meet in cafeteria every day or on some specified day to discuss the findings of the class.
C. Form a club to continue the work that we start.

On Friday, February 20, the class held a discussion on the material and sources needed for writing the history of the school.

Six committees were decided upon for the research work. They are as follows:

1) The X-Ray and Review Committee
2) The Library Committee (City and State)
3) The People Committee (on which everyone may work)
4) Native Sons and Daughters Committee
5) The School Board Committee
6) The Commercial Committee

It was agreed that the main meetings would be held every Friday. Other meetings will be called during lunch when important information is obtained that was not discussed in class. All information will be given complete acknowledgement.

The title, date of publishing, publisher, and an edition charge was discussed but is not final. Importance was stressed on the point of using enough information on the early years and not too much on recent years.

Information concerning Lowell High School is to be obtained about the charters of establishment to determine which school is older.

Mr. Smith and Dr. Murphy are to be consulted for information and aid in research. Some information may be found in the Capital Building. The State Historian and School Historian are to be questioned on the history of the school. In a school safe there is a scrap book which may provide valuable information.

As there are so many important events in a school calendar year, it was suggested, that we use a filing cabinet with one year topics and several sub-topics. It was also suggested that we use two filing cabinets, one for temporary use until the information is ready for permanent filing where it will remain until all information is ready.

HISTORY OF SACRAMENTO SCHOOLS IS INSPIRING

Sacramento High school has progressed from a position where it was considered a minor adjunct of the city's elementary school system to the largest educational unit in Sacramento, with an enrollment of almost 3000 students, housed in buildings costing $1,400,000.

It was not until about six years after the first school was started in this city that a high school was considered a necessity. Dr. F. W. Hatch, a member of the board of education, first made the proposal for the establishment of a secondary unit on May 12, 1855, and the first high school was founded the following year as a part of the school at Eighth and M streets.

John M. Howe was appointed to teach history, astronomy, bookkeeping, Latin, French and Spanish. He was the only instructor. He was succeeded by several other teachers, but it was not until May 20, 1858, that the school was believed large enough to appoint a principal. To Charles A. Swift went the honor of being the first principal of Sacramento High school.

In July, 1865, the school was moved to Seventh and G streets, where it remained until 1876. There are no records of registration prior to 1861, but in the next year there were 21 boys and 18 girls enrolled.

The first class to graduate, in 1864, consisted of two members, Mary J. Morgan and Mary E. Hurd. The following year, 1865, there were ten students in the graduating class.

By 1873 the number of students had reached a total of 113. In the same year there were 11 students graduated. From this time on, yearly growth in enrollment was steady, with few exceptions.

A new building at Fifth and K, costing $10,000, was occupied in 1876. An addition was built in 1904, but this was soon overcrowded. so that in 1907 the building at 18th and K streets, now known as Sutter Junior high school, was erected.

This location, however, was soon crowded by the expansion of Sacramento, and in 1920 and 1922 bond issues were voted for the construction of the present school at 35th and Y streets. It was completed in 1924 at a cost of $1,400,000; $180,000 was spent in equipment in addition.

With the general design of the building and the landscape gardening, he High school has become one of the most beautiful schools in the state. At the present time there are more than 2800 students enrolled.

CLASS SONG.

FIRST VERSE.

Loved school-mates, tho' we never Again press each other's hand,
We'll be true to Alma Mater
Wherever we may stand.
Treasuring up each mem'ry here,
Keeping ever each image dear;
Working on with might and main
Till the glorious end we gain.

SECOND VERSE.

One moment still we linger
Ere our lips can say "farewell;"
We look with deep affection
On the friends we've loved so well.
Many a prayer is whispered low—
May God bless us as we go;
Guide us in His perfect way
To the realms of endless day.

A three car collision injured three persons seriously near here Saturday evening and hurt two others.

The highway patrol said a car driven by Joe Del Porta of Sacramento skidded into an oncoming automobile operated by David A. Barnard of Oakland, which was forced backward into a third car driven by Cleo J. Determan of 1913 Keith Way, North Sacramento. to.

Del Porta suffered minor injuries and his passenger, Freda Zazzetti of Sacramento, suffered a fracture of a leg.

Barnard was unhurt but his passengers, Ann Barnard of Oakland and Marshall and Marian Babcock of Redwood City, suffered major injuries. Determan was not hurt.

The accident occurred one and one half miles east of here on US Highway 40.

The loss of Hell's Canyon for the development for future generations, the needless imposition of tribute on all the people of the area for the benefit of the Power Trust—to me these are things absolutely immoral and unexcusable."

Stevenson, in a speech in Redding on May 17th, had said he could find nothing wrong with the theory of power partnership but did find a lot wrong with the practice of the theory by the Republican administration.

No Development

From Redding, Kefauver flew by plane down the valley and was greeted by a crowd at the Red Bluff, Tehama County, Airport. There he reiterated his criticism of the partnership plan and declared the administration "has not developed one kilowatt of electric power since it has been in office."

He visited Chico, Butte County, where he made a telephone dinner and speaking session earlier.

San Juan Water Unit Puts Main In Service

ORANGEVALE — L. K. Jordan, manager of the San Juan Surburban Water District, reported today the new 40 inch main from the district's penstock chlorination plant to the Fair Oaks meter house is in service.

The changeover from the old 28 inch line was accomplished in about 12 hours and Jordan said, without a hitch. The line had been scheduled to go into service May 7th but a rainstorm washed soil underneath the pipe and caused several breaks.

The line is designed for a maximum capacity of about 1,500 miner's inches, the equivalent of 20,000,000 gallons per day.

Events Draw Throng To Mark Centennial Of Sacramento High

By Thor Severson

Sacramentans leafed back through the 100 years of history Saturday of Sacramento High School in observing the centennial anniversary of the school—one of the oldest public high schools in the west.

Old grads, to use the campus expression, walked the familiar old grounds, renewed old friendships and exchanged greetings with classmates—many of whom had been forgotten through the long years.

But for others, the walk down Memory Lane was a strange rendezvous—for the school has had nine addresses since it was founded in 1856. In succession, it had been located:

On M Streets between 8th and 9th Streets, on the northeast corner of 5th and K Streets, on the southwest corner of 6th and L Streets, at 7th and G Streets, on 7th between J and K Streets, in the Old Pioneer Hall, at 9th and M Streets, at 19th and K, and, finally, at 2315 34th Streets, its location since 1924.

Varied Observances

The weekend observance began with a parade Friday night through downtown Sacramento, featured a reunion picnic on the school campus Saturday, and was climaxed with a formal commemoration program on the campus Saturday afternoon.

F. Melvyn Lawson, deputy superintendent of Sacramento public schools, characterized the high school as a great human laboratory. It is an institution in which students not only learn to find answers to subject matter, he said—they also learn to find themselves.

"Few indeed have been the business firms, the industrial concerns, the political institutions or the social organizations in this community for the last 100 years that have not felt the impact and the influence of Sacramento High School," he said. "For a century, the school has effectively helped to train Sacramentans to live and to make a living.

Great Welding Link

"Our public schools are one of the most important instruments we have for welding our people together, and they do it by taking people of all situations in life and giving them an understanding of our language, our traditions and our institutions, and by teaching them to work together for the good of all."

Then Herman Phleger, a 1908 graduate and a key adviser to the state department in Washington, DC, reminisced over the century of history associated with Sacramento High.

And he hinted he thought the old standards were probably more productive of men who matched the mountains than the standards set today by a more restless, complex conscious society.

He referred to the school of 50 years ago, the Sacramento High School he knew intimately.

Quaint Structure

"It was a frame three story building, a faded brown in color," he recalled. "Huge timber beams had been put through from side to side to keep its tired frame from collapsing.

"It had no playground, no athletic field, and no gymnasium. It was heated with wood stoves. There was no auditorium. We held our graduation exercises in the assembly chamber in the Capitol.

"But before you begin to feel sorry for us, let me tell you what we did have.

"We had a wonderful group of teachers. We had a selection of courses that included Latin, Greek, German, French, English, mathematics and history. I can assure you that when you took a subject you passed it credibly—or else. Although Sigmund Freud was born the very year in which Sacramento High was founded, we had not yet heard of inferiority complexes so if we didn't make the grade we took the course over again."

Classic Is Required

He recalled he once was required by Miss May Green, his English teacher, to remain after school for an hour and one half each night for two weeks to learn Bryant's Thanatopsis.

"Well, strange as it may seem," Phleger recalled, "I learned that poem, and so well that I can still recite it. And it was years before I came to realize that in order to keep me one hour and a half after schools, Miss Green had to stay too."

Phleger said there is "no short cut to learning." It still takes sweat, tears, sheer determination and ambition, he insisted. Easy come, easy go education is just as worthless, he stated, as the easy come, easy go dollars.

Part Of Heritage

He asserted freedom to think, to learn, to challenge, to go just as far as one's own capacity and ambition will carry him is part of the American heritage.

"When I speak of free education," he declared, "I mean freedom to seek and to learn the truth. In Communist countries, the student must take the courses prescribed, think the thoughts he is told to think and accept as truth what is served out as the truth."

Phleger was introduced by Assemblyman Thomas J. MacBride, general chairman of the centennial observance, who described Phleger as one of Sacramento High School's most distinguished graduates.

Two of Sacramento High's earlier graduates, Mrs. Martha Wiesel Franz, a member of the class of 1888, and Mrs. T. C. Feeney Kelly, class of 1889, were introduced by MacBride.

Plaques Are Given

Centennial plaques were presented by Marie Stebbins, deputy grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and Philip C. Wilkins, past grand president of the Native Sons of the Golden West. They were accepted by Dr. Albert J. Sessarego, principal.

Here and there, today's generation of high school students gathered in small groups. They found it hard to think in terms of a full century. The year 1856, to them, is just a year in history, a year of history that even antedates Lincoln as president.

But they could see the evidence on all sides that, one day, they will be adults, and will have children, and will grow older, then grow old.

And that while they will pass from the scene, too, just as the generation before them, Sacramento High will still be Sacramento High—wiser a teacher for its century of experience, more mellow, more patient for its 100 years.

'OLD GRADS' Here is a portion of the graduates of Sacramento High School who gathered at the school Saturday to reminisce and celebrate the school's centennial anniversary.

Remarks by Herman Phleger, The Legal Adviser of the Department of State, at the celebration of the 100th Anniversary of the Founding of Sacramento High School. June 2, 1956. Sacramento, California.

Friends and Schoolmates

In 1856, just 8 years after gold was discovered in California, Sacramento High School was established. Today it celebrates its centennial birthday.

In that same year - 1856 - Casey killed James King of William and the Vigilantes were organized; John Brown made his raid in Kansas; California's first railroad - from Sacramento to Folsom - opened for traffic; Stephen Foster composed Gentle Annie; and Richard Wagner completed Die Walkure. California's population was less than 400,000.

That the early settlers of Sacramento, burdened with the tasks of earning their daily bread, establishing law and order and building a city in spite of fires and floods, should, at this early date, have made the sacrifices necessary to found and maintain a high school, is but another proof of their greatness,

We who have been privileged to follow them, and who have enjoyed the fruits of their foresight and generosity owe them homage and our deep gratitude.

It is said that the first community act of the Pilgrim settlers after they landed in New England was to establish a church; while that of the California Argonauts was to build a school. Whether true or not, it is significant that in the pioneer communities of California, the obligation to provide education for the youth was early recognized and discharged. Sacramento has continued on the high plane set by these founders by providing free educational facilities of the highest order. The generations of students who have enjoyed these privileges owe a debt of gratitude for this, also.

They also owe a debt of gratitude to the teachers who over the years have provided the instruction, without which the educational facilities would have been profitless. Overworked and underpaid, these devoted and tireless servants of education deserve and receive our deepest appreciation. It is one of the ironies of fate, that it is only with the passing of the years, that the student comes to realize the debt he owes his teachers - often too late to convey them in person.

Now 100 years is a long time. In speculating as to why I was asked to speak today, I came to the conclusion that it was because I represent just the half-way mark. 50 years ago I had just finished my second year in High School. Evidently I was picked as Exhibit A of what the student of 50 years ago looked like.

I'm sure you expected to see our generation arrive in wheel chairs, wearing toupees, and tuning our hearing aids. Instead of that, I ask you to observe our marcel waves, our sport clothes and our wandering eyes.

When I was in High School we had a drawing teacher, Prof. Winter. He had a sharp pointed beard like Van Dyke, though I assure you he was no Van Dyke. One day, I found him looking over my shoulder. He said to me, "Draw a big fish." I drew a fish that occupied most of my drawing pad. When I had finished, he looked at it and said, "That's not a big fish, that's a little fish - I want you to draw me a big fish."

I thought quite a while, then drew in one corner, under the first fish, another fish, but a very small figure of a fish. "There", I said, "is a small fish, the first one is a big fish." "Correct," said Mr. Winter. Then and there I learned a lesson that has ever since stood me in good stead - it is that values are comparative: that a thing is great or small, or high or low, or old or young, principally by comparison. Perspective tells you whether you are making progress. We measure where we are today by where we were yesterday.

So I judge that one way to estimate where this school is today and what its progress has been, is to compare it with what it was 50 years ago.

Sacramento was then a beautiful city of about 30,000, entirely surrounded by levees. Front, and 31, and B and Y. Many a time I have gone up on the Capitol Dome in winter, and seen nothing but water beyond the levees, with Sacramento like an island in an ocean of flood water.

50 years ago, the High School was at 9th and M. It remained there 31 years - from 1877 to 1908 - when it was moved to 19th and K. I was in the Class of 1908, the last class to graduate at 9th and M. I'm sure the building collapsed the very next year.

It was a frame three-s tory building - a faded brown in color. Huge timber beams had been put through from side to side to keep its tired frame from collapsing.

It had no playground - no athletic field - and no gymnasium. It was heated with wood stoves. There was no auditorium. We held our graduation exercises in the Assembly Chamber at the Capitol.

There wasn't sufficient room in the building for the science laboratories or drawing so the students marched over to the Perry Seminary at 11th and I, for their classes in these subjects.

There was no lunch room or cafeteria.

There were no athletic instructors. The football team practiced on the Capitol lawn. It was coached by Jedd McClatchy, and played its local games on the cement-like infield of the baseball diamond at Oak Park.

We had no automobiles, no movies, no radios, no televisions and no fly-now, pay-later airplane vacations.

But before you begin to feel sorry for us, let me tell you what we did have.

We had a wonderful group of teachers. Professor Tade was the principal, and among others we had as teachers, Miss Barklay, Miss Morton, Miss Comstock, Miss Herrick, the two Miss Greens and Professors Fryer and Clewe - 16 in all.

We had a selection of courses that included Latin, Greek, German, French, English, Mathematics, and history. I can assure you that when you took a subject you passed it credibly - or else. Although Sigmund Freud was born the very year in which Sacramento High was founded, we had not yet heard of inferiority complexes, so if we didn't make the grade, we took the course over again.

I remember an experience I had with one of our teachers, Miss May Green, glish. She was small and mild, but she had a will of iron. In her classes in English you were expected to memorize a certain amount of poetry. I was told to memorize Bryant's Thanatopsis. I got myself into the frame of mind where I thought I couldn't learn it - a mental block or something like that, so I told Miss Green. Was Miss Green sympathetic and say that's all right - you are excused? Not at all. She said, with a glint in her steel blue eyes, "We'll see about that: you remain after school an hour and a half each day until you memorize t hat poem." Well, strange as it may seem, after some two weeks, I learned that poem, and so well that I can still recite it. And it was years before I came to realize that in order to keep me one hour and a half after school, Miss Green had to stay too.

We may not have had the selection of courses you have now, and we did not have the elective system, but we had fine teachers and worthwhile subjects. I have discovered that there is no royal road to learning. Electronic brains and calculating machines are no help to you in plane geometry and no one has yet found a successful short cut to learning composition or Latin or mathematics, or anything else for that matter. Blood, sweat, tears, sheer determination and ambition still seem to be the essential requirements for a worthwhile education. Easy come - easy go, is just as true in education as in economics.

We had a wonderful body of students. There were about 350 in all, and as this was the only High School in the county, they came from far and wide, and boarded in town. They came from Folsom and Davis, and Mayhew and Florin and Rio Vista.

The girls were beautiful and the boys were husky and full of energy and fun. The friendships we made then have lasted all our lives.

We had dances in the winter in Turner's Hall, which had a famous spring floor. There we danced the waltz and two-step to the strains of "Meet me in Dreamland" and "Under the Bamboo Tree" played by Noack's orchestra. Jitterbugging and ha-cha had not been invented, but we never missed them. Dance programs were made out weeks in advance, and trading dances was a science in itself. No

On the night of the dance we all went in horse drawn hacks, two couples to a hack, arranged long in advance. The early birds got hacks with rubber tires, the laggards were condemned to jolt along on iron tires.

In the summer we had picnics on the river.

We had football, baseball and basketball teams. These teams used to make adventurous trips to Auburn and to Woodland, which were so far away we had to take the train on Friday afternoon, to get there in time for the game.

And a dollar was worth a dollar or maybe a lot more.

J. H. Heitman would make a fine tailored suit for $25. You could buy wild duck from Panama Murphy, at Dierssons on J Street for 25¢ each.

If you had a thirst you could do something about it. At Rhustallers Brewery at 12th and I, you could get a huge vase-like glass of steam beer, with a free lunch thrown in, all for 5¢.

You could even get a haircut for 25¢ and an ice cream soda for a dime. They sold hot chicken tamales and Alameda hot corn from little wagons on the streets for 10 and 15 cents.

It was a grand and glorious time. We didn't miss a thing.

I know it is just as grand today. With this beautiful school, and its fine faculty, opportunity is open to every student to achieve the limit of his capabilities. It is up to him - just as it has always been up to the s tudent - for the first and essential requirement for an education is ambition, determination and industry.

Free education in America is the very foundation of our liberty and way of life. Freedom to think, to learn, to challenge, to go just as far as one's own capacity and ambition will carry him, are part of our heritage. They are the best guaranty that our children and our children's children will enjoy these same liberties.

When I speak of free education, I mean freedom to seek and learn the truth. In communist countries, one does not have to pay to go to school, but education is not free. The student must take the courses prescribed, think the thoughts he is told to think, and accept as truth what is served out as the truth. Recently in Soviet Russia all the history books in secondary schools were withdrawn so the history about Stalin could be rewritten. The only incidental benefit was that the pupils were excused from final history exams pending the issue of the new histories.

In repayment of the debt we owe to our system of free education we must do all in our power to support, to sustain, and advance its cause. To do less would be base ingratitude.

We are indeed fortunate to be here today. To do honor to our school - and to our teachers - to renew old friendships and pay a tribute of gratitude to those who founded this school and have maintained it all these years.

It is a rare privilege to have been brought up in Sacramento and to have enjoyed the benefits of its schools and the warm-hearted friendship of its people. May we all live to repay in full the debt we owe to our city and this school and to the people of Sacramento.

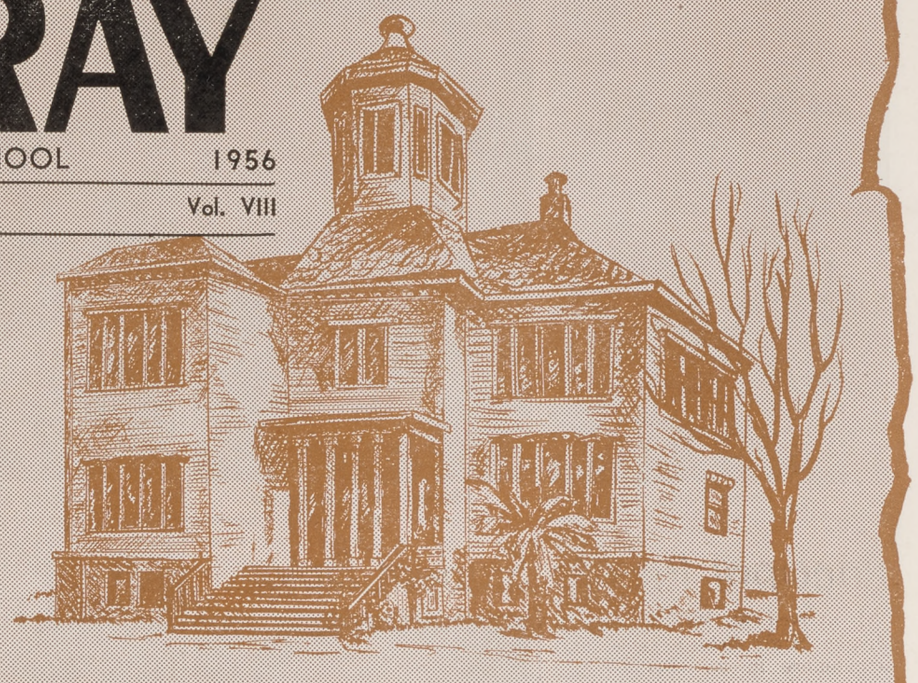
1856 SACRAMENTO SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL 1956

No. 31 Sacramento, California, June 2, 1956 Vol. VIII

FIRST HOME

In 1856 Sacramento High School started in a small structure on M between 8th and 9th Streets. After three moves the first high school building (shown here) was erected at the northeast corner of 9th and M Streets for $10,687 and was occupied January 1, 1877.



CENTENNIAL

SECOND HOME

The tremendous growth of the school required additional facilities, and a new building at 18th and K Streets was ready for occupancy in 1909. The structure was erected at a cost of $254,500. That same year (1909) the old school burned.

Our Home Today

In 1924 a $1,225,000 modern school plant on the city's outskirts (34th and Y Streets) was ready for occupancy. In 1937 a bulging enrollment demanded another senior high; thus C.K. Mc Clatchy emerged. Today, a century after the founding of Sacramento High, plans are underway for the construction of a third high school.

Principal Recalls Student Days

I arrived at the Sacramento Senior High School as a high sophomore in an overcoat that was too short and cords that were too long; and the cords were CLEAN, an almost unpardonable affront to the fashions of the time. All boys wore cords, as I remember, and in the manner of youth who perpetually attempt to shock the older generation, did not apply soap and water to the pants until the parents demanded an accounting.

The present building was one and one-half years old at the time of my arrival. It was in the, then, southeastern part of town. I suppose it was beautiful to most people, but to me it was huge, and forbidding. There were no trees or shrubs to blend its immensity into the surrounding neighborhood, which was mostly fields and vacant lots. I had arrived in Sacramento only three days before from a small town whose high school of four hundred students I attended for a year as a freshman. And here there were two thousand nine hundred students!

I inquired of one whose pomp and bearing suggested senior, or at least high junior status, the route to the office. There were no peppers or pepperettes then; one just found his way about as best he could. At the counter in the lobby I was informed as to what courses were required for eventual graduation and was invited to join the rush for whatever classes I chose. The practice was for everyone to rush for classes at the sounding of a bell; the first twenty seven to arrive got the seats and the remainder went back to the lobby and started over again with a new program. It took me almost two semesters to find Room 108, and by that time I was no longer interested in metal shop.

Within a week I decided to join a club in an attempt to get better acquainted, and soon I had many good friends, whose friendships I treasure to this day. With these friendships came a feeling of "belonging" here. The building was no longer forbidding; it was MY SCHOOL. I sometimes wonder if mine wasn't a typical experience which has been repeated by tens of thousands of students in Sacramento High School. I have watched bewildered sophomores grow into mature leaders of the student body who complain that graduation comes too soon for them also.

I enjoy the beginning of each

semester. The young men and young women who come as sophomores are the children of the friends I knew at Sacramento High. Many times, as I direct a new student to room 1 or 10, or 24, I wonder if he could be the son of the senior who helped me find the office. Oftimes the resemblance is very striking.

Miss Belle Cooledge Becomes First Local Woman Mayor

One of the best known of all Sacramento High graduates was Miss Belle Cooledge, the only woman to become mayor of Sacramento. Born July 29, 1884, Miss Cooledge left her home in Sutter Creek to attend Sacramento High.

She graduated from high school in 1900. From there she went on to the University of California to major in chemistry and returned to Sacramento High as a teacher in 1912. After 35 years of service in the local schools, she resigned as vice president of Sacramento Junior College in 1947.

She was chosen mayor in 1947. Miss Cooledge died in her home Nov. 9, 1955 at the age of 71.

The nearest Miss Cooledge ever came to getting into trouble was when she was a student here at Sac. One class in which she was enrolled was given the privilege of going to the State Library periodically. One day the elevator stuck and was impounded for an hour. When she and several other students returned to school, Principal James Pond was a bit indignant until the story was verified.

Former Students Gain Success

Since the first graduating class of 1864, Sacramento High School has graduated many students who have gained renown.

Carlton E. Morse, author and writer of the popular radio serials, "One Man's Family," and "I Love A Mystery," is one of the most well known former Dragons. Another graduate of Sacramento High, Herb Caen, is now a columnist for the San Francisco Examiner. Harry Bonath, formerly of Dragonville, is a talented cartoonist.

In the spotlight of the music world we catch the sound of former Sac students: Stanley Noonan, concert baritone and member of the Metropolitan Opera; Lawerence Hahn, nationally-known pianist; Harry McKnight, singer and composer; Lois Hodgson, opera singer; Estelle Caen, well-known concert pianist; and Dick Jurgens, dance-band leader.

"Fight, Dragons, Fight," was written by Robert Mallett who graduated in 1933. Mallett now travels as a lecturer under name of Kent Roberts.

Bartley W. Cavanaugh, a 1922 student body president, is the present city manager. Gordon Fleury, former boys' vice president and a graduate of 1934, is now a superior judge for Sacramento County.

Clarence Breuner, president of the John Breuner Company, is one of the graduates who has been successful in the business world.

Charles M. Goethe, a graduate of 1891, is one of the most famous of all naturalists in the world today. Mr. Goethe has a grove of redwoods in upper California named in his honor. He was honored March 8, by the city teachers when he was picked as having contributed more than any other Sacramentan to education.

Bill Rase, who heads a dance band, also entertains local radio and television audiences as a disc jockey. Mel Venter works as a radio announcer and a quiz program emcee out of San Francisco.

Dr. Albert J. Sessarego, principal, and many of the staff and faculty once were students here.

Century Brings Progress In Life Of High School

It was amidst the clopping of horses hoofs and the swishing of young girls' dresses, that the first class (9 boys and 12 girls) entered Sacramento High School Monday, Sept. 1, 1856 (just two weeks later than Lowell in San Francisco, making Sacramento the second oldest high school west of the Mississippi River).

John M. Howe served as a one-man faculty and principal that first year and was succeeded by C. A. Hill, who added Greek to the curriculum, which already included: history, astronomy, bookkeeping, Latin, French, and Spanish. Hill served for only a few months and was succeeded by A. R. Jackson.

Early in 1858 the high school moved to Fifth and K Streets and in May Charles A. Swift was appointed principal.

Recognizes Practical

The first big change took place in Nov., 1859 when a committee of the Board urged that the high school be changed from one emphasizing the classical only to one which would prepare those who wished to enter life as merchants, manufacturers, machinists, mechanics, surveyors, etc.

In Oct., 1860 classes were moved to the Franklin Grammar School building at Sixth and L Streets.

Again in July of 1865 the school changed addresses - - this time to Seventh and G where it remained until 1877.

A high school building at the northeast corner of Ninth and M Streets was completed Sept. 2, 1876 and was occupied by students in January of 1877. The structure was 60 by 70 feet in size, consisted of two stories and a basement, and cost $10,687 to build. The enrollment increased steadily and in 1904 (enrollment-333) it was necessary to build on an addition. Even the extra building, which doubled the space, could not handle the ever-growing student body, and in 1909 the structure at 18th and K was opened.

Strangely, after moving to the new edifice, the old building at 9th and M burned to the ground. The 18th and K school had 35 classrooms and cost $254,500. It is still occupied (Sutter Junior High) by school youngsters and stands as a reminder of Sacramento High's tremendous growth.

Growth Continues

Although the new building was expected to be adequate for many years to come, it was soon apparent that the growth of Sacramento called for additional school facilities, and shortly after Mr. Dale became principal the high school came in for a sizable share of the bonds voted for new school buildings throughout the city. Classes moved into the impressive new structure, (then considered one of the most beautful high schools in the State) in the fall of 1924. It was modern from its front doors to the bolts of the gymnasium, and cost $1,500,443 with space for a capacity of 2,500 students.

Although still using the same structure, expansion at the 34th and Y campus continues. The school became so crowded by 1933 that the productive art classes were taught in the clock tower. It was a great relief to a student body of over 4000 when Mc Clatchy was completed in 1937 and could take one third of the young people.

In 1939 the gymnasium (now the girls' gym annex) was built on the ground where the tennis courts had stood. Closely following, in 1940, was the dedication of the beautiful new auditorium. And last of the improvements included construction of the new cafeteria (completed Jan. 3, 1951) and the pavilion (finished Jan. 28, 1952).

Sacramento High Pioneers Efforts For Young Leaders

"A government of the people, for the people and by the people," Such is true in the United States of America, and, within the portals of Sacramento Senior High School. For Sac High is one of the few schools in California fortunate enough to carry a student government class as an active part of its curriculum.

The class is defined by Mr. Marion Benedetti, adviser of student affairs, as one where the student leaders of the school meet in an informal situation for an hour each day and try to solve the student problems, as well as promote school activities.

In 1913 the first real attempt by the students to govern themselves was inaugurated and named Student Control. The Review of 1915 states meetings were held every Wednesday in which "the regulation of activity permits, the adoption of activity tickets, and the financial management of football" were attended to.

This plan, however, failed in 1918 due to lack of co-operation between students, faculty, and student officers.

Gordon Fleury Helps Start Peppers In 1933

Need for a group to expend youthful enthusiasm to advantage led to the formation of the Peppers in the fall of 1933 under the leadership of Gordon Fleury, now a superior judge in Sacramento. Mr. W. J. McClarrennon was the first faculty sponsor. Mr. McClarrennon, now retired, states that the Peppers gave all students a chance to join a group standing for highest type of sportsmanship.

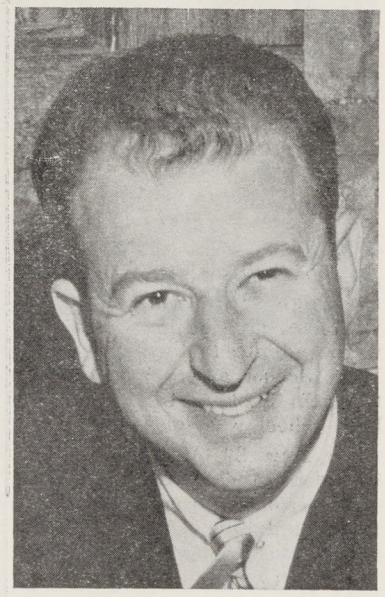
Corridor Gossip

. . . . . A Few Years Later

By Herb Caen

Herb Caen, well-known columnist with the Examiner who was on the X-Ray staff back in 1932, graciously took time to write the following article for this special edition.

A hundred years isn't such a long time - even for a high school. Looking back, it seems that I spent a hundred years there myself, although the records will probably show that I was a student at SHS only from 1929, the Year of the Crash, to 1932, the Year of Franklin Roosevelt.



Herb Caen

Of course, I really shouldn't say I was a STUDENT. I have no recollections whatever of life in the storied classrooms of SHS-except for a marvelously sour, goateed chemistry teacher who once said "Caen, you are the dumbest cluck I have ever had misfortune of," unquote, and a gentle soul named, I believe, Sarah Canterbury Ashby, who taught Creative Writing and said the same thing, but in more refined terms.

I also recall Merrill Osenbaugh, the journalism teacher, but with mixed emotions. It was Mr. Osenbaugh who launched me as a columnist, and I don't know whether to be grateful or hateful. It came about this way:

As a reporter for the X-Ray, I was assigned one day to cover a student body election. After taking copious and undecipherable notes, I rushed back to the office and wrote a story that was so full of misspelled names, inaccurate figures and purple prose that Mr. Osenbaugh was impressed. "This boy has style," he said, throwing my copy in the wastebasket. "Let's make a columnist out of him."

Thus was born "Corridor Gossip"— fearless journalism at its worst.

Not that there wasn't plenty to write about. There were the 36s and the Eunoias and the Phaedos, trading pins with the Mananas, the KTs and the Ayudantes (in those days, if you were going steady with a girl, you were "married"; most of us were bigamists). There were wild rides to Stockton (as a matter of fact, Stockton usually won, but is this a time for accuracy?). There was Betty Bowden in her brand new yellow Ford convertible and Charlie Miller in his brand new Plymouth roadster (these were in the Depression Days, and we hated both of them in a jealous sort of way).

There were the noon dances, where everybody tried to dance with Janice Fulton, Alice Burr, Mignon Jordan or Catty Haddock (except the girls, of course; they all tried to dance with Bytie Peart, Maynard Brown, Bob Jones or Dyck Doran). There was Tommy MacBride, the future political great, singing lead tenor in the Double Quartet, eight good men and true (except for their harmony). There was the fairly suspicious little store on Y Street where we ate nourishing lunches of jelly doughnuts, Nehi and frozen Milky Ways. And there were all the kids who "rated" (sure, we were horrible snobs) and who spent the noon hours chattering in a big group on what I guess is 35th Street, keeping any friendly strangers away with hostile glances.

We all dressed alike and talked alike and cut classes together and lived only for the Friday or Saturday night dances at Eastern Star Temple, with Dick Jurgen's orchestra, featuring Stanley Noonan, Eddy Howard and Ronnie Kemper. (My proudest moment came one day when I was walking down the school's main corridor, and Principal Byron Painter called to me: "Hey, Jurgens!" He squinted a little more closely and said "Oh, sorry. You're the other kid with the big nose." But to be mistaken, even for a second, for the Biggest Man on the Campus was an unforgettable thrill).

Somehow, the long, golden years rolled past and somehow, we graduated and even in our blind youth, I think some of us knew, deep down inside, that life would seldom be as pleasant again. We used to look up at the faceless, clockless clock tower and joke feebly: "Sacramento High- where time stands still!"

Sometimes, I wish it had- and that we were still kids again, learning precious little in the classes that were always too long, but a lot during the noon hours that were always too short.

STUDENTS FROM SACRAMENTO HIGH SCHOOL (sometimes dubbed Main High School in those days) were called upon during World War I to participate in various drives and parades. Above, girls of the marching chorus move down K Street Oct. 12, 1918.

You Say It Was Rough In School During Your Day!

No school could exist without rules and regulations, and the first Sacramento High School was no exception. To be admitted, in the first place, meant passing a rough examination. Once accepted as a student it took real determination to complete high school (which, in those days, was considered an honor almost equal to that of graduating from college today).

On May 22, 1856, an examination was given to 25 boys and 15 girls who wanted to attend the new high school in Sacramento. Of these, nine boys and 12 girls were admitted to Sacramento High School after the examination. On Sept. 1, 1856, the first high school was opened.

On Aug. 20, 1856, the Superintendent and Board of School Commissioners issued the following regulations for the high school constitution:

1. "After the ringing of the bell at the opening of each session, the roll of pupils shall be called and absences noted.

2. "No pupil absent during 15 minutes after the roll call shall be admitted to his or her seat, unless excused by note from a parent or guardian or for reasons satisfactory to the teacher.

3. "Tardiness for two successive days shall be reported by the teacher to the parent or guardian of the offending pupil, and if still persisted in, shall subject such pupil to suspension or expulsion from school at the discretion of the Board of Education upon notice from the teacher.

4. "The place of any pupil absenting himself or herself from school for more than two days in any one week, except in case of sickness or absence from the city, or other unavoidable cause shall be declared vacant nor shall any such pupil be permitted again to enter said school, except by the unanimous assent of the Board of Education.

5. "Cleanliness of person, neatness, and respectful conduct are required to be observed by each pupil.

6. "Improper behavior in school or unbecoming conduct between the pupils in their association with each other shall be punished (corporal punishment excepted) and, if repeated, notification by the teacher in his discretion thereof shall be given to his or her parents or guardian; if still persisted in such pupil shall be suspended, subject to the decision of the superintendent of the Board of Education.

7. "The use of improper and profane language among the pupils is strictly forbidden. Repetitions of this offense after due and friendly warning shall subject the pupil to suspension or expulsion at the discretion of the superintendent, sustained by a vote of the Board of Education."

In 1862 a regulation was adopted by the Board prohibting smoking or chewing tobacco on the school grounds.

Can you imagine yourself rushing madly into English class some busy Friday afternoon, just in time to have one whole hour of "rhetoricals"; or studying all evening to be ready to give a "critique" or "prophecy"? If not, then let's take time out from moaning and complaining about modern-day school work, and pity the high school students for whom this agonizing torture was all in a week's work!

Let's wander back to the year 1892, to the small brick building, on the corner of 9th and M Streets in the Sacramento of the "Gay Nineties." If you were the average student, your daily curriculum might consist of --- one hour of Greek and Roman and Medieval history, taught by Mrs. Purcell. Instead of our modern literature course, you would receive instruction in the classics by Miss Fredrica de Lagune. A lucky French major would have the choice of two teachers, Professor Dahl or Miss Tyndal. Professor Lipowitz was the teacher of German.

If you were one of the hardier boys (or one who's mother didn't object), you might spend an hour or so after school playing soccer or rugby under the guidance of the principal, Mr. Jasper Pond. You had no school teams, and girls, took cooking or sewing instead of gym.

The school paper, the Bi-Weekly, was a tiny thing put out by the editor, Charles Harrison, and another student.

What if you, like Miss Sophie Price, from whom this story was obtained, had to go through that kind of school life-

Senior Classes Give First Play For Critics At Start Of Jazz Age

Jazz! Flappers! The Charleston! All these characterize America's "Roaring Twenties" and her era of prosperity. Simultaneously, in a little world of her own, 1921 marked the beginning of Sacramento High School's senior plays.

Created to be an annual production, "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," presented by the Senior "A" class of 1921, touched off the chain of plays which were to follow.

All went well until 1927, when bursting with pep and energy, students longed for a semi-annual affair. Initiating the change was the presentation of "Daddy Long Legs."

Alumni Reminisce

A year later, when present principal, Dr. Albert Sessarego, headed the student body, three one-act plays, "The Pot Boiler," "Poor Aubrey," and "Sham", were featured. Recently when Dr. Sessarego sat in his office turning the pages of history contained in his "Review," he recognized Edmond Kelso, a present-day television writer and Melvin Ventor, now famous for his radio programs, among the cast of characters in "Poor Aubrey."

Those were the days when SHS presented its plays in the Tuesday Club House, Plaza Theater, and Alhambra Theater, due to the insufficient space the Assembly Hall provided.

Dr. Gerald Smith, a former student body president and present-day history teacher, reminisced: "Classes were dismissed the afternoon of the play and I remember walking over from school to Alhambra Theater."

Auditorium At Last

But as the sands of time rolled on, in June of 1940, upon the completion of the new auditorium, SHS had a home of its own in which to present its plays. William Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" with Jay Reese as Puck, drew a capacity crowd to celebrate a wish come true.

Then as variety shows crowded the list of annual student activities, the semi-annual senior play sacrificed its time to make room for the newcomer and returned to being an annual affair in 1950.

Since then, "You Can't Take It With You," "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "My Sister Eileen," "Growing Pains," and "The Patsy" have added their signatures to the list of senior plays; which, without them, the school year's activities wouldn't seem complete.

Leaders Search City For Graduation Sites

The Assembly Chamber of the State Capitol housed Sacramento High's graduation exercises back in 1896 to 1905.

From 1906 (the year of the S. F. earthquake) to 1908 the affair was held in the First Congregational church.

The Diepenvrock Theater was the site for the ceremony in 1913.

McKinley Park was the setting for the occasion in 1914 and in 1915 it was moved to the State Armory.

When the present building was erected in 1922 the exercises were held at Hughes Stadium, but it invariably turned cold on graduation night.

The officials next moved the affair to the girls' athletic field (still had weather trouble) and moved to the Civic Auditorium.

KNOW THESE GIRLS? If you were at Sac back in the late 30's, you might. If you recognize any of the four to the right (the one to the left is Barbara Gillette, X-Ray editor) report to Room 93 in old cafeteria building and you will receive a free year's subscription to The X-Ray.

Glimpse Of 19th Century Courses Reveals Array Of Difficult Studies

"Is your Greek translation finished?"

"What did you discuss in philosophy today?"

"What are you studying in astronomy now?"

Questions such as these could be heard flying back and forth among students who attended Sacramento High School in 1857.

At that time classes lasted only one half hour; and students also studied: English, algebra, chemistry, botany, Latin, rhetoric physiology, arithmetic, French, and Spanish.

Fifty-nine boys and girls attended Sacramento High School in May of 1860, and by then geography and declamation (lengthy oral recitations) were a part of the curriculm.

Present Recitations

When final examinations commenced each fall and spring semester, parents and anyone interested attended the recitations upon the request of the school board. Even daily papers commented on the success of these tests.

In 1893 the course of study at Sacramento High consisted of two divisions: a four-year course and a three-year course. The parent or guardian of the person admitted to high school selected the course to be followed by the student. If a pupil's preparation was not satisfactory in all respects to the principal, he was required to follow the four-year program.

First year or freshman students studied: Latin grammar, Latin reading, algebra, history of Greece, ancient geography; and in English read Bulfinch's "Age of Fable", Scott's "Lady of the Lake", Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice", and Irving's "Alhambra".

Sophomores had instruction in Latin, Greek, algebra, a review of arithmetic, ancient geography, selected classics, and English composition and reading.

When they were juniors their programs consisted of Latin, Latin comp, Greek, an analysis of English grammar, geometry, and medieval and modern history.

Seniors learned about the history of the United States, civil goverment, geography of the U. S., mathematics, Latin, Greek, and, in addition, they studied special exercises in declamation, reading, and music.

Examinations had to be held within the course of study, bu not all questions had to come from textbooks.

Each student received his report card not less than once a month throughout his high schoo years.

Sacramento High grew rapidly; and by 1900 courses ha expanded to include: German, drawing, typing, and stenography. Some of the earlier studies were dropped from the program.

In 1909 a new high school building was built at 18th and Kay t meet the increasing demand fo more space. In 1913 many vocational courses were offered. Students were able to take prep courses in: mechanics, medicine, mining, engineering, chemistry, dentistry, and pharmacy.

Girls took sewing and millinery along with their other classes.

Nineteen eighteen brought with it such new courses as sociology and a complete commercial program. Home nursing, journalism, band, and home ec were the new studies offered in 1920.

Although Sacramento High had moved to a new building in 1909, much more room was needed. in 1924 the high school moved to its present site at 34th and Y Streets. Facilities increased greatly; and additional vocational courses of auto mechanics, printing, electricity, plumbing, sheetmetal, and carpentry were in full swing by 1925.

Boys Must Cook

Graduation requirements in the 1920's stated that boys must have one year of manual arts, including cooking and free hand and mechanical drawing.

Girls were required to take a complete home economics course in which sewing, millinery, and drawing were taught.

At the present time courses of all description are offered making it possible for all to have a wide educational background upon graduating from high school. There are 16 different departments, ranging from art to social studies, with classes such as drafting and library science given also.

High School Grows From 39 To 4000

In the hustle and bustle 100 years ago, amid the swish of long dresses and the clatter of shoes on wooden sidewalks, 18 girls and 21 boys made up the entire student body at Sacramento High School.

Eighteen sixty five saw this number grow to about 45; and by December, 1892, this total jumped to 184. Peak enrollment occurred in 1932-33 when 4377 attended Sacramento High.

The largest January class to graduate from Sac High totaled 353 students in 1937. Six hundred ninety-one graduated in June, 1933, to set the all-time high. The greatest number of graduates in any one year (winter and spring) was 1014 in 1936. All together, Sacramento High has presented diplomas to 26,039 students.

Students at Sac High now are part of a high school that has grown from only 39 students in 1855 to 2953 in 1956.

Many Alumni Return To Sac High As Teachers, Office Personnel

Twenty-four members of Sac's faculty and four of the clerical staff once attended the school as students.

Two of these persons, Dr. Albert Sessarego, principal, and Dr. Gerald Smith, teacher, once served as student body presidents. Mr. John Bailey, chemistry instructor, held down the boys' veep position during his student days. Mr. Ulric Morley, vice principal and alumnus, participated actively in various activities while an under-grad.

Mr. Wilfred Yost, counselor; Mr. Niron Brewer, science; Mr. Vasco Pucci, mathematics; Mr. Richard Clark, history; and Mr. Sherman Posch, commercial, boast the honor of being alumni. Football coach, George Relles, starred in athletics for the Purple and White while a student.

Miss Antonia Hyatt and Miss Hazel Bell, among the alumni, began their teaching careers while the school was still located at the 18th and K building. Librarian, Mrs. Essie Primrose (White), and Mrs. Alice Taggart (Claxton), were once among the student body.

History teachers, Mrs. Peggy Keller (Edwards), Mrs. Adaline Graves (Lovell), and Miss Rosemary Harkin are also among the grads.

Others who tramped Sac's halls of learning include: Mrs. Sally Davis (Chorich), Mrs. Dorothy Tiltin (Monroe), Mrs. Antoinette Walker (Valerio), Miss Marilyn Cooper, Mrs. Gladys Wallace (Hamlin), Mrs. Jane Calhoun (Lovell), Mrs. Olga Piazza (Musso), and Miss Marie Stebbins.

Secretary to the principal, Mrs. Frances Genteman (White), well remembers her student days at 18th and K. Others of the clerical staff who attended Sacramento High are Miss Martha Wagner, Miss Marian Haven, and Mrs. Louise Phipps Laurenzi).

X-Ray Begins Back In War 1 Period; Now In 40th year

Nothing could be concealed from the X-Ray machine. It saw through everything. And, as a matter of fact, so did the Sacramento High School newspaper. Thus it received its name.

Sacramento High's first journalism class organized at the opening of the fall semester in 1916 (during World War I), and with the encouragement of their instructor, Mr. Rippey, immediately began scouting around for a practical means of learning the fundamentals of journalism. As a result, The X-Ray was founded that year. Aside from being a practical field for journalism students, the paper was also an agent for reporting and promoting activities and bringing the entire student body more closely together.

Then the matter of finance became a big problem. At first the students thought about advertisements, but they decided that this would detract from the value of the paper and also cut down news space. The Board of Education finally came to the rescue by appropriating $800 for the fall term issues. This, with 1100 subscribers was sufficient to put The X-Ray out every week for one whole term.

However, in 1917, the funds were only large enough for a semi monthly edition. But subscriptions increased again, and in 1923 more students subscribed to the paper than ever before.

Interesting Array Of Clubs Come And Go At Sac

During the history of Sacramento High School, many clubs have come and gone because of the students' changing interests.

The short-lived Boys' Hiking Club was started in 1915—the fellows spending Saturdays hiking to the Sacramento foothills as an objective. On their first excursion only six members took the trip. However, after hearing how one hiker fell into Brannon Slough and lost his lunch, the number of hikers for the second trip jumped to 15.

Debaters Increase

In the form of debating clubs, the Forum Debating Society had its start in 1911. The Rostra Debating Society was organized in 1922. The reason for the second club was to give competition to Forum and to afford an opportunity for all students interested in debating to join a club.

With 23 members, the Girls' Tumbling Club got underway in 1923 by giving several exhibitions before different organizations.

In 1924, the Gladiators' Club was introduced with 15 girls and 15 boys to carry out its purpose of promoting school activities and to encourage attendance at all school events. The Double S Society and the Dragon Knights replaced the Gladiators in 1925 and 1929 respectively.

Taxidermists Start

The Taxidermy Club was organized in 1925 after a considerable amount of interest was shown in the course of taxidermy. One of the aims of the club was to stimulate interest in the preservation of wild life.

For students interested in aeronautics, the Junior Aviation Club was formed in 1929. The club was composed of students from the aeronautics class and those interested in aviation.

In the way of sport clubs. the ski, riding, golf, and tennis clubs were organized in 1940. The most recent addition to Sacramento High's clubs is the Education Club.

REPAIRING CARS fascinated boys even back in 1921 when the above pictures were taken. Mr. Clyde Fountaine, who died last year, was the first instructor. The top photo was taken at 18th and K the second year of the shop's existence. The truck in the lower picture, owned by the city, received a thorough overhaul by the boys in the advanced auto class.

Review Appears In Newspaper Form; Begins As Privately-Owned Enterprise

Among the oldest publications in Sacramento is the high school Review. The first issue was published as a paper on Dec. 1, 1897.

It was not started by the student body or by any class but was the private enterprise of R. D. McFarland and Wirt Goode. Edited by these two men for one year, the Review was then taken over by other cub reporters. In 1901 the student body of Sacramento High stepped in and took over the publication, and since then it has remained the official record of the high school.

The Review made its first appearance as a four and sometimes six-page paper which came out at two-week intervals. With the year 1901 it became more like a small pamphlet. This was a monthly edition. Then in 1914 it graduated to the small magazine size and became a quarterly publication. From the year 1915-1921 the Review was published every semester, one edition for each high senior class. Since then it has always been an annual. The price over these 58 years has ranged from 10 cents to the present cost of $3.50.

The early Reviews had more imformation and fewer pictures. They contained more poetry, jokes, and cartoons then ours today.

Since the first graduating classes were relatively small, all the graduating seniors were photographed in a group picture. When individual portraits became popular, they were quite small and usually in an oval shape.

A 1900 Review showed pictures of the Alpha Sigma and the Theta Chi fraternities. This may not seem very unusual, but the Alpha Sigma fraternity was an all-girl organization.

Advertisements took up 25 percent of the book— in the front, and even more in the back of the early Reviews. Students were confronted with ads for livery stables, which all owned the best riding horses; shiny, brand new, solid rubber tired runabouts; the smoothest tasting lagers from excellent brewing companies; wholesale and retail fireworks; efficient undertakers and a county coroner; and an opportunity to make extra money by raising pedigree Belgian Hares.

Former Prexies Achieve Success In More Than Gavel-Wielding

Have you ever wondered about past presidents of Sacramento High? Let's glance back and see who were the presidents of Sac High and what they are doing now.

Dr. Albert Sessarego, Sac's principal, began his leadership of Sacramento High in the Spring of 1928 after he was selected by the student body.

Assemblyman Thomas MacBride started his political career in 1931 as president of Sacramento High.

Many Are Lawyers

Several of Sacramento's most prominent lawyers were student body prexies at Sac High. The include: Kneeland Lober, elected in the fall of 1936; Thomas Hunt, who is president of the Sacramento Junior Chamber of Commerce; and Dave Smith, selected by the student body for president in the spring of '44.

During the fall of 1944 Bill Rase was manipulating the affairs of Sacramento High as capably as he now operates the turntables on his radio programs and the talent on his TV show.

Some of Sacramento High's former leaders entered the field of dentistry. They include Sheldon Raney, president in the fall of 1921; Hal Graves, prexy in the spring of 1939; and Robert Lliff, student body leader in the spring of 1949.

Robert Sweetman, president in the spring of 1946, and William Sim, elected in the fall of 1929, are now prominent insurance men.

Two former leaders, William Comstock, prexy in the fall of 1933, and John Pollock, president in the spring of 1938, are with two of Sacramento's leading construction firms.

Dr. Gerald Smith, Sacramento High School's president in the fall of 1937, returned to his alma mater and now teaches history here.

La Cornu Joins Police

A face that often pops up around Sacramento High is that of Virgil La Cornu, student leader in the fall of 1945. Mr. La Cornu is part of the juvenile police force in Sacramento.

In the sports field, Bill Demas, chief executive in the spring of 1950, has toured the United States with various tennis tournaments.

Robert Mallett, noted lecturer and commentator, served as president in the spring of 1932.

Carl Setzer, prexy in the fall of 1938, owns and operates the Setzer Box Company.

These are not all of Sacramento High School's former presidents, but they do show the type of students that have graduated from Sac High and those who will graduate in the years to come.

Flu Epidemic Strikes Recalls Mrs. Taggart

Mrs. Alice Taggart, alumna, and presently a counselor here, remembers the terrible flu epidemic of November, 1918 (during her student days) when the high school was closed for several weeks. Before closing, however, she mentions that students and teachers were required to wear masks for protection.

ICICLES IN SACRAMENTO? Yes, those who were on the campus in 1949 may well remember the above scene in the inner court. Such pictures have been rare on the "Dragon Square".

Sixteen Grads Can Remember School As It Was During Late Victorian Era

Dr. A. M. Henderson, oldest living graduate of Sacramento Senior High known to The X-Ray, was born in 1869, graduated from Sac in 1886 and then attended the University of California. Part of his advanced study was done in Europe.

Dr. Henderson served on the Sacramento Board of Education for 15 years and also was a member of the City Board of Health.

Other early graduates are Mr. C. M. Goethe, 1891; Mrs. Kate Maddux, 1891; Miss Sophie Price, 1892; Mrs. Charles Kemper, 1892; Mrs. Lula Stickney Duncan, 1892; Mr. George Bassett, 1893; Mr. George Slawson, 1894; Mrs. Peter J. Shields, 1896; Mrs. E. A. Nicolaus, 1896; Mrs. Hugh Bradford, 1897; Miss Naomi Canon, 1897; Miss Mabel Gillis, 1898; Mrs. E. H. Pitts, 1899; Mrs. Maud Green Cook, 1899, and Mrs. Rita Castle Webster, 1900.

In a recent interview Miss Gilis recalled Class Day back in '98, which was a mock session of the California legislature and was held in the Assembly Chamber at the capitol. At the meeting the faculty was impeached, she remembered with a smile.

Mallett Writes 'Fight Dragons Fight'

On Nov. 21, 1930 The X-Ray, together with the Key Club, announced the sponsorship of a contest to find a new fight song.

A prize of an inscribed silver cup was to be awarded the person who wrote it.

The winning song, "Fight, Dragons, Fight," was written by Robert Mallett (announcement was made Feb. 20, 1931). Second prize went to Bill Peterson, who wrote "Purple and White".

Sac 16 Days Shy Of Claiming First

Only sixteen days have kept Sacramento High from being the oldest high school in California. Lowell of San Francisco was founded August 16, 1856; Sacramento was second—September 1, 1856.

This information was reported in 1937 by a student committee composed of Gerald Smith, chairman, now a history teacher at Sacramento High, Maxine McCarthy, and Danny Buhler.

The purpose of this study was to establish definitely the date of the oldest high school in California, with hopes, of course, that Sacramento would be first. After 14 weeks of research, letter writing, and interviewing, it was determined that Sacramento was second.

On September, 1856, Sacramento High, then a fair-sized home, let three boys and five girls pass through its threshhold. It wasn't until 1864, however, that anyone graduated (two girls were first) from the local high school.

From this Sac has grown into a student body of almost 3000 (and topping 4000 in 1937).

Mr. H. Phleger, U. S. Adviser, To Speak Today

Mr. Herman Phleger (graduate of 1908), presently serving as legal adviser to the U. S. Department of State, has been chosen as principal speaker for the Centennial festivities.

Mr. Phleger travels throughout the world with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and is responsible for checking the legality of all papers drawn up by that department.

He is known throughout the world as a specialist in international law. Prior to his position with the Department of State, Mr. Phleger served as the U. S. legal advisor at the Nuremberg Trials.

Mr. Phleger is the brother of Mrs. Irma McClatchy of Sacramento and Mr. Carl Phleger of Ventura, both alumni of Sacramento High.

Centennial Committee

A steering committee of nine has done the planing for Sacramento High's Centennial celebration. These include:

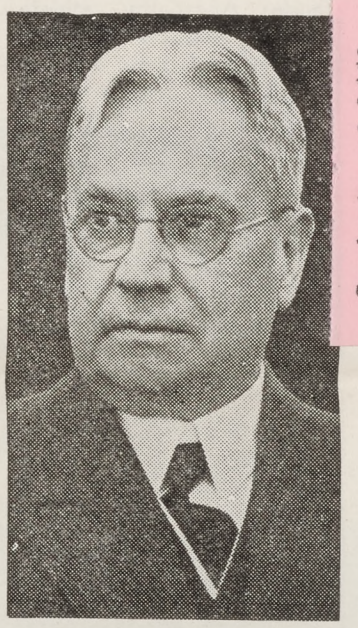
Mr. Thomas J. MacBride, chairman of steering committee; Mr. Robert D. Livingstone, financial chairman, of committee; Mrs. M. M. Millward, chairman of arrangements with classes; Miss Carolyn Johnson, chairman of Centennial observance program; Dr. Albert J. Sessarego, chairman of student and faculty committees; Mrs. Frances Genteman, chairman of historical committee and secretary to the steering committee; Mrs. Lawrence Blucher, chairman of publicity; Mrs. Walter Miles, chairman of activities; Mr. Lewis Kassis, chairman of Centennial picnic.

Half A Century Ago

Looking back 55 years, the records show that no classes were held at Sacramento High Thursday, Sept. 19, 1901 because of the funeral for President McKinley (following his assassination).

Hiram Johnson, Alumnus, Earns World Renown

Looking back upon famous graduates of Sacramento High, one cannot help but run across a man who served as governor of California and United States senator. This man, considered the school's most prominent graduate, is Hiram Warren Johnson.



Graduate of 1883

Hiram Johnson

In 1910 he was elected governor of California by a large majority. He was re-elected in 1915. He resigned as governor in 1917 and ran for the office of U. S. senator. He held this post from 1917 to 1945.

During his terms as governor and senator Mr. Johnson was a Republican, but he bolted the party in 1912 to help found the Progressive Party and run for vice president with Theodore Roosevelt. He returned to the party and was a contender for the Republican presidential nomination both in 1920 and 1924.

Hiram Johnson died in 1945 after 28 years in the Senate.

Former Sac Athletes Succeed

A glance in the sport pages of today's newspapers will tell how former Sacramento High athletes have fared.

Stan Hack leads off as one of the most famous athletes from Sacramento High. A former third baseman for the Chicago Cubs, he is now their manager. Others include: Bruce Edwards, catcher for the Washington Senators; Gordon Jones, pitcher with St. Louis; Harry Dunlop, catcher for Boston; Woody Held, newly-signed short-stop with the New York Yankees; and Bobby Williams, third baseman, also playing with the Yankees.

Former Dragons now playing with the Sacramento Solons are Tom Glaviano, third base; Tom Agosta, outfielder; and Mike Acker, pitcher.

Joe Ulm, '52, is familiar to all the football fans. He will be playing professional football for the Philadelphia Eagles.

George Relles and Bill Sim may be considered two of the best all-around football players to come from this school. They chose rival universities, Sim going to Stanford and Relles going to California.

In basketball Sac is represented by two brothers, John and George Stanich. John was with the Phillips Oilers while George was with UCLA and later played baseball at Oakland.

George Stanich was also a high jumper for the U.S. at the 1948 Olympics. George Theodoratos was an outstanding high jumper at Washington State.

Tonny Kono graduated in 1949 and since then has won the titles of world weightlifting champion, and Olympic weightlifting champion.

In tennis, Dorothy Weisel, was formerly ranked third in the U.S. She is now Mrs. Stanley Hack. Fred Hagist currently was among the top 10 in California.

Peter Tait and Bryant Page are both local golf pros.

Dragons Produce Top Teams

Ever since Grandma's day, sports have been a major interest at Sacramento Senior High School.

First, we'll take a peek at football. The Dragon varsity gridmen chalked up a championship, 1933, and a co-championship,1953. The B pigskin team of Dragonville have taken championships in 1929, 1930, 1947, and 1954.

Through the years Sacramento High has boasted such players on their football squads as George Bican (present McClatchy football coach); George Relles (present Sacramento High football Coach); Alex Kampouris (former player in the majors) and Nick Culjis (Sacramento city councilman).

Now to take a look at basketball! In 1909, basketball was introduced at Dragonville. Just two years later, it won it's first league championship, followed by another title, with a play-off against Woodland. In 1925, the B basketball team won its first CIF championship, followed by other championships in 1928, 1934, 1935 and 1939. The varsity team also won a victory in 1939. The B's also won in 1942, 1943 and 1956.

The varsity batsmen have smashed their way to championships in 1920, 1921, 1922, 1934, 1935 and 1946. Sacramento High has produced such baseball stars as Stan Hack, Sr., Alex Kampouris, and Pete Read.

Track is the next sport on the agenda. The Dragon cindermen have paced their way to championships in 1937, 1938, 1939 and 1950. In 1920, the Dragon tracksters represented northern California in the State Meet at Bakersfield.

Taking a look at tennis, we see that every year it is becoming more and more popular. In 1920, Sacramento won its first CIF championship. Through the years Sacramento has always been strong in tennis. In 1949, they didn't lose a single match and won the Sac-Joaquin championship.

OUT FOR A GAIN back in 1929 was Dragon halfback George Relles. The Purple and White went undefeated that year.

First Key Club Started At Sac

First Key Club in existence was formed at Sacramento High May 7, 1925 (supported by Kiwanis).

Original members were Tom Fletcher, Wells Harmon, Lawrence Martinelli, George Maynahan, Carl Richards, John Woolett, Ben Beall, Joseph Fitzhenry, Elmer Shimmins, Billy Gee, Melvin Morse, James O'Brien, Felix Wahrhaftig, Ward Mullinney, Harold Ferrore, Carl Hymes, Bufore Isham, Harmon Rowe, Ernest Arnold, Frank Brett, Ewell Labhardt, James Maynahan, William Harr, Vaughn Eghorn, and Albert Marsh.
